Sports liability—expensive game to play

by TONY GINNETTI
First of four parts

It started out to be just another high school football game for Greg Stead.

The 17-year-old was playing for his Miami, Fla., school team when an opposing player came at him for a tackle.

What happened in the next moments was a freak tragedy whose aftermath has sent shock waves rippling through the sporting goods equipment industry.

YOUNG STEAD suffered a broken neck that left him a quadriplegic. His family sued Riddell, Inc., a Des Plaines-based company which is the nation's leading manufacturer of football helmets, contending Riddell's helmet caused the injury, acting as a fulcrum that broke Stead's neck when the boy fell.

The Liability Game

SPORTS ON TRIAL

During a four-week trial in December 1975, the plaintiffs never proved that Stead was wearing a Riddell helmet at the time of the accident, yet a jury awarded the boy an unprecedented $5.3 million.

The judgment sent the sporting goods manufacturing industry reeling. And it has brought home to the industry a problem so severe, industry representatives say it threatens the very existence of some sports.

THE VILLAIN is product liability, the concept that holds a manufacturer liable for the safety of the goods he produces. Lawsuits against companies whose products have caused injury are not new, but within the past year the number of product liability suits of all types has increased to nearly 300 times the level of two years ago, insurance industry estimates say.

Consumerism and a lawsuit-conscious society are partly responsible for the rise, some say, and product liability is a hot topic among lawyers, manufacturers, insurance companies and lawmakers.

But for sports, the consequences of product liability lawsuits threaten to have a far-reaching impact, from junior leagues to the pros, a two-month study the The Daily Herald has found.

The problem within the past year, particularly for football, has mushroomed into nothing short of a crisis:

- Six of the nation's 13 football helmet manufacturers have gone out of business within the past year because they cannot afford the risks and costs of product liability. Another leading manufacturer, MacGregor-Brunswick Corp., Skokie, discontinued manufacturing protective sports equipment two years ago. Spalding no longer makes helmets.
- At least three of the remaining helmet manufacturers can no longer afford the premiums for product liability insurance, which have increased an average 500 per cent in one year. The manufacturers are now self-insuring their products, a practice that one sporting goods industry representative admitted "is a euphemism for having no insurance."
- There are some 70 lawsuits pending against the helmet industry that seek damages 150 times the annual $1 million net profits of the industry.
- Manufacturers fear making improvements in products because the changes are cited in court to allege that older equipment was faulty.
- The problem of lawsuits already has prompted 17 states, including Illinois, to drop the trampoline from competition and physical education classes.
- One of the three leading manufacturers of trampolines ceased producing them as of Jan. 1 because of the liability problem and the remaining two firms cannot obtain product liabil-

Lance support slipping away

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The precarious political footing beneath Budget Director Bert Lance crumbled a bit more Sunday on the eve of a week highlighted by a mid-week presidential news conference and Lance's long awaited day in the witness chair.

Five governors, including three Democrats, said Sunday the administration's credibility was tarnished by the affair. A White House insider suggested resignation. Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., a member of the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee which praised Lance in January, called the coming days "decision week."

And Republicans in Congress vowed to fully exploit the issue at the polls in 1978.

MORE DAMAGING developments may have occurred Saturday.

Carter, barnstorming New Jersey on behalf of Gov. Brendan Byrne, conceded he didn't know details of Lance's personal and banking troubles when he chose Lance to head the White House Office of Management and Budget.

When Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd called the Lance resignation "inevitable" and suggested it follow an appearance Thursday before a Senate panel, Carter was noncommital.

The President — who has unfailingly backed his long time adviser and emissary to the business community — expressed respect for Byrd's opinion.

"I THINK IT'S fair to point out that Sen. Byrd also emphasized that Bert Lance should have a chance to explain his side of the allegations and positions," Carter said. Carter plans a news conference Wednesday, the day before Lance testifies before Congress.

Presidential assistant Midge Costanza told WHEC-TV in Rochester, N.Y., Lance should resign. Carter and Lance alike are "preoccupied" with the controversy "and I think Bert Lance should relieve the president of this burden."

Presidential Press Secretary Jody Powell told a news conference in Des Moines, Iowa, Lance deserved a chance to defend himself in a public

Report chooses Gottlieb for village complex

The development team that built Superblock in downtown Des Plaines has been recommended for the job of building a shopping center-office-building and parking garage in down-Arlington Heights.

A report by the village's planning department picks the development proposal of J.R. Gottlieb & Co. of Chicago, H.W. Lochner Engineering Co. of Chicago, and Erickson & Stevens architects of Des Plaines over a bid submitted by Crane Construction Co., Development Control Corp., and architects Welton Becket & Associates, all of Chicago.

The Arlington Heights Village Board will review the report at its regular meeting at 8 p.m. today at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

The report calls the Crane proposal "more desirable," but because it calls for the acquisition of the Dunton Court shopping center and several existing businesses on Campbell Street, the smaller proposal from the Gottlieb team was recommended. Dunton Court representatives have said the center is not for sale.

Plans call for the multi-level development to be built in the center of the block bounded by Campbell, Dunton Sigwalt and Vail streets.

The Gottlieb team is best known in this area for its involvement in the Superblock development in downtown Des Plaines, which includes a $1.2 million parking garage, a 10-story office building and a three-story shopping mall.

Crane Construction Co. has been called the nation's leading general contractor by Fortune magazine and Engineering News.

Crane has built many high-rise office buildings and more than 20 shopping malls.

The Crane team's proposal was "five times larger" than the Gottlieb proposal, calling for 130,000 square feet as compared to 26,000 square

Defense not just prayer

by PAT DOYLE

The man who sued Elk Grove Village for the death of his wife more than three years ago has moved to a new battlefield, armed with religion and an automatic alarm system for nearly any emergency.

Gary Pettee is far removed from the Elk Grove Township home where his pregnant wife lay dying in 1974 while waiting for an ambulance.

Pettee says he's all but forgotten about his $6 million lawsuit against Elk Grove Village — a suit filed because a village ambulance dispatched to rush his wife to a hospital was called back en route because Pettee refused to pay the village $42 a year for fire and ambulance service.

Yet Pettee's circumstances today closely parallel those of four years ago. His new wife, Carol, is eight months pregnant — the same as his previous wife. This time, however, he's taking no changes. An emergency alarm has been installed between Pettee's new Genoa, Ill., home and the local fire department.

PETTEE AND HIS WIFE hope to avoid the tragedy of the past.

With a cross around his neck and scriptures in his shirt pocket, the 42-year-old Pettee says he is more concerned with spiritual matters these days than with the material world.

"I really enjoy it," he says about his new life. "If you learn to put your faith in God you can recover from anything."

But it's clear he knows that man does not live by

'Roots' scores heavily in Emmys

by VERNON SCOTT

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — A pair of old-timers, Carroll O'Connor and Beatrice Arthur, won Emmys Sunday night for best performances in a comedy series for "All in the Family" and "Maude" at the 29th annual television academy awards.

Louis Gossett Jr. got the ratings-shattering show "Roots" off to an early lead, winning the award for best actor in a single appearance in a drama.

Ed Flanders won the award for outstanding acting in "Harry S. Truman" and Sally Field won the award for outstanding lead actress for her multiple performance in "Sybil."

ED ASNER, best known for his role as the tough news editor in "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," won his fifth Emmy for his supporting role in "Roots."

"Roots" scored again with Olivia Cole's Emmy for outstanding single performance by a supporting actress in a drama.

Karen Ann alive two years later

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joseph and Julia Quinlan did not know it at the time, but their decision to let their comatose daughter, Karen Ann, "die with dignity" would arouse worldwide concern.

For the Quinlans, who are devout Catholics, it was a painful decision that they were able to make only through their faith.

At first they couldn't face the facts.

On April 15, 1975, Karen Ann, then 21, fell into a coma for causes still unclear. Some say it was caused by a mixture of alcohol and the tranquilizer valium.

The Quinlans, of Landing, N.J., thought their daughter would recover.

BUT KAREN ANN, a vibrant young woman who had a genuine love of life, would never return to a conscious state. She remains to this day in what the doctors call "a persistent vegetative state."

Monday will be the second anniversary of the date the devout couple filed their first court suit to turn off their daughter's respirator.

The Quinlans, writing with Phyllis Battelle, now tell the story of their adopted daughter and the unprecedented court battle they waged to discontinue the "extraordinary means" that were keeping her alive in "Karen Ann," published by Doubleday.

The Quinlans describe how they clung to hope in the months after Karen fell into a coma.

UNLIKE SOME sketches in the press that depicted Karen as a sleeping beauty hooked up to a respirator, the young woman would thrash, sweat, moan and open her eyes during the coma. She lost weight and her body began to curl into a grotesque fetal position.

"When you bumped against her bed, she would jump, almost rising up into a sitting position — as though she had been struck, or was terrified of something," Mrs. Quinlan relates.

"Nobody told us that was just a reflex action. At first, every time it happened, we had hope."

KAREN QUINLAN

As Karen's condition deteriorated, her mother's hope faded, but her father was not ready to give up. He dreamed of outfitting a camper and taking Karen to Arizona. At the hospital he would talk to Karen as if she could hear.

Mrs. Quinlan sought counsel from the parish priest for whom she worked, the Rev. Tom Trapasso.

Trapasso told her the Catholic Church maintained there was no moral obligation to prolong life artificially.

KAREN'S SISTER, Mary Ellen, 18, and brother, John, 17, also gradually came to realize that their sister's chances of coming out of the coma were nonexistent. The sight of Karen's life being prolonged by a machine pumping air through a hole in her throat pained them more than the knowledge they had lost her.

"It just seems like a cold machine," Mary Ellen says of the respirator. "And it seems more alive than Karen is."

They knew, for Karen had told them, that she would not want it that way.

Soon reality caught up with Joseph Quinlan. On a July Saturday he said to his wife, "We can go to the cemetery today and pick out a plot."

But he told Father Trapasso he was worried about playing God.

"God has made the decision that she's going to die. You're just agreeing with God's decision, that's all," the priest reassured him.

ON JULY 31, the Quinlans, Trapasso and the hospital chaplain met with the attending physician at St. Clare's Hospital.

"It is our decision and wish that she be removed from the respirator and be returned to a natural state," Joseph Quinlan said softly.

The doctor agreed. Karen's case was hopeless. The Quinlans said he told them, "I think you've made the right decision." A release was drawn up and the Quinlans signed.

But the hospital and doctors balked. The issue became one of the most celebrated court cases in this century.

The first court ruled against the Quinlans in October.

BUT WITH THE help of an idealistic young lawyer, Paul Armstrong, they took the case to the New Jersey State Supreme court.

A front page headline in Joseph Quinlan's scrapbook sums up the court's March 31, 1976 ruling: "Court Rules Karen Can Die."

On May 22, she was taken off of the respirator. Shortly thereafter she was transferred to Morris View nursing home where she still remains, breathing on her own.

A friend of Karen's Nanette Foit, later recalled something Karen told her.

"She told us she was going to die before she was 21," Miss Foit said. "And she said she would go down in history."

UNLIKE SOME sketches in the press that depicted Karen as a sleeping beauty hooked up to a respirator, the young woman would thrash, sweat, moan and open her eyes during the coma. She lost weight and her body began to curl into a grotesque fetal position.

"When you bumped against her bed, she would jump, almost rising up into a sitting position — as though she had been struck, or was terrified of something," Mrs. Quinlan relates.

"Nobody told us that was just a reflex action. At first, every time it happened, we had hope."

As Karen's condition deteriorated, her mother's hope faded, but her father was not ready to give up. He dreamed of outfitting a camper and taking Karen to Arizona. At the hospital he would talk to Karen as if she could hear.

Mrs. Quinlan sought counsel from the parish priest for whom she worked, the Rev. Tom Trapasso.

Trapasso told her the Catholic Church maintained there was no moral obligation to prolong life artificially.

KAREN'S SISTER, Mary Ellen, 18, and brother, John, 17, also gradually came to realize that their sister's chances of coming out of the coma were nonexistent. The sight of Karen's life being prolonged by a machine pumping air through a hole in her throat pained them more than the knowledge they had lost her.

"It just seems like a cold machine," Mary Ellen says of the respirator. "And it seems more alive than Karen is."

They knew, for Karen had told them, that she would not want it that way.

Soon reality caught up with Joseph Quinlan. On a July Saturday he said to his wife, "We can go to the cemetery today and pick out a plot."

But he told Father Trapasso he was worried about playing God.

"God has made the decision that she's going to die. You're just agreeing with God's decision, that's all," the priest reassured him.

KAREN QUINLAN

ON JULY 31, the Quinlans, Trapasso and the hospital chaplain met with the attending physician at St. Clare's Hospital.

"It is our decision and wish that she be removed from the respirator and be returned to a natural state," Joseph Quinlan said softly.

The doctor agreed. Karen's case was hopeless. The Quinlans said he told them, "I think you've made the right decision." A release was drawn up and the Quinlans signed.

But the hospital and doctors balked. The issue became one of the most celebrated court cases in this century.

The first court ruled against the Quinlans in October.

BUT WITH THE help of an idealistic young lawyer, Paul Armstrong, they took the case to the New Jersey State Supreme court.

A front page headline in Joseph Quinlan's scrapbook sums up the court's March 31, 1976 ruling: "Court Rules Karen Can Die."

On May 22, she was taken off of the respirator. Shortly thereafter she was transferred to Morris View nursing home where she still remains, breathing on her own.

A friend of Karen's Nanette Foit, later recalled something Karen told her.

"She told us she was going to die before she was 21," Miss Foit said. "And she said she would go down in history."

Thompson gifts linked to immunity grants

by STEVE BROWN
Of our Springfield bureau

Gov. James R. Thompson accepted campaign contributions totaling $9,000 from six contractors who were given personal immunity in a federal case investigate while Thompson was U.S. Attorney.

Federal court records and Thompson's campaign financing reports show that six men were granted immunity in a case involving an alleged $50 million bid rigging scheme investigated by the U.S. Justice Dept. antitrust division and the U.S. Attorney's office in Chicago. Thompson headed the first six months of the probe.

Although in some cases the companies involved were indicted and fined, the six contractors received personal immunity, which keeps them from being prosecuted with their companies.

THOMPSON "HAS never accepted campaign contributions from anyone for whom he has personally approved immunity grants," a spokesman for the governor said.

During his 1976 campaign, Thompson said he would refuse to accept contributions from anyone granted personal immunity while serving as U.S. Attorney in Chicago.

Thompson's aide said the immunity grants in the bid rigging scheme do not violate that policy because they were approved through the Justice Dept.

The investigation began in 1974, but indictments were not announced until February of this year. Thompson resigned from his federal post to join a private law firm on June 30, 1975 and soon after began his gubernatorial campaign.

TWO OF THE contractors, Robert Madden of the Thomas J. Madden Co. and Peter A. Palumbo of the Palumbo Excavating Co., received their immunity grants while Thompson was U. S. Attorney, federal records show.

Dates on immunity grants for the other four, however, were not available.

The firms of Madden, who received immunity Jan. 13, 1975, and Palumbo, who received immunity Dec. 11, 1974, will go on trial Sept. 19 in connection with an alleged $45 million bid rigging scheme involving the Stevenson Expressway resurfacing project in 1975.

Other contributors include Allied Asphalt and Paving Co. of Chicago and the Robert R. Anderson Co. of Des Plaines. Both firms were convicted of bid rigging in connection with the $3.5 million runway resurfacing project at O'Hare Airport in 1974. The companies have been fined a total of $77,000.

ADDITIONAL DONATIONS came from James F. Gallagher, vice president of Gallagher Asphalt of Thornton and Milburn Bros. Construction Co. of Mount Prospect. Gallagher and William B. Salzman of Long Grove, Milburn's president, were named unindicted co-conspirators. Anderson and Milburn own Allied.

Seven other companies and nine executives involved in the three cases did not make contributions.

Campaign records show Madden and Palumbo and relatives donated $2,400. Officials of Allied and Anderson and Milburn gave $6,500 and Gallagher gave more than $1,000.

Neither the executives or their attorneys were willing to discuss the campaign contributions or the bid rigging cases.

GARY GRIFFIN, who represents Madden and Palumbo according to court records, would confirm only that he was their counsel and that his clients will go on trial on Sept. 19.

"There has already been too much publicity about the case. If you want to know more about it be in court when the trial starts," Griffin said.

Other attorneys and their clients declined to be interviewed.

Aides to Thompson said most of the campaign contributions involved the purchase of tickets to fundraising dinners.

Highway contractors, who bid on millions of dollars of state contributions each year, are traditionally large contributors to political campaigns.

The Illinois Dept. of Transportation, which administered the contracts involved in the bid rigging scheme, is under the control of the governor.

Miss America begins year-long whirlwind reign

• Ohio's Susan Perkins, a 23-year-old beauty with political ambitions embarked Sunday on her year-long reign as Miss America 1978. "It's just wonderful. I felt numb most of the evening," she said after her Saturday night crowning. Miss Perkins is 5 feet, 6 inches tall, weighs 105 pounds, has light brown hair and brown eyes. Her measurements are 34-24-35. Miss America's first week will include picture-taking sessions with another winner of a different breed, the racehorse Seattle Slew, a shopping spree in New York, an appearance in Philadelphia on the Mike Douglas Show and a taping in Los Angeles for the Donny and Marie Osmond show.

More bloodshed with Frisco's Chinese gangs

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Two Chinese youths were shot, one fatally, in a gang-style street attack Sunday in retaliation for a Chinatown restaurant massacre that claimed five lives exactly one week before.

Police said the dead youth, Michael Lee, 20, and his critically wounded companion, Mark "Lo" Chan, 18, ambushed in a 12-shot barrage, were associated with the gang blamed for the Sept. 4 massacre in a fight for dominance of Chinatown crime.

Both were blasted by shotguns about 1:45 a.m. in front of the home where Chan lives with his sister and grandmother in the middle-class Richmond District about eight miles from Chinatown.

TWO SLENDER orientals were suspected of the shooting. Witnesses said they were seen fleeing around the corner into a waiting car after the attack.

Police Chief Charles Gain told a news conference Sunday the city would offer a $10,000 reward for information about the ambush. A $25,000 reward already has been offered for information about the restaurant massacre in an attempt to break Chinatown's "code of silence."

Police said they were operating on the belief the latest violence, which has hurt tourist business badly in Chinatown, was revenge by the Wah Ching gang, composed of recent Hong Kong immigrants, against the established San Francisco Joe Boys gang.

Lt. Daniel Murphy, head of a gangland task force announced by Gain at the news conference, said three shotguns and a .22-caliber rifle were found in Chan's bedroom.

Millions killed in Cambodia since 1975: ex-president

HONOLULU (UPI) — Former Cambodian President Lon Nol, quoting refugees and sources in his nation, said Sunday more than 2.5 million persons have died violent deaths in Cambodia since the Khmer Rouge conquered the country 28 months ago.

In an interview at his home in Hawaii, where he has been living in exile since the communist takeover, Lon Nol blamed Prince Sihanouk "for our tragedy, because he refused our pleas to return home during the 1970 revolution and help us drive the Vietnamese out of Cambodia. On the contrary, he led the Vietnamese who were fighting against Cambodia."

Lon Nol, 64, was skeptical of Bangkok reports that the Khmer Rouge and Vietnamese troops had fought border skirmishes.

"Perhaps," he said, speaking through his teen-aged son interpreter, "the reports of fighting amongst the Khmer Rouge themselves have been misinterpreted as battles between Cambodia and Vietnamese soldiers."

LON NOL SAID he had received several reports of Khmer Route soldiers being shot and killed by other Khmer Rouge units, probably because of fears by the present government that they were wavering in their loyalty.

"But I have received no reports of any border clashes, and because the Cambodians are so dependent today upon the Vietnamese for their very existence, it seems highly unlikely that the Cambodians would have the affrontery to bite the hand that has been feeding them," he said.

The former revolutionary, whose three brothers were killed in the five-year war, lives in a newly built frame house in rural Oahu with eight of his children. His second eldest daughter, with her husband and three children, disappeared when Phnom Penh fell April 17, 1975.

Anti-busing demonstrators rammed by auto

A car rammed into a crowd of more than 1,000 anti-busing demonstrators in Chicago Sunday night, injuring three people. Police said they arrested five people, including the driver of the car, and dispersed the demonstrators.

As the demonstration at a Southwest Side park grew from an orderly rally to unruliness, police from two districts were called. Four persons were arrested.

A police spokesman said the demonstration was dispersed within an hour of the first reports of trouble.

Sgt. Robert Malone said a hit-and-run driver rammed the crowd during the demonstration. The driver was arrested later.

The three injured persons were taken to Holy Cross Hospital, where a spokesman said their injuries were not believed to be serious.

ceremony was a tie. "Eleanor and Franklin: The White House Years" and "Sybil" were the victors. The award was presented by a giant in his own right, Alfred Hitchcock.

"Roots" won the emmy for the best limited series.

Beaulah Bondi, the 85-year-old character actress, won the Emmy for outstanding lead actress in a single drama performance in the "Pony Cart" episode of "The Waltons" series.

Best supporting actresses in a comedy series were Gary Burghoff, "Radar" in the "M-A-S-H" series, and Mary Kay Place, "Loretta" in "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman."

GARY FRANK won best continuing performance by a supporting actor in a drama series for "Family," and co-star Kristy McNichol won for best supporting actress in that category.

Actor-writer Alan Alda won the Emmy for outstanding directing in a comedy series for his work in the "Dear Sigmund" episode of "M-A-S-H."

Lance position becoming more precarious

and Senate forecast gains at the polls because of the Lance affair. Interviewed by NBC, Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, and Rep. John Rhodes of Arizona, said the controversy would help Republicans capture at least 40 seats in the House in 1978.

THE LANCE matter coupled with other actions by the President gave the GOP more election issues "than you can really say grace over and we intend to utilize them to the greatest extent," Rhodes said.

In Detroit, a panel of five governors said the Lance controversy clouded the administration's credibility. Gov. Pierre duPont, a Republican, called for resignation, saying Carter promised ethical government and now has "muffed the hot grounder when it came to him."

Interviewed on NBC-TV's Meet the Press at the conclusion of the National Governors Association, Georgia Gov. George Busbee, a Democrat who defeated Lance in the state's 1974 governor's contest, said the administration was "really being hurt" by the controversy.

New Mexico Gov. Jerry Apodaca and West Virginia Gov. Jay Rockefeller, Democrats, and Michigan's Republican Gov. William G. Milliken agreed.

"THIS WEEK will be decision week, because this sort of thing can't go on any longer," Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said on CBS-TV's Face the Nation.

The Senate Governmental Affairs Committee resumes hearings on the Lance matter Monday. Attorney Clark Clifford, counseling Lance, denied Lance would face the committee, explain his dealings and resign Thursday.

"I know that Mr. Lance has not made any such decision," Clifford told the Washington Star. "He feels that he has committed no illegality and, in his opinion, no impropriety . . . I believe it is absolutely incorrect that a decision has been made."

Lance won't resign: Billy Carter

OEDESSA, Mo. (UPI) — Billy Carter says Budget Director Bert Lance will not resign because of the controversy about his dealings as a Georgia banker.

"Bert told me he won't resign," the President's younger brother said during the weekend. "He may be fired, but he won't resign."

He described Lance as "the best man in Washington" and said, "If I had to take my choice between Bert and Jimmy, I'd have a hell of a choice."

The first brother from Plains, Ga., said he does not believe the President's popularity is slipping because of the Lance affair. Billy said in his travels around the country he has found that 90 per cent of the people are for the budget director.

He also said that "the press" was after Lance because he was from Georgia.

Billy also was asked his definition of a good ol' girl. "I never saw a bad one," he said.

Both were blasted by shotguns about 1:45 a.m. in front of the home where Chan lives with his sister and grandmother in the middle-class Richmond District about eight miles from Chinatown.

TWO SLENDER orientals were suspected of the shooting. Witnesses said they were seen fleeing around the corner into a waiting car after the attack.

Police Chief Charles Gain told a news conference Sunday the city would offer a $10,000 reward for information about the ambush. A $25,000 reward already has been offered for information about the restaurant massacre in an attempt to break Chinatown's "code of silence."

Police said they were operating on the belief the latest violence, which has hurt tourist business badly in Chinatown, was revenge by the Wah Ching gang, composed of recent Hong Kong immigrants, against the established San Francisco Joe Boys gang.

Lt. Daniel Murphy, head of a gangland task force announced by Gain at the news conference, said three shotguns and a .22-caliber rifle were found in Chan's bedroom.

Millions killed in Cambodia since 1975: ex-president

HONOLULU (UPI) — Former Cambodian President Lon Nol, quoting refugees and sources in his nation, said Sunday more than 2.5 million persons have died violent deaths in Cambodia since the Khmer Rouge conquered the country 28 months ago.

In an interview at his home in Hawaii, where he has been living in exile since the communist takeover, Lon Nol blamed Prince Sihanouk "for our tragedy, because he refused our pleas to return home during the 1970 revolution and help us drive the Vietnamese out of Cambodia. On the contrary, he led the Vietnamese who were fighting against Cambodia."

Lon Nol, 64, was skeptical of Bangkok reports that the Khmer Rouge and Vietnamese troops had fought border skirmishes.

"Perhaps," he said, speaking through his teen-aged son interpreter, "the reports of fighting amongst the Khmer Rouge themselves have been misinterpreted as battles between Cambodia and Vietnamese soldiers."

LON NOL SAID he had received several reports of Khmer Route soldiers being shot and killed by other Khmer Rouge units, probably because of fears by the present government that they were wavering in their loyalty.

"But I have received no reports of any border clashes, and because the Cambodians are so dependent today upon the Vietnamese for their very existence, it seems highly unlikely that the Cambodians would have the affrontery to bite the hand that has been feeding them," he said.

The former revolutionary, whose three brothers were killed in the five-year war, lives in a newly built frame house in rural Oahu with eight of his children. His second eldest daughter, with her husband and three children, disappeared when Phnom Penh fell April 17, 1975.

Anti-busing demonstrators rammed by auto

A car rammed into a crowd of more than 1,000 anti-busing demonstrators in Chicago Sunday night, injuring three people. Police said they arrested five people, including the driver of the car, and dispersed the demonstrators.

As the demonstration at a Southwest Side park grew from an orderly rally to unruliness, police from two districts were called. Four persons were arrested.

A police spokesman said the demonstration was dispersed within an hour of the first reports of trouble.

Sgt. Robert Malone said a hit-and-run driver rammed the crowd during the demonstration. The driver was arrested later.

The three injured persons were taken to Holy Cross Hospital, where a spokesman said their injuries were not believed to be serious.

ceremony was a tie. "Eleanor and Franklin: The White House Years" and "Sybil" were the victors. The award was presented by a giant in his own right, Alfred Hitchcock.

"Roots" won the emmy for the best limited series.

Beaulah Bondi, the 85-year-old character actress, won the Emmy for outstanding lead actress in a single drama performance in the "Pony Cart" episode of "The Waltons" series.

Best supporting actresses in a comedy series were Gary Burghoff, "Radar" in the "M-A-S-H" series, and Mary Kay Place, "Loretta" in "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman."

GARY FRANK won best continuing performance by a supporting actor in a drama series for "Family," and co-star Kristy McNichol won for best supporting actress in that category.

Actor-writer Alan Alda won the Emmy for outstanding directing in a comedy series for his work in the "Dear Sigmund" episode of "M-A-S-H."

Lance position becoming more precarious

and Senate forecast gains at the polls because of the Lance affair. Interviewed by NBC, Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, and Rep. John Rhodes of Arizona, said the controversy would help Republicans capture at least 40 seats in the House in 1978.

THE LANCE matter coupled with other actions by the President gave the GOP more election issues "than you can really say grace over and we intend to utilize them to the greatest extent," Rhodes said.

In Detroit, a panel of five governors said the Lance controversy clouded the administration's credibility. Gov. Pierre duPont, a Republican, called for resignation, saying Carter promised ethical government and now has "muffed the hot grounder when it came to him."

Interviewed on NBC-TV's Meet the Press at the conclusion of the National Governors Association, Georgia Gov. George Busbee, a Democrat who defeated Lance in the state's 1974 governor's contest, said the administration was "really being hurt" by the controversy.

New Mexico Gov. Jerry Apodaca and West Virginia Gov. Jay Rockefeller, Democrats, and Michigan's Republican Gov. William G. Milliken agreed.

"THIS WEEK will be decision week, because this sort of thing can't go on any longer," Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said on CBS-TV's Face the Nation.

The Senate Governmental Affairs Committee resumes hearings on the Lance matter Monday. Attorney Clark Clifford, counseling Lance, denied Lance would face the committee, explain his dealings and resign Thursday.

"I know that Mr. Lance has not made any such decision," Clifford told the Washington Star. "He feels that he has committed no illegality and, in his opinion, no impropriety . . . I believe it is absolutely incorrect that a decision has been made."

Lance won't resign: Billy Carter

OEDESSA, Mo. (UPI) — Billy Carter says Budget Director Bert Lance will not resign because of the controversy about his dealings as a Georgia banker.

"Bert told me he won't resign," the President's younger brother said during the weekend. "He may be fired, but he won't resign."

He described Lance as "the best man in Washington" and said, "If I had to take my choice between Bert and Jimmy, I'd have a hell of a choice."

The first brother from Plains, Ga., said he does not believe the President's popularity is slipping because of the Lance affair. Billy said in his travels around the country he has found that 90 per cent of the people are for the budget director.

He also said that "the press" was after Lance because he was from Georgia.

Billy also was asked his definition of a good ol' girl. "I never saw a bad one," he said.

2 area Republicans plan to campaign for state posts

SPRINGFIELD — Two suburban Republicans, Mrs. Sharon Sharp of Arlington Heights and State Sen. Bradley Glass, R-Northfield, have jumped into campaigns for election to statewide office in 1978.

Mrs. Sharp, Cook County Republican chairwoman and Elk Grove Township clerk, will be on a six-city fly-around today after breakfast with downstate GOP leaders in Carbondale to announce she will seek the party nomination for secretary of state.

Sharon Sharp

Glass, an assistant minority leader in the Illinois Senate, announced Sunday he will run for state treasurer. He drew endorsements from former U.S. Sec. of Defense Donald Rumsfeld, former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie and George Burditt, who campaigned for the U.S. Senate in 1974.

SHARP IS THE only Republican who has indicated an interest in running against Sec. of State Alan J. Dixon next year.

Glass joins Champaign County GOP Chairman James M. Skelton in the Republican field for the state treasurer's post. Several other Republicans, including Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey are considering that position.

Glass said he has talked with Skelton about the possibilty that one might switch to the comptroller's race.

Rumsfeld's announcement in Glass' campaign is the first public political involvement for the former Ford and Nixon administration official since he left government in January. Rumsfeld served as the congressman for the suburbs during the late 1960s and has been mentioned as a possible candidate for a host of offices himself.

Bradley Glass

Rumsfeld is president of the G.D. Searle Co., a drug manufacturing firm based in Skokie.

Glass said he sees no problem with the party having two candidates from Cook County on the ticket, but added there should be at least one other downstater, besides Lt. Gov. Dave O'Neal from Belleville, on the Republican ticket.

Sports liability—an expensive game that has no winners

ity insurance.

• Costs of product liability are being passed on directly to consumers, a factor manufacturers admit could progressively price financially-strapped school districts and independent leagues out of some sports — particularly football.

Product liability is a concept which has brought a flood of lawsuits against manufacturers and knuckled many to their knees within the past year under the pressure of multi-million dollar judgments and unaffordable insurance premiums. But the crisis threatens to have far greater impact, a two-month study by Daily Herald reporter Toni Ginnetti has found. Those findings and what they mean to sports players and sports fans alike are the subject of this special four-part series.

• The cost of a football helmet, now averaging about $40, could climb to as much as $100 soon because of product liability, industry spokesmen warn. The Sporting Goods Representatives Assn. in Morton Grove says the figure eventually could go as high as $300.

• No statute of limitations exists in product liability law, meaning a manufacturer is held responsible for a product regardless of how long it has been in use or if it has been misused.

Manufacturers in the past year have voiced superlatives to describe the severity of the product liability issue. In the sporting goods industry, the situation is considered so critical that representatives are sounding death-knell warnings.

Howard J. Bruns, president of the Sporting Goods Manufacturing Assn., told a national product liability conference last fall that the percentage of profits to sales in the sporting goods industry have dropped in half in three years, from 5.2 per cent in 1973 to 2.6 per cent in 1975 — a direct result of product liability.

SO CONCERNED with product liability is Bruns' Sporting Goods Manufacturers Assn. that in mid-1976 it formed the Multi-Assn. Action Committee for Product Liability Reform, a league that has drawn more than 3 million members representing all types of manufacturing interests.

The league's first conference last fall drew 119 industry heads to Washington D.C. where the Senate Select Committee On Small Business was holding simultaneous public hearings on product liability.

"I would say the product liability problem has reached crisis proportions, especially for the football helmet industry," says Karen Bastic, director of the Des Plaines-based MAAC. "People are not able to get insurance because of the unavailability of insurance."

NO COMPANY has experienced the impact of a single lawsuit more vividly than Riddell, Inc. in Des Plaines. Riddell had sought to appeal the decision awarding $5.3 million in the Stead case, but the firm's insurance company, American Home Insurance instead chose to settle, according to James F. Rogers, senior vice president with Riddell.

The case speaks dramatically to the product liability dilemma.

Stead was said to have been wearing Riddell's model TK2 helmet, one of five made by the company, which supplies helmets for 90 per cent of the pro teams, 70 per cent of the colleges and countless high school and independent junior leagues.

BUT THE TRIAL never proved that the boy was in fact wearing a Riddell helmet. "The plaintiff could not prove it was our helmet," Rogers says.

But Riddell was held liable, and the result has been costly on all fronts.

Insurance costs for Riddell have skyrocketed. Two years ago the company paid a $50,000 premium for $1 million in coverage, Rogers says. Last year the premium rose to $400,000 and this year the company was asked to pay $1.1 million for the same $1 million coverage.

"We are now self insured for primary coverage," Rogers says. At least two other helmet manufacturers also are self-insured, he says. But six of the helmet industry's 13 manufacturers could not afford the self-insurance risks and within the last year have gone out of business. Only seven companies remain.

PRODUCT LIABILITY risks even prompted sporting goods dealers in Ohio to consider discontinuing marketing football helmets for fear they could be named a party to a lawsuit, Rogers says.

The figures that speak to product liability risks are staggering.

The helmet industry has gross sales of about $16 million to $18 million, Rogers says. Net profits from that are about $1 million. But there are about 70 lawsuits totalling about $150 million in damages currently pending against the industry, he says. "That's 150 times the net profits."

The same kind of dilemma faces the gymnastics industry, says Robert Bevenour, executive vice president of Nissen, Inc., Cedar Rapids, Iowa, a leading manufacturer of gymnastics equipment, including trampolines.

BEVENOUR SAYS trampolines account for about 10 per cent of Nissen's business and the company is continuing to manufacture the apparatus. "But it would be impossible for us to increase our selling price enough to cover the added cost (of product liability) and still be competitive, so we've been forced to go without insurance," he says.

FOR THE CONSUMER, product liability has meant ever increasing costs.

Riddell's helmets currently range in price from $35 to $50, "but I will not be surprised to see a $100 football helmet in the next couple years," Rogers says.

It is that kind of projection that amplifies the threat industry observers foresee in football. As the costs increase, smaller school districts — already under inflationary cost pressures — will be unable to afford the higher prices, Rogers says. That in turn will reduce the helmet market, driving up the costs again and then impacting medium-sized school districts, he says.

THE SPIRAL could continue so that "only the rich will be able to play," Rogers says.

The cost factors are tied to what has been called "the deep pocket theory," one in which juries will reason that a manufacturer can afford big judgments because he is insured. Manufacturers, however, are not permitted to tell juries if they are not covered by insurance.

"We feel that the problem is severe," Rogers says. "The courts cite the failure to warn as one thing in product liability. It goes to the point in football helmets that a coach could tell a kid not to run into a brick wall with the helmet because it's not designed for that.

"PRODUCT LIABILITY is one of the absurb laws. We go through all our schooling learning we're innocent until proven guilty, but product liability is just the opposite."

For all the concern product liability has generated in the sports world, however, the issue has not taken fire publicly. Ms. Bastic says the industry has had little success until now generating interest in the problem and that in turn is hurting attempts to bring about public support for solutions.

"Surprisingly the general consumer and user of our products are unaware of the problem," Rogers adds. "Generally the reaction we get is 'we didn't think it was this bad.'"

But the industry insists it is bad, "undoubtedly" the biggest problem facing the industry.

"There are indications that football as we know it might be phased out," Rogers says. "It could happen."

Probe Thompson patronage: union

William Hardy, executive director of the Illinois State Employes Union, has called for an investigation into patronage hiring practices by the Thompson administration. "I think somebody should be looking into this practice in the state of Illinois because it's shameful that an administration can come in and not fill needed positions or can hire people who have no specific talent for the job they are hired for," Hardy said in an interview.

Referring to Republican Party workers hired to measure bridges in the state, Hardy said, "You know and I know they are doing purely political work and then to turn around to make Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Taxpayer pay for it is absolutely dishonest." Hardy said the Illinois Department of Transportation informed his office that statistics were already available on bridges being measured.

Fugitives from Menard captured

An intensive ground and air search netted the capture Sunday of two Menard Corrections Center fugitives who walked away from the prison honor farm Thursday. Randolph County sheriff's police and Illinois State Police captured Terry McMullin, 29, and Terry Schmidt, 24, at Prairie du Rocher, about 10 miles from the prison, a prison spokesman said. McMullin had been serving a 5-10 year sentence for armed robbery in Ogle County. Schmidt had been serving 2-6 years for burglary in Kane County. The spokesman said the two were picked up while hiding in a box car on a Missouri Pacific freight train.

Drag strip spectator killed

Ronald Glover, 15, a spectator at the Alton Speedway drag strip, was struck and killed Saturday by one of the racing cars as he left the grandstand during the race to walk across the track. Glover, Bridgeton, was hit by a car driven by Richard W. Rice, 35, Carlinville. Rice sustained minor injuries in a chain reaction crash that resulted.

Driver test office hours will change

Driver testing and license offices in Cook County will be open from noon to 8 p.m. Mondays, starting Oct. 3, Secretary of State Alan J. Dixon said. Tuesday through Friday, hours will be 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The number of applicants for drivers licenses has increased by as much as 120 per cent since the introduction of photo licenses and identification, Dixon said.

After Jan. 1, 1978, drivers whose licenes expire will have to go to a testing station to obtain a new license with a photo. Until Jan. 1, renewal licienses are available with, or without a piciture. A drivers testing station is located in the Northwest suburbs at 1229 Golf Rd., Schaumburg.

Stevenson crash kills 2 brothers

Two young brothers were killed and five persons were injured early Sunday in a two-car collision on the Stevenson Expressway. State police said Jessie Smith, 11, and his brother Myron, 15, both of Chicago, were pinned in the rear of their car and burned beyond recognition when it burst into flames. The boys' father, who was driving, two sisters and a step sister escaped with only minor burns and abrasions, police said. The driver of the other car, Elmer L. Burroughs, 23, LaGrange, was hospitalized for minor abrasions and was released.

Thoughts on a Mattress

Poem: Back-ache Blues*

Once upon a midnight sleeping
Suddenly I woke up weeping.
Something happened in my mattress
To disturb my night's repose.
While I rested nearly napping.
Suddenly there came a snapping
As the springs unleashed their zapping
Every time I tried to doze.

Why is this mattress getting bumpy?
Why the surface worn and lumpy?
Could it be because I've used it
Every night for twenty years?
Maybe I should buy a new one
To replace this ancient ruin.
Could the Schaumburg Mattress factory
Drive away my back-ache tears?

Morning found me weak and worried.
To the Factory I hurried.
Bought a mattress and a box spring
To relieve my back-ache blues.
Now I sleep with blissful ease.
No more back-ache memories.
Now I know why Schaumburg Mattress
Well deserves its rave reviews.

Pets lead dog's life; death brings cemetery burial

Mrs. George Shaw gazed toward the ground under the tree.

"If I didn't think that dog had a soul, I couldn't have loved him so much," she said. "He had a soul. You could see it in his eyes."

She pulled her purse up onto her lap and opened it, pulling out a couple of snapshots. They were color pictures of a dog in a long casket, the shroud pulled up to its neck.

"It's been four months yesterday since he died," Mrs. shaw said. "It seems like four years."

Her husband leaned his cane against the bench and reached for the photographs. Eleven years ago, he bought Prince from a friend who owned a tavern.

NOW, HE AND HIS wife come to the Illinois Pet Cemetery near Hanover Park once a week to relax under the shade tree and to visit the grave.

They had loved Prince.

He had been a faithful dog. He had helped them into their retirement years. He ddn't grow up and get married and move away. He didn't care if they were rich or poor or old or young.

"LISTEN," SHAW said. "I'm not all that religious a man, but spell dog backwards, and what does it spell?"

They live in Norway, Ill., a small rural town in LaSalle County, but Shaw doesn't think the weekly trips to the cemetery are too far. It is "only 50 miles" each way, he said.

They come and look at the spot where Prince is buried and where Ziggie, another of their dogs, was buried about 30 years ago. And they think about him, about how Prince had had so much trouble climbing stairs that they moved into a house that was all ground level.

AND THEY TALK about buying a tombstone for the grave, and Mrs. Shaw shows Michael Bloze a photograph of the dog to see if Bloze thinks it would be appropriate for the marker. Bloze owns the pet cemetery.

His father, Michael Bloze Sr., started it in 1926 in Hinsdale after he had seen one in France during World War I. He was killed in an auto accident in 1930 and it was Bloze's mother, Marie, who began the one south of Hanover Park on Jefferson Road and ran it until she died a few years ago.

"My mother started it at 22, and she ran it until she was 64, and this was her life," Bloze recalls. "She made it work. It was her life."

THERE ARE MORE than 8,000 pets buried here. Most are dogs, although there also is a large number of cats and a few monkeys and parakeets and chickens and rabbits as well.

Many of the graves have no markers, although Bloze has a roster showing where each pet is located. Tombstones range from the simple, "Napoleon, 1958-1974," to those that include the family name and inscriptions, "Our Little Buddy" or "Gone But Not Forgotten."

The designs on most of the stones were created by Mrs. Bloze. She too came up with the idea of including baked ceramic porcelain photos of the pets on many of the markers.

THE OLDER PART of the cemetery includes the eight-grave sections. Customers can only purchase multiple plots there. One woman, who is now deceased, buried 50 pets there. Another has buried 38.

"Pets are not that long a span in a person's life, but while they're there, it's that special companionship back and forth," Bloze said. "It's in the hearts of the people. They have to bury a human, but you don't have to bury a pet."

Most burials cost about $120, not including the price of the tombstone. The animals are not embalmed, but they usually are buried in lamb-cloth baby caskets with plastic or cement vaults that are hermetically sealed.

"People want to be buried here too," Bloze says. "We get this all the time, that a woman will want to be cremated and buried with her pet."

IT IS AN OPTION that is not publicized, but the cemetery has buried the remains of 11 persons.

However, they must be cremated before burial and tombstones can say no more than the last name.

It is an option that the Shaws have considered. At the moment, Mrs. Shaw said, they plan to do it.

Shaw is 67 and a semi-retired chef. They are too old, he said, to get another dog. They just could not adjust their lives to another one.

BUT IT IS HARD to forget Prince.

Near the end, the dog had had kidney problems and arthritis. Then the antibodies started affecting his heart. He wouldn't even eat.

On the last three days of his life, Mrs. Shaw said, Prince couldn't walk. They had to carry him in a blanket each night from the yard into the house.

So finally, they had him put to sleep. They brought him out to the cemetery, and Bloze placed him in a casket. Then he and his son carried the box up the hill to the burial plot, the Bloze's two dogs following respectfully, almost like pall bearers.

They opened the casket for one last look and then put it into the ground. Few words were spoken. They weren't needed.

Now Shaw and his wife have moved to a new home. It is a good home but there is an emptiness to it.

When they moved, they brought along all of Prince's toys.

"We don't know what to do with them," Shaw said. "We don't want to get rid of them."

ELEVEN YEARS AGO, Mr. and Mrs. George Shaw bought a dog named Prince from a friend. The dog was a faithful friend to the Shaws for all those years. Four weeks ago, Prince died and was buried in the Illinois Pet Cemetery near Hanover Park. The Shaws come to the cemetery once a week to visit the dog's grave. "It's been four months yesterday since he died," Mrs. Shaw said. "It seems like four years."

Burned about blackouts

Lake County residents tired of candlelight dinners

by NANCY GOTLER

Marla Brody and her neighbors are getting used to candlelight dinners and eating meals out, but the Buffalo Grove residents aren't happy about it.

It is the result of six power outages in their Lake County Strathmore subdivision in the past month, leaving half-cooked dinners in the oven and making eating by candlelight an annoying necessity.

"It happens mostly at night when we're having dinner," said Mrs. Brody, 871 Shady Grove Ln. "So now we keep a full supply of candles and flashlight batteries in the house."

BUT FOR SOME residents, the malfunctioning electrical cables, which have been out of order from three to seven hours, are more than an inconvenience.

Three weeks ago burned-out cables affected telephone service in the area for seven hours, leaving Dr. Jerry Seckler, 870 Silver Rock Ln., cut off from his patients.

Gordon Baer, a Commonwealth Edison representative, said that power outage was caused by lightning striking underground electrical cables.

But five other blackouts are the result of deteriorating cables, he said, 50,000 feet of which have been replaced in the neighborhood during the past year.

"USUALLY CABLES last 50 to 100 years," he said. "But this was some of the earliest underground cables of this type ever used." They were installed eight years ago and Baer said the replacement has cost "tens of thousands of dollars." He would not be more specific about the price.

He said as sections of cable fail they are replaced, but that until they malfunction nothing will be done.

Meanwhile, residents of the area wait for what they think inevitably will be another power failure.

"We're afraid to go out and leave the air conditioning on because if the power goes out and comes back on while we're gone it can really blow the unit," Mrs. Brody said.

AND DR SECKLER and his wife, Madelyn, are considering buying a $1,000 private generator.

But most of all they fear the problem will persist this winter.

"If we have a winter as severe as the last one, every time this happens we'll be without heat for hours," Mrs. Brody said. "With the high cost of electric bills we think we should have better service than that."

Village to review taxi fare hikes

Requests for fare increases by both taxicab companies operating in Arlington Heights will be reviewed today by the village board.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Arlington City Cab Co., owned by Robert Birks, has asked permission to charge $1.50 for the first mile of a ride, 80 cents for each additional mile and $8 per hour waiting time.

Arlington Best Cab Co., owned by Chuck Kolls, has asked to charge 75 cents as the initial cost for each ride and then 75 cents for the first one-fifth of a mile and 25 cents for each additional one-third mile. Kolls wants to charge $7.50 per hour for waiting time.

Current rates set by the village are $1.30 for the first mile and 70 cents for each additional mile with waiting time set at $6 per hour.

THE FARE INCREASES have been reguested despite action taken by the village board at its last meeting to deregulate taxi fares beginning Jan. 1. Village Pres. James T. Ryan has not signed that measure, although it can become law without his signature.

Ryan and Village Trustee Frank Palmatier objected to the proposal eliminating the village's power to set taxicab rates, saying the law may cause large rate increases by the existing companies and not foster increased competition as its proponents believe.

Ryan also objected because he said deregulation could endanger participation of the two local taxicab companies in the village's subsidized taxi program for senior citizens.

Kolls already has said he plans to drop out of the program because the company and its drivers are losing money by staying in the program. Senior citizens pay 50 cents for each ride and the village pays a $1 subsidy in the program.

However, the Crane proposal would require the acquisition of approximately 40,000 square feet of land plus a 70 foot wide passageway leading to Campbell Street. The acquisition would include the Dunton Court Shopping Center, a dental clinic, the Cake Box bakery, an optometrist's building and part of the Ben Franklin store.

Crane's offer minus the land acquisition costs would amount to approximately $200,000.

The Gottlieb team has offered the village $250,000 for the site, which is now a municipal parking lot, plus $25,000 for each additional floor above the five-story building it now is considering. The village's zoning codes allow buildings as tall as nine stories.

"The biggest disadvantage of this (Gottlieb's) scheme is the width of the parcel of only 99 feet which is suitable for an office building, but rather narrow for a regular enclosed shopping mall. Such a mall would be unsuitable for a major tenant such as a department store," the planning department's report states.

The report also compares the tax benefits of the two proposals. The Gottlieb team's proposal would provide the village with about $53,000 a year in tax benefits and the Crane proposal would produce about $192,000 a year.

"It is possible that a larger mall with a greater pulling power will attract customers now going to Randhurst and Woodfield, thus keeping Arlington Heights' money at home and increasing the total sales and service to a higher level than was assumed in our sales tax computations," the report states. However, the rental of the entire retail area proposed by the Crane team could be difficult if a major department store did not locate there, the report adds.

"While the Crane proposal is more desirable, we know from meetings with the owner of Dunton Court that their property is not for sale and that they are not interested in becoming part of the project. Condemnation of the additional properties as listed would be costly and time consuming," the report states, in recommending the Gottlieb team's proposal.

The timetable proposed by Gottlieb calls for final plans to be submitted within one year with the village transfering the property to the developer by Feb. 1979.

Canal 'defenseless as newborn baby'

The Panama Canal is defenseless "as a newborn baby" from lone saboteur and major power alike, Panamanian strongman Gen. Omar Torrjos said in an interview published Sunday. "The only thing that would guarantee its safety is to tell all the countries of the world that they can transit freely and without discrimination 24 hours a day, 365 days a year," Torrijos said in a copyrighted interview with U.S. News & World Report. "Then no power would want to attack. "Definitely the canal cannot be defended," he said. Warnings of the canal's vulnerability already have been used by the Carter administration in its uphill effort to win Senate confirmation of the canal agreement. "It is as indefensible as a newborn baby," Torrijos said. "It cannot be defended against a large power, nor can it be defended against a single saboteur."

Earlier in the day, Ronald Reagan predicted that if the United States ratifies the treaties the Panamanian government would seize control just as Egypt took the Suez Canal from the British and French. Reagan noted that the agreement calls for gradual phasing out of American control by the year 2,000 but he said the Panamanian negotiators were not the same "handshaking men of good will" as the American side. "No country has ever observed the terms of a treaty if it suited its national purposes to break that treaty," Reagan said.

Arafat warns of Mideast peace

Guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat has rejected a U.S. proposal to set up an unarmed Palestinian homeland and warned no Middle East settlement is possible "without the Palestinian rifle," a spokesman said Sunday. Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, also said he would never pull his gunmen out of south Lebanon, the official of the PLO news agency WAFA said in Beirut. "The only order I give is for fighting and fighting," he quoted Arafat as saying.

Breadless Britons steal for dough

Breadless Britons waited in long lines at family-owned bakeries Sunday or made their own loaves at home to cope with a strike by most of the nation's bakers. Some irate customers even resorted to stealing the now pecious foodstuff. Shoppers prowled the few stores still selling bread after 57,000 bakery workers launched a nationwide strike Saturday over a public holiday pay dispute. Thieves struck at one bakery in Leatherhead, smashing a $342 plate glass window and making off with three loaves of bread worth $1.18.

Disputes flared in other areas of business as well, with trouble brewing in the automobile and shipping industries. The Ford motor company offered its 53,000 workers pay increases of less than 10 per cent in the face of demands for a 15 per cent raise. An inter-union row also threatened a serious conflict throughout Britain's shipyards. The trouble stemmed from the intention of the state-owned firm of British Shipbuilders to recognize wage bargaining from the small Ship Building and Allied Industries Management Association, despite protests from the more powerful Confederation of Shipbuilding and Engineering Unions.

German kidnap demands received

The kidnapers of a prominent West Germany industrialist sent a message with "precise demands and deadlines" to the government late Saturday — the first contact in more than 36 hours, a go-between in Genea said Sunday. Denis Payot, a Swiss lawyer asked by Bonn to help negotiate the release of Hanns-Martin Schleyer, said he received a message which "contained the elements which left no doubt that it was from the kidnapers." Payot would not say what the demands were. Schleyer, 62, is a member of the board of the Daimler-Benz, manufacturers of the Mercedes Benz. Five persons wielding submachine-guns kidnaped him in Cologne last Monday.

Kidnap suspects caught after hostage released

NEWTON, N.C. (UPI) — Two suspects in the $150,000 kidnaping of a Tennessee banker's daughter were captured Sunday when a highway patrol cruiser smashed into their stationwagon soon after the hostage was released unharmed.

Police said more than $148,000 of the ransom paid for Annette Adams, 19, had been recovered following the arrests of Wayne Garrity, 29, and Shelby Ann Baker, 28, of Statesville, N.C.

They were arrested at Hickory, N.C., when the police cruiser sped into a motel parking lot and rammed their station wagon into a large trash bin.

Edgar Best, agent in charge of the Charlotte FBI office, said the two would be arraigned before a U.S. Magistrate in Charlotte on charges of kidnaping the Vanderbilt University coed.

Miss Adams was dragged screaming into a stolen car as she was leaving a fraternity party on the university's Nashville, Tenn., campus Thursday night.

THE SUSPECTS were captured agout six hours after Miss Adams was released by her abductors outside a motel at Morganton, about 20 miles west of Hickory.

"That's what I get for being a nice guy," Garrity growled. "I should have tied her to a tree and put a piece of tape over her mouth.

"That old Chevy wouldn't do but about 80. I looked in my rear view mirror one time and all I could see was highlway patrol cars spinning around in the road."

Miss Adams, daughter of Maryville, Tenn., bank president W. C. "Billy" Adams, was seized outside the Sigma Nu fraternity house at Nashville at 8:50 p.m. Thursday.

Her parents arranged for the ransom drop in Knoxville, Tenn., Saturday night during the cover of heavy traffic that followed the Tennessee-California football game, and she was rleased at 3:40 a.m. Sunday.

FEDERAL AUTHORITIES asked for and received cooperation for news agencies to stifle the story because of alleged threats from the kidnapers that Miss Adams would be killed if authorities were notified of the kidnaping.

Miss Adams was tearfully reunited with her parents at Morganton, and then returned to her Maryville home with them following questioning by the FBI.

"They hever threatened me," she said. "I was blindfolded most of the time, but could generally tell where I was by leaks in the blindfold."

prayer alone. His experience taught him that.

Pettee's wife Jean was eight months pregnant in January of 1974 when she went into convulsions in their home at 277 Martha St.

Because the home was located in unincorporated Elk Grove Township, Pettee was not eligible for normal village fire protection.

Although he contracted with the Roselle Fire Dept. for service, he called the closer Elk Grove Village firemen for help when his wife became ill.

AN AMBULANCE was sent out by Elk Grove, but Fire Chief Allen Hulett recalled it after noticing that the Pettees had not contracted with the village for service.

Hulett transferred the call to the Roselle Fire Dept., which traveled six miles to the Pettee home and took Jean to Alexian Medical Center. She was dead on arrival.

Hulett later said transfering the call was the biggest mistake in his life, but that Pettee had never mentioned it was an emergency. Hulett is no longer fire chief.

Four months later, an attorney for Pettee filed a $6 million suit against the village.

Now Pettee, who operates an equipment supply store in Elk Grove Township, says he never really wanted $6 million from the village, and that his lawyer told him about it after filing the suit. It is expected to go to court before the year is over, he said.

LIFE HAS CHANGED for Pettee since his wife Jean's death.

"You realize that life is not a certain thing and can be taken away in a matter of minutes," he said.

He turned to religion, and is building a home and church with his 31-year-old wife of one year on 80 acres in DeKalb County.

Three of Pettee's five children from his previous marriage live with Carol and her three sons in the half-finished building, sleeping on cots and putting up with the dust and noise of construction.

The Christian Liberty and Freedom Church, which he and his wife will run out of the basement of their home, is a nondenominational organization with conservative religious and social beliefs.

Although a school will oprate out of the church and cost students $500 a year, Pettee insists that the operation will be nonprofit.

The church will be affiliated with the Christian Liberty Academy, a conservative, private school in Mount Prospect, Pettee said.

THE SCHOOL WILL teach traditional courses in reading, writing and arithmetic, and emphasize discipline lacking in public schools, Pettee said.

Religion is a source of strength for Pettee in a world he believes is on the edge of catastrophe. But he is not leaving everything up to prayer.

His new home has fire and burglar alarms hooked up to the Genoa Fire District office and the DeKalb County Sheriff's Dept.

There is a fallout shelter planned for a dark corner of the basement and a fruit cellar nearby. Solar panels on the wide side of the roof will be used to heat the home.

"We tried to build every feature in the home that we could to be ready for any foreseeable circumstance," he said.

He is convinced that a nuclear bomb will be dropped in this country in a few years.

"In the event of an emergency we could oprate out of here," he said.

"There is no such thing as certainty," he said. "I found that out. The future belongs to those who prepare for it."

Canal 'defenseless as newborn baby'

The Panama Canal is defenseless "as a newborn baby" from lone saboteur and major power alike, Panamanian strongman Gen. Omar Torrjos said in an interview published Sunday. "The only thing that would guarantee its safety is to tell all the countries of the world that they can transit freely and without discrimination 24 hours a day, 365 days a year," Torrijos said in a copyrighted interview with U.S. News & World Report. "Then no power would want to attack. "Definitely the canal cannot be defended," he said. Warnings of the canal's vulnerability already have been used by the Carter administration in its uphill effort to win Senate confirmation of the canal agreement. "It is as indefensible as a newborn baby," Torrijos said. "It cannot be defended against a large power, nor can it be defended against a single saboteur."

Earlier in the day, Ronald Reagan predicted that if the United States ratifies the treaties the Panamanian government would seize control just as Egypt took the Suez Canal from the British and French. Reagan noted that the agreement calls for gradual phasing out of American control by the year 2,000 but he said the Panamanian negotiators were not the same "handshaking men of good will" as the American side. "No country has ever observed the terms of a treaty if it suited its national purposes to break that treaty," Reagan said.

Arafat warns of Mideast peace

Guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat has rejected a U.S. proposal to set up an unarmed Palestinian homeland and warned no Middle East settlement is possible "without the Palestinian rifle," a spokesman said Sunday. Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, also said he would never pull his gunmen out of south Lebanon, the official of the PLO news agency WAFA said in Beirut. "The only order I give is for fighting and fighting," he quoted Arafat as saying.

Breadless Britons steal for dough

Breadless Britons waited in long lines at family-owned bakeries Sunday or made their own loaves at home to cope with a strike by most of the nation's bakers. Some irate customers even resorted to stealing the now pecious foodstuff. Shoppers prowled the few stores still selling bread after 57,000 bakery workers launched a nationwide strike Saturday over a public holiday pay dispute. Thieves struck at one bakery in Leatherhead, smashing a $342 plate glass window and making off with three loaves of bread worth $1.18.

Disputes flared in other areas of business as well, with trouble brewing in the automobile and shipping industries. The Ford motor company offered its 53,000 workers pay increases of less than 10 per cent in the face of demands for a 15 per cent raise. An inter-union row also threatened a serious conflict throughout Britain's shipyards. The trouble stemmed from the intention of the state-owned firm of British Shipbuilders to recognize wage bargaining from the small Ship Building and Allied Industries Management Association, despite protests from the more powerful Confederation of Shipbuilding and Engineering Unions.

German kidnap demands received

The kidnapers of a prominent West Germany industrialist sent a message with "precise demands and deadlines" to the government late Saturday — the first contact in more than 36 hours, a go-between in Genea said Sunday. Denis Payot, a Swiss lawyer asked by Bonn to help negotiate the release of Hanns-Martin Schleyer, said he received a message which "contained the elements which left no doubt that it was from the kidnapers." Payot would not say what the demands were. Schleyer, 62, is a member of the board of the Daimler-Benz, manufacturers of the Mercedes Benz. Five persons wielding submachine-guns kidnaped him in Cologne last Monday.

Current events sign of Christ's return?

Most skeptical of return

by DAVE IBATA

The time is ripe for the return of Christ, but most Christians refuse to believe it, say two nationally known conservative theologians who teach that the Messiah's return is imminent.

John F. Walvoord, president of the Dallas Theological Seminary, and Louis Goldberg, professor of Jewish studies at Moody Bible Institute in Chicago, agreed that most members of mainstream denominations in Christendom — the Roman Catholic, Orthodox and Reformed churches — gdo not beleive Jesus Christ will soon return.

Walvoord and Goldberg teach at two of the larger evangelical Christian divinity schools in the country. It is at just such theologically conservative centers that much of the current speculation on the "end times" has originated.

WALVOORD HIMSELF is author of "Armageddon: Oil and the Middle East Crisis," which has sold 300,000 copies; and a theological textbook, "The Millenial Kingdom."

Theological conservatives usually describe themselves as "Born Again" Christians, to differentiate themselves from other Christians — most of whom belong to larger, theologically liberal denominations.

The born-again, or evangelical, Christians admit they are a minority of Christendom, but say they adhere to literal interpretation of Scripture and the original teachings of the early, Apostolic Christian church.

One characteristic of born-again Christians is their belief that Christ soon will physically return to gather up His church and institute an era of peace on earth.

PERSONS WHO believe this consider themselves "Premillenialists," Walvoord said. But the majority of professing Christians are "Amillenialist," and believe Christ will never return physically, Walvoord said.

Most Catholics, Orthodox, Lutherans, Episcopals, Methodists and Presbyterians, to name some of the largest denominations, would consider themselves amillenial.

Even many of the Baptists, traditionally a fundamentalist body, disagree, and most of the Southern Baptists are amillenial, Walvoord said.

Premillenialists are found in churches contending they are closest to the original Christian church — Pentacostal and fundamentalist Bible churches, both affiliated and independent, Walvoord said.

"THIS IS NOT a new movement," Walvoord said. "It's just that it's become more developed, and more details have been revealed."

Historical developments of the past 30 years have spurred interest in premillenialism — particularly the rebirth of Israel as a naton, the creation of the United Nations and the European Common Market, the rise of the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China as atheistic powers, and the growing economic power wielded by the Arab nations, Walvoord and Goldberg agree.

Such developments are trends that may point toward an imminent return of Christ, Goldberg said.

As for the exact time of His return, Goldberg explained, "The Bible doesn't set a date. In fact, it discourages against the setting of dates. It does say to watch for the trends, and watch for significant movement, but it also tells us to be cautious."

WALVOORD SAID, "The reason we've concentrated on prophecy in the last 30 years has been the advent of the atomic bomb and the uncertainty of the future."

The Bible, however, is silent on what rule the United States will play in the end times, theologians say.

"Personally, I do not believe the United States or any country in the Western Hemisphere is mentioned," Walvoord said.

Goldberg said certain trends — such as the United States' willingness to give up the Panama Canal, a proposed military withdrawal from South Korea, and presure on Israel to capitulate to Arab demands — indicate the U.S. may soon be taking a minor role in international affairs.

Perhaps, he said, the U.S. "would simply drop out of the picture."

by DEBBE JONAK

"Repent sinners. The end of the world is near."

That prediction once brought to mind wild-eyed men carrying placards on crowded city streets. But it has found its way onto the pulpits of many conservative, well-educated, calm-voicied and Bible-toting ministers in the Northwest suburbs and across the nation.

Not that their predecessors didn't indulge in doomsday talk. However, recent world events, which the pastors say were named as signs of the end times in the Bible, have spurred an increase and urgency in their preaching.

"I would have to say it's possible Jesus Christ wouldn't come for another 2,000 years. But not at all probable," said the Rev. Ted Olsen, teacher at Trinity Evangelical Divinity School and pastor of Arlington Evangelical Free Church, Arlington Heights.

"APPARENTLY HIS return is imminent," he said matter-of-factly.

Pastors at Mount Prospect Bible Church, Des Plaines Evangelical Free Church, the Christian Assembly Church in Mount Prospect and the Mount Prospect Redemption Center agreed.

The end times generally refer to the period shortly before Christians say Jesus Christ will return to the earth on a cloud to begin his reign.

His return is precipitated by a great war in the Middle East, as described in Zechariah of the Old Testament and Revelations of the New Testament.

Olsen said that concept is a basic tenet of the Christian faith. It is mentioned more than 300 times in the Old Testament and 300 times in the New Testament.

"PREACHING AND teaching this truth puts one in the mainstream of Christian orthodoxy," he said, explaining Christians take a linear view of history.

"We don't hold to a cyclical view, where history repeats itself. Many think history has no meaning — it is just one accident after another," he said.

The Old Testament contains many prophecies about events which occurred before the birth of Christ. It also prophesized where and how Christ would be born, what he would preach and how he would die.

Fundamentalist Christians say the Bible has been right in all those prophecies, so it must be right in its predictions about the return of Christ and the end of the world.

IN FACT, THEY say, some of those prophecies are unfolding in today's headlines.

"That's one of the reasons it makes me believe in the Bible as God's word," the Rev. Jim Summers, pastor of Mount Prospect Bible Church, said.

One of the most important signs seen in current events is the establishment of the state of Israel. That and the Jews' recapture of Jerusalem are two prophecies which have sparked renewed interest in the end times throughout Christendom.

Several of the ministers pointed to the Book of Deuteronomy, Chapter 28, the Old Testament. There the author says the Jews will be taken from Israel and "the Lord will scatter you among all people, from one end of the earth to the other end of the earth."

THAT HAPPENED in 70 A.D. after the destruction of Jerusalem, they said.

Then in Chapter 30, the author relays God's promise that the Jews eventually will return to Israel from all nations of the earth. That happened in 1947 when Israel was declared a nation, they said.

All the ministers pointed to Matthew, Chapter 24, where Christ used the Biblical symbol of Israel, a fig tree, to tll his followers the formation of the Jewish nation will be a sign of the end times.

As further proof, several read from Luke, Chapter 21. There the bible says Jerusalem will be "trampled underfoot by Gentiles," until the last days.

IT IS BELIEVED by fundamentalist Christians that Israel will be the focal point of the last war — the infamous Battle of Armageddon. In the ninth and 16th chapters of Revelations, the Bible talks about 200 million soldiers — "The Kings of the East" — marching across a dried up Euphrates River to fight in the Middle East.

Fundamentalists say the "Kings of the East" are the Chinese and are quick to point out that China is hought to have 200 million armed and organized militiamen now.

"If you read the papers today, you can see the Middle East is a hot box," said the Rev. Daryl Merrill, academic dean at Chicago Bible College and pastor of the Christian Assembly.

"If they control the world economy, the world's resources . . . nations could become desperate."

OTHER SIGNS of the times often named were the rise in power of an evil dictator who will rule with an iron first over a 10-nation confederacy in Europe, an increase in natural disasters, epidemics and the poisoning of rivers and seas.

There will be seven years of massive torment. Christians will be taken out of the world by Christ sometime either before the torment begins or during it — the ministers disagreed on when, but all agreed it would happen.

"There are going to be seven years of extreme sorrow, heartbreak and pain, where God's wrath is poured out on that society," Summers said. "But the purpose is not a purpose of vengeance."

God will use the events and fulfillment of the prophecies to move people to accept Christ as the savior, as the only one who can rectify their sins with Him, Summers said.

The Bible says Christ will rescue the world from complete destruction in the last war, he said. He will reign for eternity in peace, he said, adding that all those who did not accept Christ face an eternity of damnation.

SUMMERS SAID preaching the end times is important, both for the benefit of Christians and non-Christians.

"I do not believe preachers should preach the second coming today in an atmosphere of fear . . . it should not be used to scare people but to warn people," he said.

"The real emphasis should be that one should prepare for it . . . and that Jesus is the person of preparation."

While Summers and the other pastors all agreed the world is in its end times, none would set a date for Christ's return.

"Every human being should be aware of date setters," Summers said. "Jesus doesn't give us a day."

No one shall know the day nor the hour, the Bible says. Yet many are expecting the day soon and they don't believe that idea is too far-fetched.

Walvoord, president of the Dallas Theological Seminary, and Louis Goldberg, professor of Jewish studies at Moody Bible Institute in Chicago, agreed that most members of mainstream denominations in Christendom — the Roman Catholic, Orthodox and Reformed churches — gdo not beleive Jesus Christ will soon return.

Walvoord and Goldberg teach at two of the larger evangelical Christian divinity schools in the country. It is at just such theologically conservative centers that much of the current speculation on the "end times" has originated.

WALVOORD HIMSELF is author of "Armageddon: Oil and the Middle East Crisis," which has sold 300,000 copies; and a theological textbook, "The Millenial Kingdom."

Theological conservatives usually describe themselves as "Born Again" Christians, to differentiate themselves from other Christians — most of whom belong to larger, theologically liberal denominations.

The born-again, or evangelical, Christians admit they are a minority of Christendom, but say they adhere to literal interpretation of Scripture and the original teachings of the early, Apostolic Christian church.

One characteristic of born-again Christians is their belief that Christ soon will physically return to gather up His church and institute an era of peace on earth.

PERSONS WHO believe this consider themselves "Premillenialists," Walvoord said. But the majority of professing Christians are "Amillenialist," and believe Christ will never return physically, Walvoord said.

Most Catholics, Orthodox, Lutherans, Episcopals, Methodists and Presbyterians, to name some of the largest denominations, would consider themselves amillenial.

Even many of the Baptists, traditionally a fundamentalist body, disagree, and most of the Southern Baptists are amillenial, Walvoord said.

Premillenialists are found in churches contending they are closest to the original Christian church — Pentacostal and fundamentalist Bible churches, both affiliated and independent, Walvoord said.

"THIS IS NOT a new movement," Walvoord said. "It's just that it's become more developed, and more details have been revealed."

Historical developments of the past 30 years have spurred interest in premillenialism — particularly the rebirth of Israel as a naton, the creation of the United Nations and the European Common Market, the rise of the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China as atheistic powers, and the growing economic power wielded by the Arab nations, Walvoord and Goldberg agree.

Such developments are trends that may point toward an imminent return of Christ, Goldberg said.

As for the exact time of His return, Goldberg explained, "The Bible doesn't set a date. In fact, it discourages against the setting of dates. It does say to watch for the trends, and watch for significant movement, but it also tells us to be cautious."

WALVOORD SAID, "The reason we've concentrated on prophecy in the last 30 years has been the advent of the atomic bomb and the uncertainty of the future."

The Bible, however, is silent on what rule the United States will play in the end times, theologians say.

"Personally, I do not believe the United States or any country in the Western Hemisphere is mentioned," Walvoord said.

Goldberg said certain trends — such as the United States' willingness to give up the Panama Canal, a proposed military withdrawal from South Korea, and presure on Israel to capitulate to Arab demands — indicate the U.S. may soon be taking a minor role in international affairs.

Perhaps, he said, the U.S. "would simply drop out of the picture."

"Repent sinners. The end of the world is near."

That prediction once brought to mind wild-eyed men carrying placards on crowded city streets. But it has found its way onto the pulpits of many conservative, well-educated, calm-voicied and Bible-toting ministers in the Northwest suburbs and across the nation.

Not that their predecessors didn't indulge in doomsday talk. However, recent world events, which the pastors say were named as signs of the end times in the Bible, have spurred an increase and urgency in their preaching.

"I would have to say it's possible Jesus Christ wouldn't come for another 2,000 years. But not at all probable," said the Rev. Ted Olsen, teacher at Trinity Evangelical Divinity School and pastor of Arlington Evangelical Free Church, Arlington Heights.

"APPARENTLY HIS return is imminent," he said matter-of-factly.

Pastors at Mount Prospect Bible Church, Des Plaines Evangelical Free Church, the Christian Assembly Church in Mount Prospect and the Mount Prospect Redemption Center agreed.

The end times generally refer to the period shortly before Christians say Jesus Christ will return to the earth on a cloud to begin his reign.

His return is precipitated by a great war in the Middle East, as described in Zechariah of the Old Testament and Revelations of the New Testament.

Olsen said that concept is a basic tenet of the Christian faith. It is mentioned more than 300 times in the Old Testament and 300 times in the New Testament.

"PREACHING AND teaching this truth puts one in the mainstream of Christian orthodoxy," he said, explaining Christians take a linear view of history.

"We don't hold to a cyclical view, where history repeats itself. Many think history has no meaning — it is just one accident after another," he said.

The Old Testament contains many prophecies about events which occurred before the birth of Christ. It also prophesized where and how Christ would be born, what he would preach and how he would die.

Fundamentalist Christians say the Bible has been right in all those prophecies, so it must be right in its predictions about the return of Christ and the end of the world.

IN FACT, THEY say, some of those prophecies are unfolding in today's headlines.

"That's one of the reasons it makes me believe in the Bible as God's word," the Rev. Jim Summers, pastor of Mount Prospect Bible Church, said.

One of the most important signs seen in current events is the establishment of the state of Israel. That and the Jews' recapture of Jerusalem are two prophecies which have sparked renewed interest in the end times throughout Christendom.

Several of the ministers pointed to the Book of Deuteronomy, Chapter 28, the Old Testament. There the author says the Jews will be taken from Israel and "the Lord will scatter you among all people, from one end of the earth to the other end of the earth."

THAT HAPPENED in 70 A.D. after the destruction of Jerusalem, they said.

Then in Chapter 30, the author relays God's promise that the Jews eventually will return to Israel from all nations of the earth. That happened in 1947 when Israel was declared a nation, they said.

All the ministers pointed to Matthew, Chapter 24, where Christ used the Biblical symbol of Israel, a fig tree, to tll his followers the formation of the Jewish nation will be a sign of the end times.

As further proof, several read from Luke, Chapter 21. There the bible says Jerusalem will be "trampled underfoot by Gentiles," until the last days.

IT IS BELIEVED by fundamentalist Christians that Israel will be the focal point of the last war — the infamous Battle of Armageddon. In the ninth and 16th chapters of Revelations, the Bible talks about 200 million soldiers — "The Kings of the East" — marching across a dried up Euphrates River to fight in the Middle East.

Fundamentalists say the "Kings of the East" are the Chinese and are quick to point out that China is hought to have 200 million armed and organized militiamen now.

"If you read the papers today, you can see the Middle East is a hot box," said the Rev. Daryl Merrill, academic dean at Chicago Bible College and pastor of the Christian Assembly.

"If they control the world economy, the world's resources . . . nations could become desperate."

OTHER SIGNS of the times often named were the rise in power of an evil dictator who will rule with an iron first over a 10-nation confederacy in Europe, an increase in natural disasters, epidemics and the poisoning of rivers and seas.

There will be seven years of massive torment. Christians will be taken out of the world by Christ sometime either before the torment begins or during it — the ministers disagreed on when, but all agreed it would happen.

"There are going to be seven years of extreme sorrow, heartbreak and pain, where God's wrath is poured out on that society," Summers said. "But the purpose is not a purpose of vengeance."

God will use the events and fulfillment of the prophecies to move people to accept Christ as the savior, as the only one who can rectify their sins with Him, Summers said.

The Bible says Christ will rescue the world from complete destruction in the last war, he said. He will reign for eternity in peace, he said, adding that all those who did not accept Christ face an eternity of damnation.

SUMMERS SAID preaching the end times is important, both for the benefit of Christians and non-Christians.

"I do not believe preachers should preach the second coming today in an atmosphere of fear . . . it should not be used to scare people but to warn people," he said.

"The real emphasis should be that one should prepare for it . . . and that Jesus is the person of preparation."

While Summers and the other pastors all agreed the world is in its end times, none would set a date for Christ's return.

"Every human being should be aware of date setters," Summers said. "Jesus doesn't give us a day."

No one shall know the day nor the hour, the Bible says. Yet many are expecting the day soon and they don't believe that idea is too far-fetched.

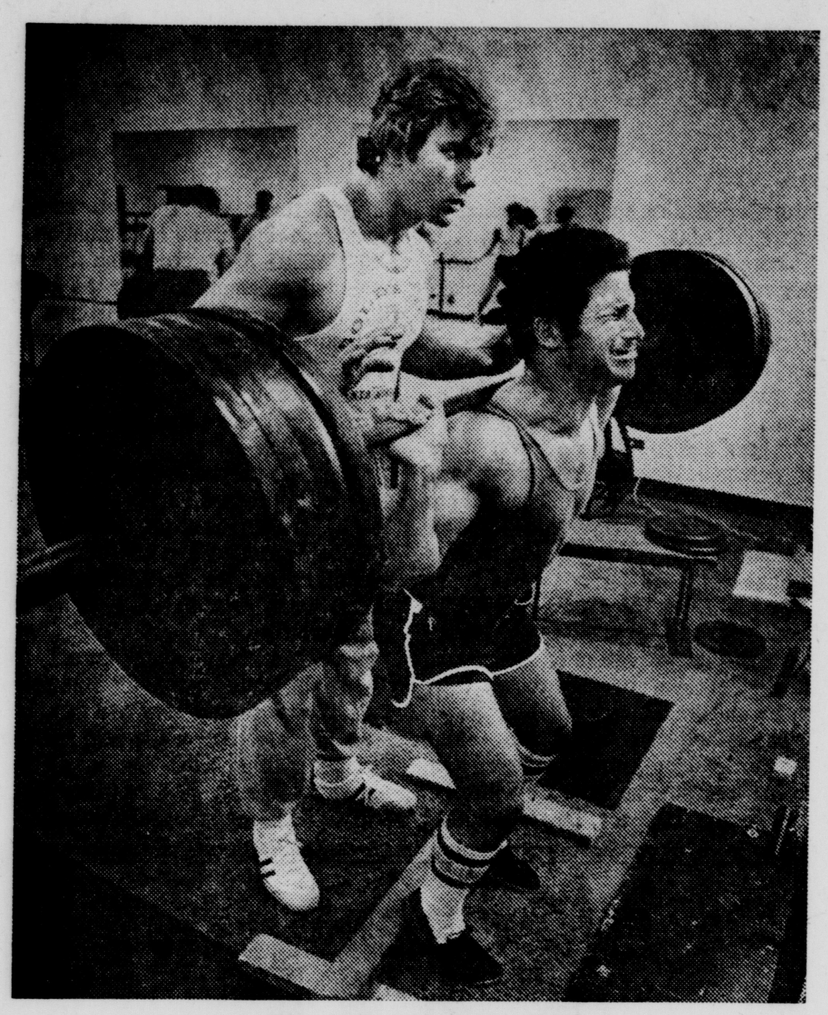
The Weight Room provides setting for hard work and heavy lifting



Vince Surdo strains under the weight of 410 pounds.

by DEBBE JONAK

They can be seen through the storefront window, their muscles tearing at the seams of their shirts and flesh as they lift 200, 300, then 400 pounds.

Like steamshovels at work on a construction site, they move great barbell weights with grunts and grimaces.

Bob Long dropped a disk into the long row of black weights at the Weight Room, a recently opened muscle shop at Willow Park Shopping Center, Milwaukee Avenue and Palatine Road, Prospect Heights.

Long, 30, a former Indiana University football player, looked more the bouncer than owner of the Weight Room. A tall mass of rippling fiber, he rivaled the best builds at his business.

"Arnold Schwarzenegger has really turned the whole weightlifting thing around," he said. "There's so much emphasis on physical fitness now that weight lifting is coming into a sport."

IN THE BEST tradition of Schwarzenegger, the famous weight lifter who starred in the movie "Pumping Iron" and is the current fold-out in "Cosmopolitan" magazine, the Weight Room's patrons scorn the complicated exercise contraptions in spas. They choose rather to work up their muscles with sweat, raw strength and weights.

The barbell boom has made Long's first attempt at business almost an instant success. In the nine months since it opened, close to 200 persons ages 17 to 63 have signed up for the multi-weekly sessions.

"I found out quite a lot of guys are interested. That movie 'pumping Iron' sure didn't hurt," he said.

His customers range from bodybuilding contestants to football players to accountants. Some were once 90-pound weaklings — the proverbial sand-in-the-face types. Others were overweight and short of breath. Some still are. But they're working hard to change their rubber tires into bulging biceps.

"THERE ARE SO many misconceptions about weight lifters," Long said. "First of all, people are concerned when they come in that they have to be strong to lift weights. But 60 to 70 per cent haven't worked out before, except maybe in high school a little bit."

Frank Alvarez, 38, a Deerfield resident and sales manager for a cruise line, leaned against the wall, huffing and perspiring after warming up with 75 sit-ups.

Before he joined the weight lifting program, he said he had not exercised much since college.

"I put on about 30 pounds," he said.

He began weight lifting in April, he said, "just to feel better." Since then he said he has lost 14 pounds and worked himself up to lifting 250 pounds on the bench press.

Steve Zasadny, 29, a Lisle chiropractor, also wanted to get back into shape. He signed up in August.

MAYBE IT'S the eternal youth idea. I don't know if a 250-pound weight lifter with a 20-inch waist and 40-inch chest is the ideal. But it's better than a 50-inch waist and 40-inch chest," he said.

Although most of his clients are just fitness conscious amateurs, Long said there is a group of hard-core pumpers who work out early in the evening.

"I hope someday to be a champion body builder," said one of the youngest — Gary Harrison, a 17-year-old Atlas from Addison. And I ain't gonna quit 'til I do."

He began hauling weights two and a half years ago, recently choosing the mirror-lined walls of the Weight Room to flex his well-designed musculature.

Harrison plans to enter the Mr. Teen-age Metropolitan contest, in which looks are of primary importance.

"I really don't care about strength. Just plain looks," he said. Nevertheless, he can bench press 300 pounds and squat lift 425.

"IN BODY BUILDING you alone can take satisfaction for what you do," he said. "Maybe it's a little bit of an ego trip. My body is like a conversation piece. I definitely get more attention."

Whether for beauty or beastly power, Long is convinced everyone should lift weights.

"If I can get a guy to stick with it for a while, he looks better. He gets a lot more out of life, if he's in shape," he said.

With his men's weight program working out so well, Long wants to extend the opportunity to get more out of life to the "weaker" sex.

"I hope to open a club for women in the near future," he said, charitably eyeing the skinny reporter in front of him. "Maybe you'd want to try it."

Horror film tryout doesn't scare him

6-year-old Todd shines for star role

by CHARLES DICKINSON

The last movie Todd Schiro saw was "Star Wars." The first movie in which he will appear could be "The Shining."

With Jack Nicholson and Shelly Duvall already scheduled to play the leads in Stanley Kubrick's new film, casting director Leon Vitali is in Chicago this month to begin the search for the boy who will play their son.

Todd, 6, of 508 Basswood St. in Hoffman Estates, was one of 300 boys invited (from 15,000 who submitted photographs) by Warner Brothers for a preliminary interview.

"I LIKE horror movies," Todd, a first-grader at Twinbrook School, said.

And "The Shining" will be, indeed, a horror movie. The latest effort of Stephen King, "Carrie" and "Salem's Lot," it is the story of a young boy with second sight; the ability to "shine" on to what other people are thinking, to see what other people cannot.

TODD SCHIRO

Todd tried out for the role and it is the reason his mother, Pat, has been going a little crazy until recently.

"We finally got to the point where we didn't want to worry about it anymore," Pat said. "So we just stopped talking about it. Then Tuesday I said, 'Tomorrow is it. All I want you to do is be polite.' Todd said, 'What's polite?' "

AS MIGHT BE expected, the Schiros were deluged with advice to make Todd irresistible to the movie moguls. Among this advice was the suggestion from a cousin that Todd Schiro would not catch any eyes on a theatre marquee. His tongue-in-cheek suggestion: Todd Rock.

"We would've gone nuts trying to guess what they were looking for," Pat said. "So we finally stopped trying."

As it turned out, any detailed preparation would have been wasted. The interviews were tightly scheduled. Todd's curtain call was at 4:10 p.m. with two boys from another family scheduled to go on at 4:20 and 4:30.

When Vitali and his assistant took Todd into a room by himself, Pat waited outside and said, "I wish we had hidden a tape recorder on him so we could hear what they said."

PAT LATER WAS told by Vitali that Todd may be invited back for a screen test but, if they did not hear from Warner Brothers in two weeks, Todd was out of the running.

On the trip home Todd related what had transpired in his interview.

"He didn't ask a single thing of scariness," Todd said. "He asked me my phone number, my teacher's name and what grade I was in. He asked me the last movie I had seen and he said he thought 'Star Wars' was a good movie."

"I think they were asking questions," Pat said, "that showed whether he had a good memory and how his voice sounded. If Todd gets the part then it was meant to be. If we hear from them again we'll be excited but we're not thinking that far ahead. That would take all the fun out of it if we thought that far ahead."

For Todd, the best part of the afternoon was riding the hotel's elevator.

"I love heights," he said. "As long as you don't fall."

Then Todd said something very strange. Something that indicated he may have some of 'The Shining' himself.

"I could have had a tape recorder with me," he said with a devilish grin, "and hidden the thing down my shirt so you could hear what they said."

Assessment hearing today at County Bldg.

The county board's finance committee will hold a public hearing at 10 a.m. today on Assessor Thomas M. Tully's proposal to lower the assessment level on single-family homes from 17 to 16 per cent of market value.

The hearing will be in Room 569 of the County Building, 118 N. Clark St., Chicago.

If adopted by the county board, the lower assessment would apply this year to homes in the Northwest townships of Maine, Elk Grove, Schaumburg and Hanover where reassessments are scheduled.

Homes that were reassessed at 17 per cent of market value last year in Wheeling, Palatine and Barrington townships would be assessed again this year at the lower 16 per cent.

Tully first proposed a 16 per cent assessment level, the lowest assessment allowed by law, in July 1976.

But local school districts opposed the lower assessment and the county board compromised at 17 per cent.

This year, in the wake of protests from taxpayers whose bills increased from 50 to 300 per cent, the 16 per cent assessment is expected to pass.

Clearbrook Center plans open houses

Clearbrook Center, an agency to assist handicapped persons in the Northwest suburbs, will hold open houses at its three facilities from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sept. 23.

The open house coincides with the 1977 kickoff of the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy. Clearbrook is one of more than a dozen local agencies that receives funds from the Crusade of Mercy charity.

The open house is intended to show visitors how a portion of their contributtons are used to serve disabled persons.

Persons who want to tour one or all of Clearbrook's facilities are asked to stop at the reception desk in each building so that a staff member can accompany them.

Groups interested in a tour should call Gene Freeman, director of development, 255-0120.

Clearbrook facilities are the children's center and day school, 3201 W. Campbell St., Rolling Meadows; the community living facility, 420 S. Walnut Ave., Arlington Heights; and the vocational rehabilitation center, 680 Lively Blvd., Elk Grove Village.

New fall line-up offers variety

by DIANE MERMIIGAS
First of five parts

The 1977-78 season heralds a new era in television programing in which special dramatizations are as prominent as regularly scheduled shows, violence is replaced by comedy and sexual provacativeness and variety abounds.

Gone are the days when the three commercial networks ceremoniously introduced their new wares during a "premiere week" with the promise of airing them faithfully on the same day and at the same time every week.

The fact that only 15 of last year's 51 new shows survived the season indicates viewers have grown weary of the weekly series form and that the fast-paced lifestyle of Americans often allows them to only catch glimpses of the small screen on occasion.

IT TOOK THE EIGHT consecutive nights' showing of ABC's "Roots" in January to shake up the industry and show network bigwigs that television entertainment could be done a more successful way.

So the 21 new series for the 1977-78 season, which offer no profound programing innovations, are being overshadowed in their arrival by a barrage of serialized novels, docu-dramas, made-for-television movies, entertainment bonanzas, sports spectaculars, back-up shows and floating series.

The new fall television season promises to be more unpredictable and confusing than any other in the history of the medium, but there's a good chance the offerings also will be more enticing and entertaining than ever before. The viewer is the one who stands to gain the most from all of this programing madness, as long as each week's television programing schedule is gree ed with patience.

A SUDDEN OBSESSION with ratings on the part of the three networks is responsible for this sudden change in the way television does business.

"Roots" proved that weekly series are vulnerable to periodic, blockbuster specials and that ratings strength lies in a network's special programing. Strong specials combined with popular series are what brought ABC out of third place to take over first place in the ratings game from the 20-year king, CBS.

ABC's unexpected victory has stung both CBS and NBC badly and has heightened the ratings wars to the point where the big three now are doing battle with millions of dollars in special and counter programing.

ABC decided to beat its competitors to the punch last week, two weeks before the official start of the fall season Sept. 19, with the six consecutive nights' showing of "Washington: Behind Closed Doors," indicative of the serializations that will dominate the season.

MANY OF THE MAJOR figures and events in the last 50 years of world history will be dramatized and possibly somewhat distorted in a wealth of docu-dramas and novel adaptations that will include the life and loves of Dwight D. Eisenhower; the civil rights work of Martin Luther King Jr.; the would-be trial of assassin Lee Harvey Oswald; the story of Alex Haley's search for "Roots"; the genocide of Jews by the Nazis; the life story of young Joe Kennedy; the autobiography of actress Liv Ullmann; the execution of murder-rapist Caryl Chessman; and the making of the film classic "Gone With the Wind."

Novel recreations will include Alex Huxley's "Brave New World," J. R. Tolkien's "The Hobbit," James Michener's "Centennial" and James T. Farrell's "Studs Lonigan."

Musical and variety specials will feature the likes of John Wayne, Lindsay ("The Bionic Woman") Wagner, John Denver, George Burns, Goldie Hawn, Lucille Ball, Johnny Cash and the late Elvis Presley.

BOX OFFICE hits such as both parts of "The Godfather," "Network," "Nashville" and "The Pink Panther" will make their television debuts this season on all three networks.

Fictitious drama will deal with such timely topics as teen-age pregnancy, interracial marriage, TV violence, euthanasia, capital punishment and wife beating. Special programing even will include two fantastic versions of "The Nutcracker" at Christmas time, offered by CBS and NBC, and "ABC's spectacular shot at the World Series.

Although serializations and specials are expected to enrich the television experience this season, the mainstay of programing will continue to be the regularly scheduled series.

Of the 21 new series, ABC has six, NBC has seven and CBS has eight. For the most part, the new series are throwbacks to earlier television shows or variations on currently successful forms.

VIOLENCE HAS SUCCUMBED to public pressure, leaving only the most popular of police shows on television this season with noticeably restrained action and giving way to only one new cop show, NBC's "CHIPS," which relies more on motorcycle stunts and infantile humor than brutality.

Comedy, fantasy action, western, family, science fiction and traditional adventure shows will be filling the void left by television violence. But the biggest substitute of all, bound to attract a more fierce public protest than violence ever knew, is sex.

ABC's adult comedy, "Soap," which probably has made more preseason noise and headlines than any other new show in history, is leading the way for new dimensions of off-color sexual comedy in prime time. And to back up its new infatuation with sex, ABC has two other new sexually permissive series in its line-up.

"Love Boat" looks to be a version of the old "Love American Style" at sea and "Operation Petticoat" is more like a rambunctious "M*A*S*H" aboard a pink submarine.

"SOAP" PROBABLY will offer the widest variety of blatant sexual permissiveness this season, dabbling in homosexuality, adultery and impotency, while other shows will pursue sexual appeal in less of a between-the-eyes manner.

For instance, a new and more vampy Marie Osmond will do battle Friday evenings against a scantily clad "Wonder Woman," "Tony Randall's" college-aged daughter will consider living with her boyfriend and "Charlie's Angels" will continue to thrive more because of sex appeal than because of solid acting.

While ABC largely will rely on its established hits like "Happy Days" to carry it through the new season, CBS will continue nourishing the Mary Tyler Moore charm with new shows like "The Betty White Show" and "Lou Grant."

NBC's series offering is the weakest of the three networks, but the network evidently is placing all of its effort and money into special event programing.

The best NBC has to offer in a weekly series is "Rosetti and Ryan," a legal team version of "Starsky and Hutch."

COMEDY THIS SEASON ranges from the sublimely senseless to sophisticated satire, and CBS appears to have the most respectable comedy offerings of all three networks.

Whatever doesn't work the first few weeks of the new season promptly will be replaced with back-up programing, and that kind of vicious circle promises to continue without hesitation throughout the year.

With an overemphasis on flesh where bloodshed left off and with a concentration on laughs and lust, it seems the new television season will definitely be void of one thing — substance.

The programing selection has never been more varied. But whether or not the rash of seemingly excellent special dramas can cancel out any damage done by oversexed regular programing this season, only time will tell.

Holy Days stress family, tradition

by LYNN ASINOF

Last year area temples were ringing with sermons on Israel, Soviet Jewry and the Entebbe raid.

But world problems will take a back seat tonight as Jews celebrate Rosh Hashana and welcome the year 5738. The Jewish community has turned inward in the past years, as reflected in the sermons prepared by area rabbis for the High Holy Days.

The topics this year are introspective — the decline of family, the importance of tradition and even the need for Jewish "roots."

The sense of social consciousness has not disappeared according to Rabbi Norman Kleinman of the Woodfield Jewish Congregation, Hanover Park. It has just made room for more pressing problems.

"JUDAISM TEACHES social awareness — love they neighbor as thyself," Kleinman said. "But before you can really love they neighbor you have to establish some understanding of self."

Rabbi Floyd Herman of Temple Chai, Buffalo Grove, said he has seen his congregation become more interested in a personal type of religion. "It is easy to get people involved in issues that are very personal and involve their families," he said.

Family will be an important theme at High Holy Day services this year. "My greatest concern right now is the family," Kleinman said, noting that divorces and the weakening of family ties can cause a sense of isolation.

TO COMBAT THIS isloation, Kleinman said his congregation is trying to create substitute families to share the holidays together. Two of these substitute families, called Chavurah, will be sharing family-type functions this year starting with the High Holy Days.

"They will get together, they spend holidays together, they pray together and study together," he said.

Rabbi Jay Karzen of the Maine Township Jewish Congregation also is concerned about the decline of the family. "The strength of the community depends on the strength of the family," he said, noting that better communications among family members can help.

THAT IS ONE reason why Karzen conducts a „rap session" for 1½ hours on Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement. The rabbi said the informal discussion period adds more meaning to the holiday, which is traditionally a day of fasting and prayer.

At Beth Tikvah in Hoffman Estates, there will be a new emphasis on Jewish tradition. Although reform synagogues usually only celebrate Rosh Hashana for one day, Rabbi Hillel Gamoran said this year his congregation wil celebrate the New Year for two days.

Rabbi Mordecai Rosen of Beth Judea, Long Grove, said a firm rooting in tradition helps people deal with the impersonal aspects of society. And he says the High Holy Days are an appropriate time to take a good hard look at the meaning of Judaism.

"Traditionally, the High Holy Days are a period of introspection — what kind of a year we have lived through and what kind of a life we have led," Rosen said. "I think when a person feels part of the Jewish community which is small enough to afford recognition to each person, I think they find strength in this that helps them continue to grow."

Area congregations plan services

Services at area congregations will be as follows:

• Beth Judea, Buffalo Grove High School's little theater — Rosh Hashana eve services at 6:45 p.m. today with services at 9 a.m. Tuesday, Tuesday at 6:45 p.m. and at 9 a.m. Wednesday. Yom Kippur services begin at 6:45 p.m. Sept. 21 and 9 a.m. Sept. 22. The memorial service, which is open to the public, begins at 11 a.m.

• Beth Tikvah, 275 Hillcrest Blvd., Hoffman Estates — Rosh Hashana eve services at 8:30 p.m. today with services at 10 a.m. Tuesday and Wednesday. Yom Kippur services are at 8:30 p.m. Sept. 21, and start at 10 a.m. Sept. 22. A special memorial service is scheduled at 3 p.m. Yom Kippur day.

• Woodfield Jewish Congregation, Hanover Park Recreation Center, 1919 Walnut Ave. — Rosh Hashana eve services at 7:30 p.m. today with services at 9 a.m. Tuesday and Wednesday. Yom Kippur eve services are at 6:30 p.m. Sept. 21, with services all day Sept. 22 starting at 9 a.m.

• Maine Township Jewish Congregation, 8800 Ballard Rd., Des Plaines — Rosh Hashana eve services at 6:30 p.m. today with services at 8:45 a.m. Tuesday and Wednesday. Yom Kippur eve services are at 6:30 p.m. Sept. 21 and start at 9 a.m. Sept. 22.

• Temple Chai, Holiday Inn, Mundelein — Rosh Hashana eve services at 8:15 p.m. today with services at 10 a.m. Tuesday. Childrens services will begin at 2 p.m. Yom Kippur eve services are at 8:15 Sept. 21 and begin at 10:15 a.m. Sept. 22. Children's services will begin at 2 p.m.

Holy Days stress family, tradition

by LYNN ASINOF

Last year area temples were ringing with sermons on Israel, Soviet Jewry and the Entebbe raid.

But world problems will take a back seat tonight as Jews celebrate Rosh Hashana and welcome the year 5738. The Jewish community has turned inward in the past years, as reflected in the sermons prepared by area rabbis for the High Holy Days.

The topics this year are introspective — the decline of family, the importance of tradition and even the need for Jewish "roots."

The sense of social consciousness has not disappeared according to Rabbi Norman Kleinman of the Woodfield Jewish Congregation, Hanover Park. It has just made room for more pressing problems.

"JUDAISM TEACHES social awareness — love they neighbor as thyself," Kleinman said. "But before you can really love they neighbor you have to establish some understanding of self."

Rabbi Floyd Herman of Temple Chai, Buffalo Grove, said he has seen his congregation become more interested in a personal type of religion. "It is easy to get people involved in issues that are very personal and involve their families," he said.

Family will be an important theme at High Holy Day services this year. "My greatest concern right now is the family," Kleinman said, noting that divorces and the weakening of family ties can cause a sense of isolation.

TO COMBAT THIS isloation, Kleinman said his congregation is trying to create substitute families to share the holidays together. Two of these substitute families, called Chavurah, will be sharing family-type functions this year starting with the High Holy Days.

"They will get together, they spend holidays together, they pray together and study together," he said.

Rabbi Jay Karzen of the Maine Township Jewish Congregation also is concerned about the decline of the family. "The strength of the community depends on the strength of the family," he said, noting that better communications among family members can help.

THAT IS ONE reason why Karzen conducts a „rap session" for 1½ hours on Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement. The rabbi said the informal discussion period adds more meaning to the holiday, which is traditionally a day of fasting and prayer.

At Beth Tikvah in Hoffman Estates, there will be a new emphasis on Jewish tradition. Although reform synagogues usually only celebrate Rosh Hashana for one day, Rabbi Hillel Gamoran said this year his congregation wil celebrate the New Year for two days.

Rabbi Mordecai Rosen of Beth Judea, Long Grove, said a firm rooting in tradition helps people deal with the impersonal aspects of society. And he says the High Holy Days are an appropriate time to take a good hard look at the meaning of Judaism.

"Traditionally, the High Holy Days are a period of introspection — what kind of a year we have lived through and what kind of a life we have led," Rosen said. "I think when a person feels part of the Jewish community which is small enough to afford recognition to each person, I think they find strength in this that helps them continue to grow."

Area congregations plan services

Services at area congregations will be as follows:

• Beth Judea, Buffalo Grove High School's little theater — Rosh Hashana eve services at 6:45 p.m. today with services at 9 a.m. Tuesday, Tuesday at 6:45 p.m. and at 9 a.m. Wednesday. Yom Kippur services begin at 6:45 p.m. Sept. 21 and 9 a.m. Sept. 22. The memorial service, which is open to the public, begins at 11 a.m.

• Beth Tikvah, 275 Hillcrest Blvd., Hoffman Estates — Rosh Hashana eve services at 8:30 p.m. today with services at 10 a.m. Tuesday and Wednesday. Yom Kippur services are at 8:30 p.m. Sept. 21, and start at 10 a.m. Sept. 22. A special memorial service is scheduled at 3 p.m. Yom Kippur day.

• Woodfield Jewish Congregation, Hanover Park Recreation Center, 1919 Walnut Ave. — Rosh Hashana eve services at 7:30 p.m. today with services at 9 a.m. Tuesday and Wednesday. Yom Kippur eve services are at 6:30 p.m. Sept. 21, with services all day Sept. 22 starting at 9 a.m.

• Maine Township Jewish Congregation, 3800 Ballard Rd., Des Plaines — Rosh Hashana eve services at 6:30 p.m. today with services at 8:45 a.m. Tuesday and Wednesday. Yom Kippur eve services are at 6:30 p.m. Sept. 21 and start at 9 a.m. Sept. 22.

• Temple Chai, Holiday Inn, Mundelein — Rosh Hashana eve services at 8:15 p.m. today with services at 10 a.m. Tuesday. Childrens services will begin at 2 p.m. Yom Kippur eve services are at 8:15 Sept. 21 and begin at 10:15 a.m. Sept. 22. Children's services will begin at 2 p.m.

Election change needed

Gov. James Thompson should sign a pending bill, consolidating local election dates, in order to aid Illinois voters.

The bill, approved last June by the Illinois General Assembly, will cut the number of times voters must troop to the polls to cast votes in local and state elections.

Sponsors of the legislation say they must propose one amendment to the bill this fall to clear up confusion in the effective dates of the change. If the change is not made, local officials elected this spring will face reelection in 1978, rather than in 1981, as intended.

The technical change is needed, but it can be made perfectly well after Thompson signs the bill into law.

Consolidation of local elections has long been needed in Illinois, where every unit of local government has been able to "do its own thing." The pending bill would cut the number of election days to five in a two-year period. In even numbered years, there would be a primary election in May and general election in November. In odd numbered years, there would be a primary in March, a single election day for school, park and municipal officials in May and a non-partisan election for referenda in November.

The five dates will provide ample opportunity for government to go to the voters. It will also spare voters who now often find themselves voting for state officials, school, park and municipal candidates on separate days within a relatively short period.

The consolidated election bill will help the voter by making his task more convenient. It deserves Thompson's signature.

Martha Mitchell memorial's justice

Few persons involved with Richard Nixon's ill-fated administration managed to come through the Watergate Era with a better reputation than they had when they entered it.

One of those few was Martha Mitchell.

When the Nixon years began Martha was that dizzy slightly wierd blonde who shot her mouth off to reporters and seemed to deliberately play the "Southern Belle."

By the end, when the drama had played itself out, many saw Martha Mitchell as a heroic figure who was willing to speak out when "dirty things" started happening at the Committee to Re-elect the President.

Oh, even then she was a somewhat comic figure. She was famous for late-night phone calls. Rumor was she drank too much. But when she died of cancer, alone and reportedly broke, it didn't seem like a fair way for the fates to have treated her.

Now fate has taken another turn. Syndicated columnist Paul Greenberg reported on this page Saturday that a move is under way in Pine Bluff, Ark., to build a memorial to Martha Mitchell, a hometown girl. And Greenberg should know. He is chief editorial writer for the Pine Bluff Commercial, the paper that is helping to sponsor the memorial drive.

Since Nixon recently blamed Martha for the whole Watergate scandal, that turn of events may be hard for him to bear.

Nevertheless, the memorial drive proves that sometimes fate does result in justice in the long run.

She awaits Harper reply

Early this summer Paddock Publications carried a wire story quoting an interview with John R. Silber, president of Boston University. The story had originally appeared in Harper's magazine in June, 1977. Buried deep in the article Dr. Silber said, "Community colleges . . . have an economic incentive to support the flight from excellence.

"They get so much per student . . . by keeping those students long enough to get an associate degree, the schools keep money coming in." Silber said that doesn't mean the associate degree from community colleges can be compared with a "good" degree. "As a degree, it is a little like falsies worn by a flat-chested woman . . . it raises self-esteem, but it isn't the real thing."

To say I was amazed is an understatement. Since three members of our family have been students at Harper College in Palatine and I have been employed by the college, I was both concerned and angered. I was tempted to draft a letter to the editor at that time, but reconsidered. The director of public relations at Harper could write more effectively than I.

I waited patiently for a succinct rebuttal. Fortunately, I didn't hold my breath. To this day there has been no comment from Harper.

Of course, there must be an explanation. The possiblities are intriguing:

1. No one at Harper read the article — but surely someone called it to their attention. Or,

2. The article was read, but the Harper administration felt that Dr. Silber was generalizing; therefore it wouldn't be necessary to respond to the charge since Harper is in a different category. This is a possibility, albeit a risky one.

3. The Harper board and administrators don't care about the slur to the college. Frankly, I don't know.

There have been rumblings that a referendum is planned in the near future. Whether this referendum is to be held to off-set the rising costs of day-to-day operations or for the building of the second campus has not been made clear. Will the Harper "Powers" remember their constituents when they are needed? You bet they will. Will I vote "yes"? I will only if the funds are needed for increased operating expenses, and then only if I am firmly convinced that the quality of the education of Harper students would suffer if the funds were not forthcoming.

Binder leaves

It is with sincere regret that I have resigned as director of parks and recreation for the Hoffman Estates Park District, effective October 1.

During my five and one half years as director, the park district has grown from its infancy into a public agency that offers qualitative and quantitative leisure services for all residents. The district maintains more than 50 per cent more land than it did in 1972 and its present 28 different park sites total more than 200 acres. Most of these sites which were nothing more than peat bogs in 1972 are now used to satisfy both active and passive leisure needs. Park improvements made with funds from the successful 1972 referendum have been completed and have provided for the basic facility needs in most park locations. Our sites compare very favorable with parks of neighboring communities in both basic facilities and general appearance. Recreation programs have more than doubled during the past five years with our special event programs offered quite possibly the best in Illinois.

In spite of these improvements, we have maintained the lowest park district tax rate of any neighboring district with the possible exception being Elk Grove. But Elk Grove's assessed valuation is more than three times that of our own. A balanced budget has been presented and followed with every fiscal year.

It has been most exciting developing park plans for existing and future park sites. I firmly believe that our present open space standards and the open space agreements made with the Poplar Hills, Manchester Cove, Charlemagne, and Sheffield Estates developments are the most progressive guarantees for parks and recreation at minimum expense to the taxpayer made anywhere. Future residents will long be thankful for these efforts.

There are few, if any, organizations who are not satisfied with park facilities used and the cooperation received from the Hoffman Estates Park District. The cooperation between local School Districts and their respective PTA's with our park district has been excellent. We have one of the most athletic minded communities in Illinois, which would not be possible without the volunteer efforts of so many.

Unfortunately, however, much of the good during these last five years has been tarnished by the continued negativism of a few. Several park commissioners, as well as certain public officials, seem to derive more satisfaction by tearing down that which is existing than to build for the future. It is unfortunate because their negative attitude has often resulted in answering for past decisions rather than progressing ahead to the goals and objectives set forth in our Master Plan. This same negative attitude has delayed the presentation of a second referendum so badly needed if our park district is to continue existing services and plan for future needs. Our own Attitude and Intent Survey and Five Year Budget Forecast as well as the University of Illinois Report, all have indicated the need for a referendum.

I sincerely wish the present board nothing but the best with future endeavors. It is recommended that a referendum including a tax rate increase to both the Corporate and Recreation Funds as well as making improvements to existing park sites and development of new sites be requested of the voters immediately. I would be more than happy to assist the park district if such an endeavor is undertaken. Much of the ground work has already been completed, as a tentative referendum package was planned for 1975-76.

Above all, I would at this time like to thank all of those individuals representing the athletic organizations, civic and service clubs, other governmental bodies, as well as the every day citizen who "cares" for their community cooperation in working with the Hoffman Estates Park District in order to have a better place to live and raise our families. Without their help the Hoffman Estates Park District could not have developed into the excellent park district I certainly feel it is. A very special thanks is extended to those elected commissioners it has been my pleasure to work with who have continually strived for progress during their tenure in office — to George Seaver, Fred Weaver, George Rush, and Tom McGuire. Their service and dedication should be an example for all to follow.

Yes, I am very proud of our park district. We have come a long way, and I'm sorry that I'll not be with you during the challenges ahead. But these challenges can and will be met so long as everyone on the Board dedicates himself to community betterment, supporting its staff, and cooperating with everyone interested in continuing and improving leisure services within our park district.

'Cat owner blamed for accident'

I read with interest a letter to the editor in The Daily Herald on Sept. 3 from the woman whose pet cat was killed in a "hit and run" accident. I don't think the driver is entirely to blame. The woman knows the cat was killed but does she know the circumstances.

Did the cat dart out in front of the car and the driver couldn't stop? Did the cat run under the car and get run over by the rear wheels, unbeknownst to the driver? Would the driver have been rear ended by a car behind him if he had stopped? Who knows? If the driver did know he hit the cat, how was he to know it was a loved pet and not a homeless stray? Whose doorbell should he ring? How did he know what he was expected to do? What would that lady have done if she was in those shoes? Hindsight is great.

Finally, if the cat was so treasured, what was it doing running around unattended? It's her responsibility to keep the cat from harm, not the neighbor's or some "innocent" driver. A family cat should be kept inside, not let run rampant around the neighborhood through other's property. Or, if it must go out, put it on a leash so you can keep an eye on it, as well as clean up after its "droppings."

Affirmative action won't solve minority problems

Jim Bishop

Ours has always been a society of achievement. Some people have goals. Others do not. The losers work for the winners. For two centuries, the system worked to make America the most powerful democracy in history.

This has been altered in 30 years. The worker bees support the drones. For the first time, minorities have more rights than the majority. President Carter has said he supports "affirmative action." This means the acceptance of blacks and Hispanics into college with lower entrance marks than whites.

I will not demean the President by saying that this is a payoff for Election Day support. It's worse. He believes it is good for the country to promote the mediocre.

CARTER'S comrade-in-arms, Time magazine, discovered a couple of weeks ago that the United States has an "underclass." We had them when the "underclass" was white. They are do-nots, will-nots, have-nots.

At the risk of inundation with hate mail, I disagree with the premise that the "underclass is made up mostly of impoverished urban blacks, who still suffer from the heritage of slavery and discrimination."

I could fill this page with the names of black achievers. There is an underclass in Angola, the Congo, Uganda, Zambia and Nigeria and they do not suffer a heritage of slavery. In percentages, their underclass is greater than ours.

Eighty-eight per cent of America is white. Eleven per cent is black. Sixty-six per cent of all prisoners are black. The composition of the underclass is a constant: school dropouts, juvenile delinquents, the indolent, alcoholics and drug addicts. A new element has been added: welfare families.

What Carter needs is: (1) To concede that there is widespread discrimination against blacks; and (2) start a Federal job program commensurate with the abilities of youthful blacks and family heads.

COLLEGE IS NO closer to a practical solution than sending a case of champagne to every dropout. The poverty level has dropped from 22 per cent 18 years ago to 12 per cent. Today, close to half of all black families earn $10,000 a year.

To some, the success of blacks in politics and banks and industry worsens the problem. Naomi Chambers, black social worker, says, "Now that some black people have cars, dresses and shoes, there is jealousy. Jealousy can make me hate you and take what you have."

None were further below the poverty level than immigrant Jews, Irish, Poles and Italians. No one wanted to give them a dime or a break. As ethnic groups they did not resort to theft or looting. This great land glanced at them with a cold eye and said, "Make it on your own, or starve."

Time magazine lists 1,061,000 of the jobless as "discouraged." These have decided not to look for work. The rest of us support them with our taxes. Then there are almost two and a half million mothers on welfare. It is harsh, but accurate, to state that their skill seems to lie in getting pregnant.

COMMON JUSTICE tells us that we should continue to support the 4.5 million persons, black and white, who are disabled. These are not employable. It is time, and beyond time, for Joseph Califano Jr. to stop sending checks to ablebodied persons who do not want to work.

The unemployment rate among white heads of families is 6.1 per cent. Among blacks it is 13.2 per cent. For white teenagers it is 14.3 per cent and for black teenagers it is 39 per cent. If the President is looking for injustice, it lies in those figures.

In groups, the blacks are no closer to agreement about problems and solutions than whites. A Harlem woman said, "Everybody steals. Politicians steal. What's the use to bust my — from 9 to 5 to get $100 a week?" In California a black historian disagreed: "Permanency of jobs, stability in an economic situation, is important. Even if someone is only a janitor, his job still means stability."

THE PRESIDENT speaks of college as though it is a solution to starvation. He would do better to listen to Richard McNish, who runs a job training program in black Watts:

"Kids aren't required to produce to get a diploma. Nothing is required except to be cool and not try to kill the teacher. They don't know how to read and write."

Like some white students I know . .

The technical change is needed, but it can be made perfectly well after Thompson signs the bill into law.

Consolidation of local elections has long been needed in Illinois, where every unit of local government has been able to "do its own thing." The pending bill would cut the number of election days to five in a two-year period. In even numbered years, there would be a primary election in May and general election in November. In odd numbered years, there would be a primary in March, a single election day for school, park and municipal officials in May and a non-partisan election for referenda in November.

The five dates will provide ample opportunity for government to go to the voters. It will also spare voters who now often find themselves voting for state officials, school, park and municipal candidates on separate days within a relatively short period.

The consolidated election bill will help the voter by making his task more convenient. It deserves Thompson's signature.

Martha Mitchell memorial's justice

Few persons involved with Richard Nixon's ill-fated administration managed to come through the Watergate Era with a better reputation than they had when they entered it.

One of those few was Martha Mitchell.

When the Nixon years began Martha was that dizzy slightly wierd blonde who shot her mouth off to reporters and seemed to deliberately play the "Southern Belle."

By the end, when the drama had played itself out, many saw Martha Mitchell as a heroic figure who was willing to speak out when "dirty things" started happening at the Committee to Re-elect the President.

Oh, even then she was a somewhat comic figure. She was famous for late-night phone calls. Rumor was she drank too much. But when she died of cancer, alone and reportedly broke, it didn't seem like a fair way for the fates to have treated her.

Now fate has taken another turn. Syndicated columnist Paul Greenberg reported on this page Saturday that a move is under way in Pine Bluff, Ark., to build a memorial to Martha Mitchell, a hometown girl. And Greenberg should know. He is chief editorial writer for the Pine Bluff Commercial, the paper that is helping to sponsor the memorial drive.

Since Nixon recently blamed Martha for the whole Watergate scandal, that turn of events may be hard for him to bear.

Nevertheless, the memorial drive proves that sometimes fate does result in justice in the long run.

". . . AND I do hereby declare our rights to said canal in perpetuity!"

She awaits Harper reply

Early this summer Paddock Publications carried a wire story quoting an interview with John R. Silber, president of Boston University. The story had originally appeared in Harper's magazine in June, 1977. Buried deep in the article Dr. Silber said, "Community colleges . . . have an economic incentive to support the flight from excellence.

"They get so much per student . . . by keeping those students long enough to get an associate degree, the schools keep money coming in." Silber said that doesn't mean the associate degree from community colleges can be compared with a "good" degree. "As a degree, it is a little like falsies worn by a flat-chested woman . . . it raises self-esteem, but it isn't the real thing."

To say I was amazed is an understatement. Since three members of our family have been students at Harper College in Palatine and I have been employed by the college, I was both concerned and angered. I was tempted to draft a letter to the editor at that time, but reconsidered. The director of public relations at Harper could write more effectively than I.

I waited patiently for a succinct rebuttal. Fortunately, I didn't hold my breath. To this day there has been no comment from Harper.

Of course, there must be an explanation. The possiblities are intriguing:

1. No one at Harper read the article — but surely someone called it to their attention. Or,

2. The article was read, but the Harper administration felt that Dr. Silber was generalizing; therefore it wouldn't be necessary to respond to the charge since Harper is in a different category. This is a possibility, albeit a risky one.

3. The Harper board and administrators don't care about the slur to the college. Frankly, I don't know.

There have been rumblings that a referendum is planned in the near future. Whether this referendum is to be held to off-set the rising costs of day-to-day operations or for the building of the second campus has not been made clear. Will the Harper "Powers" remember their constituents when they are needed? You bet they will. Will I vote "yes"? I will only if the funds are needed for increased operating expenses, and then only if I am firmly convinced that the quality of the education of Harper students would suffer if the funds were not forthcoming.

It is with sincere regret that I have resigned as director of parks and recreation for the Hoffman Estates Park District, effective October 1.

During my five and one half years as director, the park district has grown from its infancy into a public agency that offers qualitative and quantitative leisure services for all residents. The district maintains more than 50 per cent more land than it did in 1972 and its present 28 different park sites total more than 200 acres. Most of these sites which were nothing more than peat bogs in 1972 are now used to satisfy both active and passive leisure needs. Park improvements made with funds from the successful 1972 referendum have been completed and have provided for the basic facility needs in most park locations. Our sites compare very favorable with parks of neighboring communities in both basic facilities and general appearance. Recreation programs have more than doubled during the past five years with our special event programs offered quite possibly the best in Illinois.

In spite of these improvements, we have maintained the lowest park district tax rate of any neighboring district with the possible exception being Elk Grove. But Elk Grove's assessed valuation is more than three times that of our own. A balanced budget has been presented and followed with every fiscal year.

It has been most exciting developing park plans for existing and future park sites. I firmly believe that our present open space standards and the open space agreements made with the Poplar Hills, Manchester Cove, Charlemagne, and Sheffield Estates developments are the most progressive guarantees for parks and recreation at minimum expense to the taxpayer made anywhere. Future residents will long be thankful for these efforts.

There are few, if any, organizations who are not satisfied with park facilities used and the cooperation received from the Hoffman Estates Park District. The cooperation between local School Districts and their respective PTA's with our park district has been excellent. We have one of the most athletic minded communities in Illinois, which would not be possible without the volunteer efforts of so many.

Unfortunately, however, much of the good during these last five years has been tarnished by the continued negativism of a few. Several park commissioners, as well as certain public officials, seem to derive more satisfaction by tearing down that which is existing than to build for the future. It is unfortunate because their negative attitude has often resulted in answering for past decisions rather than progressing ahead to the goals and objectives set forth in our Master Plan. This same negative attitude has delayed the presentation of a second referendum so badly needed if our park district is to continue existing services and plan for future needs. Our own Attitude and Intent Survey and Five Year Budget Forecast as well as the University of Illinois Report, all have indicated the need for a referendum.

I sincerely wish the present board nothing but the best with future endeavors. It is recommended that a referendum including a tax rate increase to both the Corporate and Recreation Funds as well as making improvements to existing park sites and development of new sites be requested of the voters immediately. I would be more than happy to assist the park district if such an endeavor is undertaken. Much of the ground work has already been completed, as a tentative referendum package was planned for 1975-76.

Above all, I would at this time like to thank all of those individuals representing the athletic organizations, civic and service clubs, other governmental bodies, as well as the every day citizen who "cares" for their community cooperation in working with the Hoffman Estates Park District in order to have a better place to live and raise our families. Without their help the Hoffman Estates Park District could not have developed into the excellent park district I certainly feel it is. A very special thanks is extended to those elected commissioners it has been my pleasure to work with who have continually strived for progress during their tenure in office — to George Seaver, Fred Weaver, George Rush, and Tom McGuire. Their service and dedication should be an example for all to follow.

Yes, I am very proud of our park district. We have come a long way, and I'm sorry that I'll not be with you during the challenges ahead. But these challenges can and will be met so long as everyone on the Board dedicates himself to community betterment, supporting its staff, and cooperating with everyone interested in continuing and improving leisure services within our park district.

'Cat owner blamed for accident'

I read with interest a letter to the editor in The Daily Herald on Sept. 3 from the woman whose pet cat was killed in a "hit and run" accident. I don't think the driver is entirely to blame. The woman knows the cat was killed but does she know the circumstances.

Did the cat dart out in front of the car and the driver couldn't stop? Did the cat run under the car and get run over by the rear wheels, unbeknownst to the driver? Would the driver have been rear ended by a car behind him if he had stopped? Who knows? If the driver did know he hit the cat, how was he to know it was a loved pet and not a homeless stray? Whose doorbell should he ring? How did he know what he was expected to do? What would that lady have done if she was in those shoes? Hindsight is great.

Finally, if the cat was so treasured, what was it doing running around unattended? It's her responsibility to keep the cat from harm, not the neighbor's or some "innocent" driver. A family cat should be kept inside, not let run rampant around the neighborhood through other's property. Or, if it must go out, put it on a leash so you can keep an eye on it, as well as clean up after its "droppings."

Affirmative action won't solve minority problems

Jim Bishop

Ours has always been a society of achievement. Some people have goals. Others do not. The losers work for the winners. For two centuries, the system worked to make America the most powerful democracy in history.

This has been altered in 30 years. The worker bees support the drones. For the first time, minorities have more rights than the majority. President Carter has said he supports "affirmative action." This means the acceptance of blacks and Hispanics into college with lower entrance marks than whites.

I will not demean the President by saying that this is a payoff for Election Day support. It's worse. He believes it is good for the country to promote the mediocre.

CARTER'S comrade-in-arms, Time magazine, discovered a couple of weeks ago that the United States has an "underclass." We had them when the "underclass" was white. They are do-nots, will-nots, have-nots.

At the risk of inundation with hate mail, I disagree with the premise that the "underclass is made up mostly of impoverished urban blacks, who still suffer from the heritage of slavery and discrimination."

I could fill this page with the names of black achievers. There is an underclass in Angola, the Congo, Uganda, Zambia and Nigeria and they do not suffer a heritage of slavery. In percentages, their underclass is greater than ours.

Eighty-eight per cent of America is white. Eleven per cent is black. Sixty-six per cent of all prisoners are black. The composition of the underclass is a constant: school dropouts, juvenile delinquents, the indolent, alcoholics and drug addicts. A new element has been added: welfare families.

What Carter needs is: (1) To concede that there is widespread discrimination against blacks; and (2) start a Federal job program commensurate with the abilities of youthful blacks and family heads.

COLLEGE IS NO closer to a practical solution than sending a case of champagne to every dropout. The poverty level has dropped from 22 per cent 18 years ago to 12 per cent. Today, close to half of all black families earn $10,000 a year.

To some, the success of blacks in politics and banks and industry worsens the problem. Naomi Chambers, black social worker, says, "Now that some black people have cars, dresses and shoes, there is jealousy. Jealousy can make me hate you and take what you have."

None were further below the poverty level than immigrant Jews, Irish, Poles and Italians. No one wanted to give them a dime or a break. As ethnic groups they did not resort to theft or looting. This great land glanced at them with a cold eye and said, "Make it on your own, or starve."

Time magazine lists 1,061,000 of the jobless as "discouraged." These have decided not to look for work. The rest of us support them with our taxes. Then there are almost two and a half million mothers on welfare. It is harsh, but accurate, to state that their skill seems to lie in getting pregnant.

COMMON JUSTICE tells us that we should continue to support the 4.5 million persons, black and white, who are disabled. These are not employable. It is time, and beyond time, for Joseph Califano Jr. to stop sending checks to ablebodied persons who do not want to work.

The unemployment rate among white heads of families is 6.1 per cent. Among blacks it is 13.2 per cent. For white teenagers it is 14.3 per cent and for black teenagers it is 39 per cent. If the President is looking for injustice, it lies in those figures.

In groups, the blacks are no closer to agreement about problems and solutions than whites. A Harlem woman said, "Everybody steals. Politicians steal. What's the use to bust my — from 9 to 5 to get $100 a week?" In California a black historian disagreed: "Permanency of jobs, stability in an economic situation, is important. Even if someone is only a janitor, his job still means stability."

THE PRESIDENT speaks of college as though it is a solution to starvation. He would do better to listen to Richard McNish, who runs a job training program in black Watts:

"Kids aren't required to produce to get a diploma. Nothing is required except to be cool and not try to kill the teacher. They don't know how to read and write."

Like some white students I know . .

China wants U.S. to play by Ford rules

Hong Kong — In its first detailed assessment of the visit to Peking last month of U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, China has taken the Carter administration to task for retreating from the normalization proposals of former President Gerald Ford.

China rejected Vance's proposal to set up an official American liaison office in Taiwan and an embassy in Peking, Vice-Premier Teng Hsiao-ping has told a visiting delegation of Associated Press executives. He claimed the Vance proposal was a retreat from a December 1975, promise by then President Ford to break totally diplomatic relations with Taiwan if the latter was elected to the office in his own right.

Teng Hsiao-ping

But in the 90-minute meeting Teng also hinted at Chinese flexibility on the question of Taiwan. Although the Chinese regard Taiwan as an internal problem, they would take into consideration the special conditions prevailing on Taiwan in trying to solve the problem with the United States, he said.

YET TENG ALSO reaffirmed that China will not promise to refrain from taking Taiwan by force if the United States ends its security commitment to the island. The farthest Teng would go was to say that if the United States did not interfere, the Chinese would not rule out a peaceful settlement of the issue.

Teng's comments appeared designed to:

- Express continuing Chinese impatience with the pace of normalization between China and the United States since the Shanghai communique of 1972.
- Undercut any impression left by Chinese cordiality during the Vance visit that China willingly has put the Taiwan issue on the back burner.
- Continue public pressure on the Carter administration to move toward ending the American political and military commitment to Taiwan.

The Chinese people have patience, Teng said he told Sec. Vance, but the patience cannot last forever. Teng said there was no talk of a deadline.

Teng reportedly stressed that the meetings with Sec. Vance had been cordial and useful for an exchange of views, but that reports of progress were wrong. He said the American side had been responsible for leaving the impression after Vance's visit that the Chinese would be flexible about promising not to take Taiwan by force.

TENG WAS said to have told the executives that former President Ford promised on a visit 21 months ago that if elected he would follow the Japanese formula to solve the question of Taiwan. When Japan cut diplomatic relations with Taiwan in 1972 it ended official representation on the island but continued to handle commerical and other matters through private offices.

According to Teng, President Ford was willing to meet the three Chinese demands: that diplomatic relations with Taiwan be broken, the U.S.-Taiwan defense treaty be ended, and some 1,200 American troops on the island be withdrawn.

Teng said that in Peking Vance discussed establishing full diplomatic relations with China, but proposed replacing the American embassy on Taiwan with a diplomatic liaison office such as now exists in Peking. Teng said that proposal was unacceptable because it would mean continued American diplomatic links with Taiwan.

The Vance mission was expected, indirectly at least, to sound out the Chinese on how they would react to continued arms sales to Taiwan. But, according to Teng, that question never came up while the Secretary was in Peking.

Fuel efficiency touted in GM's '78 cars

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors is in the 1978 model preview spotlight this week with new smaller mid-sized models, America's first diesel engine-powered passenger automobile and a new turbocharged V-6 engine.

Each of the five GM passenger car divisions will have a day to show off the models with promises of greater fuel efficiency on the tongue of every GM vice president.

Unlike smaller competitors who think they will just barely top the government's fleetwide 18 miles per gallon fuel economy average, GM is confident of going above 19 mpg in the '78 model year.

THE NEW MID-SIZED models, according to preliminary tests, should be 3 to 4 miles per gallon better than their '77 counterparts. That's the result of smaller size and smaller engines that will become standard equipment.

Chairman Thomas A. Murphy already has taken care of the traditional sales forecast for the upcoming model year with a prediction that new car and truck sales in the 1978-model year, including imports, will hit a record 15.5 million.

The redesigned '78 intermediates — about a foot shorter and an average 800 pounds lighter than the current models — are the second generation of lighter, more fuel efficient models from GM. Its full-sized models got the weight reduction program for 1977 and its compact models take the plunge in '79.

THESE INCLUDE Chevrolet Malibu (the Chevelle nameplate disappears after 14 years) and Monte Carlo; Pontiac LeMans and Grand Prix; Buick Century and Regal; and Oldsmobile Cutlass.

Chevrolet never has built a mid-sized model as small as its new Malibu. The Chevelle introduced in 1964 was built on a 115-inch wheelbase, compared with the 108-inch wheelbase on the new model. Sedans and coupes are 16 inches shorter and 15 per cent lighter while 970 pounds was trimmed from the Malibu wagon.

Once inside the new models, it's difficult to reconcile the fact that interior space has increased in some areas while the outer dimensions have shrunk. The key to that is the squared-off appearance of the new models, rather than the traditional sloping roof in GM's past.

"AT FIRST our thought was to go even smaller, but we couldn't," said Norm Sholler, Chevrolet's chief engineer on the mid-sized project, during a recent test drive. "Our ambitions were bigger than our ability.

"You can make efficiency gains in the use of space, but you can't create space."

To provide passengers with more usable seating space, GM engineers have taken a number of steps, such as slicing off the rear seat armrests and carving out spacious pocket depressions where elbows can rest naturally and comfortably.

IN THE COUPES, not normally known for an abundant amount of rear seat room, there is more useable space than on the '77s — 1.8 inches more hiproom and elbowroom — even though the exterior width dimension has been trimmed by an average 5.5 inches.

But if the new intermediates, which will face some stiff competition from Ford's "up-sized" Ford Fairmont and Mercury Zephyr compacts are the most visible 1978-models, engine changes could be the most dramatic.

GM'S OLDSMOBILE Division reportedly will charge an $800-$900 premium for Eighty-Eight, Ninety-Eight and Custom Cruiser models equipped with the diesel version of its 350 cubic inch V-8 which now has been renamed the 5.7-liter diesel.

What drivers give up in pep and performance, Oldsmobile is promising back in fuel economy — an estimated 25 per cent improvement over the average 18 mpg performance on the current models.

With a 27.3-gallon fuel tank, Oldsmobile says the cars should have a cruising range of more than 600 miles — enough to get you between the sparsely located service stations selling diesel fuel.

AND FOR THE enthusiast who thought performance died when Washington started requiring emission controls and fuel economy standards, there is Buick's 1978 Regal Sport Coupe powered by a turbocharged V-6 engine. It provides the economy of a small powerplant in normal driving but high performance when the accelerator is depressed.

When the "enthusiast" tromps the pedal, the turbocharger pumps a bigger air-fuel mixture into the cylinders, boosting the power from a normal 105 horsepower to 150 hp with the two-barrel carburetor and 165 hp with the four-barrel.

"For the driver, this is the best of both worlds," said GM Vice President David C. Collier. "Under normal conditions, the driver gets the economy of a small engine. But when he wants it, he has the power and performance of a V-8."

Venezuela plans oil price hike

NEW YORK (UPI) — Venezuela plans to boost heavy crude oil prices 10 to 15 cents a barrel in the fourth quarter, its first hike since increases by all members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries last January, according to Petroleum Intelligence Weekly. The publication notes the planned increases come when other OPEC members are worried about slow world demand for crude. Kuwait, for example, plans a 10-cent-a-barrel price cut in an effort to spur production. But Venezuela, because of its long-term supply contracts, has managed to maintain its output at its targeted 2.2 million to 2.3 million barrels a day.

Carpenter applications accepted

The Carpenters Apprentice and Trainee Program will be accepting applications for apprenticeship in carpentry for people who live in Cook, Lake and DuPage Counties Sept. 26-30. Applicants must file in person from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at 12 E. Erie St., Chicago. Applications received on any day during the week will receive equal considerations.

To be eligible applicants must be at least 17 years old, completed two years of high school and have a social security card. Applicants are advised to have an official copy of their high school grade transcript sent directly to the apprentice program office.

Gould signs Soviet contract

Gould Inc. announced it has signed a $6 million contract with Stankoimport, Moscow, to provide the Soviets with equipment and engineering expertise required to produce bushings. Gould signed a similar $47 million contract with the same company in 1975 which helped the Soviets build a manufacturing plant to produce bearings. Under the terms of the new contract, Soviet representatives will begin arriving in the United States early in 1978 for training at Gould's Engine Parts Division in Cleveland, and later next year Gould engineers will travel to the factory, which is located in Dimitrovgrad on the Volga River, to oversee equipment installation. The contract is expected to take two years to complete.

Gould, Inc., headquartered in Rolling Meadows, is an international developer and manufacturer of electrical and industrial products.

Protectionism dangerous: report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A rising tide of protectionism within industrial countries could seriously hamper world economic recovery, the International Monetary Fund said Sunday.

"The domestic and external economic difficulties being experienced by many countries, particularly with respect to the problem of unemployment, have given rise to pressures for protectionist measures," the fund said in its annual report.

It said national governments have been able to resist protectionist calls by specific industries so far.

THE IMF IS an organization of 131 countries that cooperate on international monetary and trade matters.

Its report said the United States, Japan and West Germany have recovered from recession faster than other industrial countries because of aggressive efforts to curb inflation.

But it said a worsening in unemployment could undermine those achievements by creating pressures to protect certain industries that can not compete effectively on an international scale.

"On the whole, such pressures have been resisted," the IMF said.

"Nevertheless, the persistence of such pressures, as evident from rising protectionist sentiments in particular industries in some industrial countries, continues to be cause for serious concern."

THE REPORT ALSO said the major industrial countries are no longer the net suppliers of financial resources for the world economy, because rising oil prices have been shifting surplus money from industrial countries to the oil-producing nations since 1973.

The IMF said industrial countries like the United States, the United Kingdom, Japan and West Germany are acting as conduits to recycle money in the international system.

"The industrial lenders are obtaining the funds in question not from national saving within the industrial group, as formerly," it said, "but directly or indirectly from placements of the surplus funds accruing to the major oil exporting countries."

Industrial nations reduced their savings and investments because funds traditionally used for these purposes are now being spent on higher energy bills.

Men too face credit discrimination

Jane Bryant Quinn

Staying ahead

NEW YORK — Many men, secure in the belief that credit discrimination is "women's lot," are shocked when it suddenly jumps out at them. Shocked and outraged. This is a problem they associate with housewives, not with their own reliable lives.

But it happens. Discrimination hits those who depart from the "normal" American standard of married man — the bachelor, the separated, the divorced. Most of their problems also are felt by women in the same position, so it's not a punishment got up especially for the male sex. In fact, divorced and separated women have it a lot worse.

But what bothers the men I interviewed is that they never expected it. They understand that women might be lower job or credit risks, but not men.

Here are some of the problems they run into:

• Mortgages. As part of their effort to comply with the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, the Mortgage Bankers Assn. surveyed the people who help customers fill in mortgage applications. These bank employes are mostly married women.

The MBA found them quite sympathetic to young women and working wives. But the employes had a definite prejudice against single men, especially if they were older. They tended to assume that the applicant was a homosexual, hence unstable and probably a poor loan prospect.

• Credit. A newly divorced man told me he was surprised to be turned down for a national credit card, because the credit reporting agency couldn't separate his personal credit history from that of his ex-wife. "I thought it was only women who had trouble establishing their own credit identity," he said.

His wife worked during their marriage, so, although the credit cards were in his name, she shared responsibility for payment. When bills were late, as they sometimes were, the credit-card company had no way of telling which one of them was particularly at fault. So it won't issue him a card until he visits the credit bureau, separates his credit history from that of his ex-wife, and establishes his personal responsibility for paying his bills.

In other cases, a person may be turned down for credit because he's separated. (On the application, you have to check whether you're married, separated or single.) This happens because the company thinks your finances are probably in an uproar.

• Income Taxes. When a man separates from his wife (and vice versa) the Internal Revenue Service really socks it to him. A married person filing separately from a spouse generally has to pay more than he would if he were single.

For example, on a taxable income of $14,000, a married man filing separately would have paid $3,550 last year, while his unmarried counterpart would have been hit for only $3,210. A separated person may get "unmarried" rates only if his child lives with him for more than six months; he pays more than half of the household's support; and his spouse didn't live with him at any time during the taxable year.

If a dependent child or relative lives with you all year, you can't even get the favorable head-of-household rate until the separation or divorce is official. A high-income person also needs a signed separation agreement or divorce decree in order to qualify for the maximum tax on earned income.

• Auto Insurance. When a man less than 30 divorces his wife, his auto insurance rates will go up, because single men of that age pay more.

• Jobs. Single men may have a harder time getting top jobs. Companies like to have a wife on tap for social duties, and believe they have a stronger economic hold on a man with a family to support. Also, they're afraid of hiring a homosexual. In self-defense, bachelors tend to tell corporate recruiters that they're engaged to be married. They figure that if they get the job, they can say that the girl ran away with a drummer.

When it comes to merit raises, a bachelor may get less, because the manager knows he doesn't have a family to support. Married men also may resent the bachelor's freedom to spend money on himself. If you're single and want regular raises, says an expert in executive compensation, don't ever flaunt a flashy living style around the office.

There's still support for classes and programs like this one that are geared specifically to community women and their needs.

Women's programs prove big success

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

"I still get some jokes, even today," said Rena Trevor. "But I have a standard reply to 'Oh, you're the head of the women's program — is there a men's program, too?' I just tell them, 'Yes, there is — the rest of the college!' "

After watching the women's program at Harper College evolve from two courses in 1970 to 45 this year, Ms. Trevor can afford to let isolated criticism roll off her back. Her program includes a women's resource center "A Room of One's Own" —pays for itself via tuition, and hopes to attract an estimated 2,000 women for the fall semester starting today.

There's a success story in the women's programs at Oakton and Elgin Community Colleges, too.

Patricia R. Handzel, director of non-traditonal programs at Oakton (a department which also encompasses senior citizens), reports that a quarter of the student body are women over age 25. Most of those women are interested in returning to school, work or both their concerns are reflected in courses and workshops like "Organizing Your Time and Household" and "Management Strategies for Women Moving Up."

At Elgin Community College, women's coordinator Blossom Wohl says there's a "steady interest" in the college's offerings this fall. The women's program started two years ago in response to a need for programs directed at community women, and while the number of offerings has remained small, "There's a real advantage to being low key," says Ms. Wohl.

PROGRAMS HAVE ranged from "Return to the Working World" — the most popular — to "Plan for the Inevitable," a Sept. 20 workshop on practical concerns after death, and there is still a smattering of "the originals" like assertiveness training.

"What was innovative at first is now old hat," commented Ms. Wohl, "but just because it's accepted doesn't mean there isn't still a need."

Her sentiments are echoed by both Ms. Handzel and Ms. Trevor, who argue that despite recent gains, a program directed specifically at women and their concerns is still a necessity in the community college curriculum.

"Everyone asks me if the interest in a women's program is diminishing, but it really isn't," said Ms. Trevor. "More and more women are recognizing that after their children are raised and leave the nest, there's still almost half a lifetime left. We're providing a way to ease into that new life . . . whether it be by going back to school, a new career or just a new educational experience."

Adds Ms. Handzel, "Colleges all over are now looking to adults to fill their classrooms, and women are the segment of that adult population that is most readily available.

"MOST OF MY EMPHASIS is on the woman who wants to make a new life outside the home (in school or job) because she's the one who needs the most help," she continued. "There are still so many women who have fears about returning to school or writing a resume — that's who we're aiming at."

While the assignment of catering to community women's changing needs is a tough one, Harper and Oakton have continued to vary their programs, depending both on recommendations from advisory boards and the students themselves.

At Harper, the first courses were of a "let's look into ourselves" nature, and they attracted women who were just stepping out of the home for the first time, said Ms. Trevor. She now notes a growing interest in courses like "Career Development" and "Back to School," a one-day seminar aimed at "taking the bugaboos out of ACT tests and enrollment procedures."

"Many of these women wonder, 'can I really hack it?', and so personal counseling is an important part," said Ms. Trevor. "Actually, those mature women who have decided to go back to school are our best students . . . they raised the curve!"

Most of the students in the women's program are between the ages of 31 and 45, but more young women in their twenties are signing up as well. "You'd think they wouldn't need it, but most girls are still raised pretty traditionally these days . . . they're just beginning to understand what it means as a result," she said.

WHILE MUCH of Harper's emphasis is on getting women out of the home and into a job or school, "There are still women who are defensive about their roles as homemakers, and we don't want to forget about them, either," she added.

"Our program was first conceived as a way for women to 'stick their feet in the water' — some of our offerings are geared to feminists, and that's fine. But we want to avoid a narrow constituency . . . our theme of 'A Woman for All Seasons' reflects that."

To that end, this fall's schedule includes seven courses under the "Family Living — Marriage and Parenting" category; many other courses, especially those in art and literature, appeal to women in all walks of life.

One of the more noticeable changes at Oakton, said Ms. Handzel, was last year's re-naming of the Adult Career Resurce Center. Though most of the center's career counseling, vocational testing and job workshops are still geared to the needs of women reentering the job market, it recognizes the fact that men, too, are making mid-life career changes.

While the women's program at Oakton has always been aimed more toward the practical than the esoteric, there is an even greater emphasis on jobs — how to get one, how to change to another, said Ms. Handzel.

"WE'RE SEEING increasing numbers of working women, as well as divorced women who are here to learn new skills. Most of our students, especially in the 30-50 age group, are here for very practical reasons," she said.

Similarly, at Elgin College a popular new course is "Second Start," an eight-week program designed to acquaint women with job opportunities in non-traditional fields like drafting and welding.

At all three colleges, classroom offerings aren't the only services provided to community women. Oakton, for example, has sponsored a women's health day and workshop on the legal problems of women; Elgin plans a seminar on the abused woman with a focus on the Elgin Crisis Center, the only facility for abused women in the area.

While the offerings keep changing, one need remains the same: that of a specialized program focusing on the middle-aged woman who is outside a traditional college curriculum.

"People thought this whole thing was a fad and that it would pass, but it hasn't," said Ms. Trevor. "There are a lot of newcomers who need something to turn to in the community . . . and the fact remains that more women are coming out of the closet all the time!"

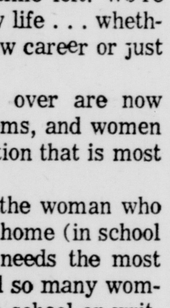
Knits sewn same way as bias seams

Eunice Farmer

Sew simple



Dear Eunice Farmer: I recently made a knit blouse that has raglan sleeves. I remember you said to apply seam tape to the shoulder seam to avoid stretching, as the sleeve seam is an extension of the shoulder. I applied the tape to the entire length of the sleeve, but it drew up and appeared too tight. What went wrong? — Marion R.

Dear Marion R.: You must stitch knits the same way you stitch bias seams — never hold them in. Instead, keep the fabric taut and pull it slightly as you stitch. You must give the seams the same elasticity the fabric has or they will pull up and the stitches will break with the slightest strain.

As for reinforcing, place the seam tape on the shoulder (about four inches only, which is approximately the width of your actual shoulder). Never place the tape in any other area.

If the knit garment has a waistline, you may wish to add the tape to the waist to stabilize the seam because of the extra pull. Be careful, though, to proceed cautiously when using tape in any seam and be sure you aren't restricting the design or fit of the garment.

Dear Eunice Farmer: How should I insert commercial cording? The part that shows between the dress and the facing is never even. — Ann R.

Dear Ann: The cording you are referring to is called "piping" because there is an edge for insertion extending from the corded edge. Usually the extension is the width of the seam allowance.

I always stitch the piping to my garment, making sure it is even and that the stitching is next to the cording. After the piping has been stitched, I check the garment by turning back the seam allowance to see exactly how much of the cording will show after the facing has been applied.

Next, I place the facing over the garment and the piping. By sewing from the inside of the garment and following the first line of stitching, my piping turns out perfect every time.

Since these pipings are so popular today, I would suggest that you save this column for future reference.

"Splicing or mending often used patterns works well if you use the pink paper tape used for hair setting. This tape doesn't dry out, crack or discolor. I keep a roll in my sewing basket and am surprised how often I use it."

Dear Eunice Farmer: I have worked out the size of pattern for myself with one exception. If the garment has a round neckline, it is always too large. If I get a size smaller, the neckline is perfect but I have to alter the rest of the garment. Help! — Mrs. V. M.

Dear Mrs. V. M.: Your problem is quite common and there are several solutions.

The easiest solution is to mark the shoulder seam a little deeper at the neckline. If you reduce the size by one-eighth inch, this will make the neckline one-half inch smaller. Or, you may add one-eighth to one-quarter inch all around to make the opening smaller. In either case, you must change the facing or collar to conform with the garment.

If the neckline of the pattern is too small, do the opposite to make it slightly larger.

You should always remember that the fit of a pattern can't be determined by the sketch on its envelope. Once you work out a perfect fit, don't take any more chances. Use the corrected pattern as a guide for all similar patterns.

A blow to male ego: women work harder

by PATRICIA MC CORMACK

Caution: Reading the following may be harmful to the male ego.

Women work longer and harder on the job than men do, according to a time use study by University of Michigan social scientists.

The men in the study, however, earned more than comparably qualified women. And investigators at the University's Insitute for Social Research say the wage gap was even greater when one considered the study results showing that women worked longer.

Greg Duncan, study director, said the time and use study showed:

• The average employed man spends 52 minutes, or 11 per cent of each working day, not working. He kills time through scheduled coffee breaks, unscheduled break times relaxing and conversing, and in lunch time beyond the normal hour.

The average working woman spends just 35 minutes, or 8 per cent of the day, in such times out.

Duncan and Frank Stafford, a University of Michigan professor of economics, said on the average the working man earns $7 an hour and the working woman, $4.34.

When work hours are adjusted to account for total break time and time spent for on-the-job training, these wage rates become $8.48 for men and $4.86 for women.

To determine that women worked harder than men, the investigators applied a work effort scale to the analysis of performance by their subjects — 208 men and 168 women.

They found:

• The effort given to the job by women is 112 per cent of that given by men.

• When education, years of work experience and total yearly work hours are taken into account, this goes up to 115 per cent.

Duncan and Stafford reported their research also showed:

• Craftsmen, operatives, males, young people and individuals with high monthly incomes spend the most time in either formal or informal work breaks.

• Professionals, union members, part-time employes working less than 30 hours a week and un-

There's still support for classes and programs like this one that are geared specifically to community women and their needs.

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

"I still get some jokes, even today," said Rena Trevor. "But I have a standard reply to 'Oh, you're the head of the women's program — is there a men's program, too?' I just tell them, 'Yes, there is — the rest of the college!' "

After watching the women's program at Harper College evolve from two courses in 1970 to 45 this year, Ms. Trevor can afford to let isolated criticism roll off her back. Her program includes a women's resource center "A Room of One's Own" —pays for itself via tuition, and hopes to attract an estimated 2,000 women for the fall semester starting today.

There's a success story in the women's programs at Oakton and Elgin Community Colleges, too.

Patricia R. Handzel, director of non-traditonal programs at Oakton (a department which also encompasses senior citizens), reports that a quarter of the student body are women over age 25. Most of those women are interested in returning to school, work or both their concerns are reflected in courses and workshops like "Organizing Your Time and Household" and "Management Strategies for Women Moving Up."

At Elgin Community College, women's coordinator Blossom Wohl says there's a "steady interest" in the college's offerings this fall. The women's program started two years ago in response to a need for programs directed at community women, and while the number of offerings has remained small, "There's a real advantage to being low key," says Ms. Wohl.

PROGRAMS HAVE ranged from "Return to the Working World" — the most popular — to "Plan for the Inevitable," a Sept. 20 workshop on practical concerns after death, and there is still a smattering of "the originals" like assertiveness training.

"What was innovative at first is now old hat," commented Ms. Wohl, "but just because it's accepted doesn't mean there isn't still a need."

Her sentiments are echoed by both Ms. Handzel and Ms. Trevor, who argue that despite recent gains, a program directed specifically at women and their concerns is still a necessity in the community college curriculum.

"Everyone asks me if the interest in a women's program is diminishing, but it really isn't," said Ms. Trevor. "More and more women are recognizing that after their children are raised and leave the nest, there's still almost half a lifetime left. We're providing a way to ease into that new life . . . whether it be by going back to school, a new career or just a new educational experience."

Adds Ms. Handzel, "Colleges all over are now looking to adults to fill their classrooms, and women are the segment of that adult population that is most readily available.

"MOST OF MY EMPHASIS is on the woman who wants to make a new life outside the home (in school or job) because she's the one who needs the most help," she continued. "There are still so many women who have fears about returning to school or writing a resume — that's who we're aiming at."

While the assignment of catering to community women's changing needs is a tough one, Harper and Oakton have continued to vary their programs, depending both on recommendations from advisory boards and the students themselves.

At Harper, the first courses were of a "let's look into ourselves" nature, and they attracted women who were just stepping out of the home for the first time, said Ms. Trevor. She now notes a growing interest in courses like "Career Development" and "Back to School," a one-day seminar aimed at "taking the bugaboos out of ACT tests and enrollment procedures."

"Many of these women wonder, 'can I really hack it?', and so personal counseling is an important part," said Ms. Trevor. "Actually, those mature women who have decided to go back to school are our best students . . . they raised the curve!"

Most of the students in the women's program are between the ages of 31 and 45, but more young women in their twenties are signing up as well. "You'd think they wouldn't need it, but most girls are still raised pretty traditionally these days . . . they're just beginning to understand what it means as a result," she said.

WHILE MUCH of Harper's emphasis is on getting women out of the home and into a job or school, "There are still women who are defensive about their roles as homemakers, and we don't want to forget about them, either," she added.

"Our program was first conceived as a way for women to 'stick their feet in the water' — some of our offerings are geared to feminists, and that's fine. But we want to avoid a narrow constituency . . . our theme of 'A Woman for All Seasons' reflects that."

The doctor says

Doctor discusses Rh blood factor

When I was in college I had an abortion. I'm Rh negative and my boyfriend was Rh positive. I had the operation in my sixth week with no complications.

Now about five years later my husband, who is Rh negative, and I are interested in starting a family. I'm concerned about the effect of the abortion on a future pregnancy.

Is there any reason I should consult a doctor before we start trying for a child? If so, what could be done?

You've got a lot going for you. An Rh negative mother may develop a sensitivity to Rh positive blood of the baby, but the baby has to be Rh positive and the sensitization doesn't start until the baby is about two months along. If you had an abortion at six weeks, that should be too early to sensitize you. Incidentally, in pregnancies that have gone longer and end in an abortion, even if it is spontaneous, the doctor can give an Rh immune globulin within 72 hours and help to protect the woman from developing the sensitivity.

Now for the really good news. We all have two genes to determine whether we are Rh positive or negative. The Rh positive gene is dominant. That means that anyone who tests out as Rh negative has two Rh negative genes and cannot transmit anything but Rh negative genes. So if you and your husband are both Rh negative, neither of you can transmit Rh positive genes and all of your children will be Rh negative. In that cas you will not develop a reaction to any of them. The problem only occurs when the baby is Rh positive and the mother is Rh negative.

Any woman who is Rh negative should be certain about her husband's blood type. If there is any chance at all that the husband has Rh positive genes, the doctors can be prepared to treat the mother at delivery if she has an Rh positive baby to protect her from becoming sensitized.

I am sending you the Health Letter number 6-4 Blood Type, Rh Factor and Transfusions, for your information. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y., 10019.

I am a woman 30 years old. I wear hard contact lenses. I've worn them for two years now.

I have bags under my eyes and I just can't get rid of them. I didn't notice the bags before when I wore regular glasses, so, do you think the contacts are causing them? Would soft contact lenses make them go away or do you know of some other way?

No. Contact lenses, hard or soft, have nothing to do with bags under your eyes. You may be able to see the area now for the first time since you can see plainly without regular glasses and the frames obscuring that area.

If you really have significant bags under the eyes, the probability at your age is that they are fat pads. We all have a natural fat pad under the lower eyelid. Cosmetic surgeons can remove them surgically, but unless they are really significant I would think you should just ignore them.

Home-canning must be done correctly

The U.S. Department of Agriculture and the National Canners Assn. are concerned about the number of people with their own vegetable gardens going into canning produce. From all the letters coming in, it's clear there's a high risk factor for those who have just begun vegetable gardening because of the high cost of store-bought goods, and who know next to nothing about canning.

Some old-timers tend to pooh-pooh the idea that non-acid foods must first be pressure-cooked. All the experts in the involved agencies are aware of the cases of deadly botulism poisoning that occur each year because of improper canning. There's not the slightest sense in growing fruits and vegetables and then canning them in such a way that the whole family ends up in the hospital. Booklets and other materials are available both from the government and from the canners' groups. If you will send me a self-addressed stamped envelope, I will be glad to send you a listing of the various informational organizations offering instructions and the prices of their publications. Some are available at no cost.

Dear Roberta: Why do you suppose some of my glassware is cloudy, and some remains clear? All go into the same dishwasher. —Mrs. L. B. Day

Some glasses might have been used for milk and then rinsed in hot water. Cold water always should be used to rinse out milk glasses before they're washed or put in the dishwasher.

Dear Roberta: How do I keep track of all the laundry instruction tags that come attached to a button of a new garment? —Lois Dick

Buy a little plastic file box for the laundry room. Mark separator cards with the name of each family member. Tape each tag to an index card on which you identify the garment, and file behind its owner's name.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas N. Duncan

Sherilyn Urben— Steven Welton

Now back at Western Michigan University are recent newlyweds Sherilyn Urben and Steven Welton. The pair were married Aug. 13 in St. Simon Episcopal Church, Arlington Heights, and spent a few days camping in Michigan before returning to their studies in Kalamazoo.

Sheri is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Don Urben of Slidell, La., and Steve is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Welton Jr. of Arlington Heights.

Sheri made her own wedding gown of white silk crepe covered with organza and trimmed in lace, with a lace cape and train. A Juliet cap of lace held her fingertip veil, and she carried a cascade of white roses and baby's breath centered with two white orchids.

ALL OF HER attendants also made their own gowns for the 2 p.m. double ring ceremony. Maid of honor Kris Yarger, Kalamazoo, wore yellow crepe with a floral printed chiffon capelet and white picture hat. The bridesmaids were Rosemary Glista, Denver; Pat Pacula, Chicago Heights; and Deborah Uppendahl, Ellicott City, Md. One wore yellow and the other two orange with the matching printed capelets and white picture hats. They all carried nosegays of orange roses, yellow carnations and baby's breath.

Also in the bridal party were flower girl Allison Urben, 3, the bride's sister, who wore yellow crepe and floral printed organza, and ring bearer Jaime Welton, 6, the groom's nephew, of Elgin.

Mr. and Mrs. Steven D. Welton

JAMES GRAHAM, Arlington Heights, was Steve's best man. Groomsmen were the couple's brothers, Bill Welton and Bret Urben, and Fred Janoske, Detroit, a Phi Sigma Epsilon fraternity brother of the groom.

Sheri and her family are formerly of Colorado where she attended high school. Steve is a graduate of Arlington High.

Weddings

Cathy Jean Peterson— Douglas N. Duncan

The St. Olaf College campus in Northfield, Minn., has been a setting for romance in two generations of the Stanley Peterson family of Mount Prospect. The Petersons met as students there, and their two daughters also have married fellow students.

On Aug. 13 Cathy Jean Peterson became the bride of Douglas N. Duncan of Kenosha, Wis., following the tradition of Cathy's sister, Nancy, and John Severson, who now live in Minneapolis.

Cathy and Douglas, son of Dr. and Mrs. James T. Duncan, were married at 6 p.m. in St. Mark Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect, with a dinner and dancing for 200 later at Rolling Green Country Club.

Cathy wore a white delustered satin gown appliqued in reembroidered Alencon lace. Her fingertip mantilla veil also edged in lace was held by a lace Juliet cap. White orchids, stephanotis and ivy were in her bouquet.

NANCY SEVERSON was her sister's matron of honor, wearing yellow dotted swiss with lace trim and a matching capelet. Her round bouquet contained yellow daisies, roses, delphiniums and orange lilies.

There were three bridesmaids, gowned identically to the matron of honor: Mrs. Janice Duncan of Kenosha, the groom's sister-in-law; Carolyn Falk, Louisville, Ky.; and Carol Rossberger, Des Plaines, a cousin of the bride.

J. Thomas Duncan, Doug's brother, served as his best man. His other attendants were Nancy's husband, John Severson; David Merritt, Paul Apyan and Donald Kitchin, all of Kenosha; Peter Swan, Racine; and Scott Tremberth, Green Bay.

AT THE NUPTIALS were the couple's grandparents: Mrs. Carl Evensen, Mount Prospect, the Ole Petersons of Minnesota, Mrs. Nels Larson of Michigan and Mrs. James Duncan of Kansas.

The newlyweds are living in Burnsville, a suburb of Minneapolis, while Doug attends Hamline University Law School. He graduated from Ripon College after leaving St. Olaf and also attended the University of Minnesota graduate School.

Cathy is a graduate of Prospect High School and earned a degree this year from St. Olaf.

Lawrence E. Lamb

The doctor says

Doctor discusses Rh blood factor

When I was in college I had an abortion. I'm Rh negative and my boyfriend was Rh positive. I had the operation in my sixth week with no complications.

Now about five years later my husband, who is Rh negative, and I are interested in starting a family. I'm concerned about the effect of the abortion on a future pregnancy.

Is there any reason I should consult a doctor before we start trying for a child? If so, what could be done?

You've got a lot going for you. An Rh negative mother may develop a sensitivity to Rh positive blood of the baby, but the baby has to be Rh positive and the sensitization doesn't start until the baby is about two months along. If you had an abortion at six weeks, that should be too early to sensitize you. Incidentally, in pregnancies that have gone longer and end in an abortion, even if it is spontaneous, the doctor can give an Rh immune globulin within 72 hours and help to protect the woman from developing the sensitivity.

Now for the really good news. We all have two genes to determine whether we are Rh positive or negative. The Rh positive gene is dominant. That means that anyone who tests out as Rh negative has two Rh negative genes and cannot transmit anything but Rh negative genes. So if you and your husband are both Rh negative, neither of you can transmit Rh positive genes and all of your children will be Rh negative. In that cas you will not develop a reaction to any of them. The problem only occurs when the baby is Rh positive and the mother is Rh negative.

Any woman who is Rh negative should be certain about her husband's blood type. If there is any chance at all that the husband has Rh positive genes, the doctors can be prepared to treat the mother at delivery if she has an Rh positive baby to protect her from becoming sensitized.

I am sending you the Health Letter number 6-4 Blood Type, Rh Factor and Transfusions, for your information. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y., 10019.

I am a woman 30 years old. I wear hard contact lenses. I've worn them for two years now.

I have bags under my eyes and I just can't get rid of them. I didn't notice the bags before when I wore regular glasses, so, do you think the contacts are causing them? Would soft contact lenses make them go away or do you know of some other way?

No. Contact lenses, hard or soft, have nothing to do with bags under your eyes. You may be able to see the area now for the first time since you can see plainly without regular glasses and the frames obscuring that area.

If you really have significant bags under the eyes, the probability at your age is that they are fat pads. We all have a natural fat pad under the lower eyelid. Cosmetic surgeons can remove them surgically, but unless they are really significant I would think you should just ignore them.

Dr. Lamb answers representative letters of general interest in his column. Write to him in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Home-canning must be done correctly

The U.S. Department of Agriculture and the National Canners Assn. are concerned about the number of people with their own vegetable gardens going into canning produce. From all the letters coming in, it's clear there's a high risk factor for those who have just begun vegetable gardening because of the high cost of store-bought goods, and who know next to nothing about canning.

Some old-timers tend to pooh-pooh the idea that non-acid foods must first be pressure-cooked. All the experts in the involved agencies are aware of the cases of deadly botulism poisoning that occur each year because of improper canning. There's not the slightest sense in growing fruits and vegetables and then canning them in such a way that the whole family ends up in the hospital. Booklets and other materials are available both from the government and from the canners' groups. If you will send me a self-addressed stamped envelope, I will be glad to send you a listing of the various informational organizations offering instructions and the prices of their publications. Some are available at no cost.

Dear Roberta: Why do you suppose some of my glassware is cloudy, and some remains clear? All go into the same dishwasher. —Mrs. L. B. Day

Some glasses might have been used for milk and then rinsed in hot water. Cold water always should be used to rinse out milk glasses before they're washed or put in the dishwasher.

Dear Roberta: How do I keep track of all the laundry instruction tags that come attached to a button of a new garment? —Lois Dick

Buy a little plastic file box for the laundry room. Mark separator cards with the name of each family member. Tape each tag to an index card on which you identify the garment, and file behind its owner's name.

(Mrs. Mathews welcome questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Roberta Mathews in care of this newspaper.)

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas N. Duncan

Sherilyn Urben— Steven Welton

Now back at Western Michigan University are recent newlyweds Sherilyn Urben and Steven Welton. The pair were married Aug. 13 in St. Simon Episcopal Church, Arlington Heights, and spent a few days camping in Michigan before returning to their studies in Kalamazoo.

Sheri is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Don Urben of Slidell, La., and Steve is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Welton Jr. of Arlington Heights.

Sheri made her own wedding gown of white silk crepe covered with organza and trimmed in lace, with a lace cape and train. A Juliet cap of lace held her fingertip veil, and she carried a cascade of white roses and baby's breath centered with two white orchids.

ALL OF HER attendants also made their own gowns for the 2 p.m. double ring ceremony. Maid of honor Kris Yarger, Kalamazoo, wore yellow crepe with a floral printed chiffon capelet and white picture hat. The bridesmaids were Rosemary Glista, Denver; Pat Pacula, Chicago Heights; and Deborah Uppendahl, Ellicott City, Md. One wore yellow and the other two orange with the matching printed capelets and white picture hats. They all carried nosegays of orange roses, yellow carnations and baby's breath.

Also in the bridal party were flower girl Allison Urben, 3, the bride's sister, who wore yellow crepe and floral printed organza, and ring bearer Jaime Welton, 6, the groom's nephew, of Elgin.

Mr. and Mrs. Steven D. Welton

JAMES GRAHAM, Arlington Heights, was Steve's best man. Groomsmen were the couple's brothers, Bill Welton and Bret Urben, and Fred Janoske, Detroit, a Phi Sigma Epsilon fraternity brother of the groom.

Sheri and her family are formerly of Colorado where she attended high school. Steve is a graduate of Arlington High.

Cupid's Deadlines:
Engagements due at least six weeks before wedding date.
Marriages due three weeks after wedding for complete story; five weeks after wedding for brief story.

Weddings

Cathy Jean Peterson— Douglas N. Duncan

The St. Olaf College campus in Northfield, Minn., has been a setting for romance in two generations of the Stanley Peterson family of Mount Prospect. The Petersons met as students there, and their two daughters also have married fellow students.

On Aug. 13 Cathy Jean Peterson became the bride of Douglas N. Duncan of Kenosha, Wis., following the tradition of Cathy's sister, Nancy, and John Severson, who now live in Minneapolis.

Cathy and Douglas, son of Dr. and Mrs. James T. Duncan, were married at 6 p.m. in St. Mark Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect, with a dinner and dancing for 200 later at Rolling Green Country Club.

Cathy wore a white delustered satin gown appliqued in reembroidered Alencon lace. Her fingertip mantilla veil also edged in lace was held by a lace Juliet cap. White orchids, stephanotis and ivy were in her bouquet.

NANCY SEVERSON was her sister's matron of honor, wearing yellow dotted swiss with lace trim and a matching capelet. Her round bouquet contained yellow daisies, roses, delphiniums and orange lilies.

There were three bridesmaids, gowned identically to the matron of honor: Mrs. Janice Duncan of Kenosha, the groom's sister-in-law; Carolyn Falk, Louisville, Ky.; and Carol Rossberger, Des Plaines, a cousin of the bride.

J. Thomas Duncan, Doug's brother, served as his best man. His other attendants were Nancy's husband, John Severson; David Merritt, Paul Apyan and Donald Kitchin, all of Kenosha; Peter Swan, Racine; and Scott Tremberth, Green Bay.

AT THE NUPTIALS were the couple's grandparents: Mrs. Carl Evensen, Mount Prospect, the Ole Petersons of Minnesota, Mrs. Nels Larson of Michigan and Mrs. James Duncan of Kansas.

The newlyweds are living in Burnsville, a suburb of Minneapolis, while Doug attends Hamline University Law School. He graduated from Ripon College after leaving St. Olaf and also attended the University of Minnesota graduate School.

Cathy is a graduate of Prospect High School and earned a degree this year from St. Olaf.

PICKING POSIES is easy for Sylvia Ney, Jan Kardonsky and Angela Schneider, but they'll get tips on turning them into attractive arrangements Tuesday evening at the Buffalo Grove Garden Club meeting in Raupp Memorial Building. Mrs. Charles Liebal of Wheaton will demonstrate use of fresh and dried flowers at 7:30. Guests are welcome.

Three new clubs form in suburbs

Several new clubs are starting this fall, including Suburban Single Mothers, PEP (People Enjoying People) and Women of the Word.

All women who are single mothers — through death, divorce or by choice — are invited to a meeting and rap session of Suburban Single Mothers at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 20, in Lincoln Federal Savings, Higgins Road and Gannon Dr., Hoffman Estates. Speaker will be Laleace Williams, account executive for Merrill Lynch, whose subject will be "Financial Freedom for Women."

Meetings will be held the third Tuesday of each month, and those wishing further information may call 884-1239.

PEP, A non-denominational group for windows and widowers, will be meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the club room at St. Hubert Church, Hoffman Estates. The club's goals are to provide social entertainment, emotional support and religious needs for its members.

The newly-formed Elk Grove Chapter of Women of the Word, a Christian group of all denominations, will open the season this Tuesday with a coffee at 9:15 a.m. in the multi-purpose room of the Elk Grove Baptist Church, Bisner Road, just north of Alexian Brothers Medical Center.

Teaching the series will be Gladys Dickelman of Barrington, co-director of a Barrington counseling service. Women interested in further information may call Mrs. John Hoffman, 439-7465.

New service to clubs

The Daily Herald welcomes notices of club meetings and special events. Meeting notices will be published automatically in the Monday club calendar if you will fill out the coupon on this page.

If you wish to add your meeting program to this calendar, the information should be typed or printed on club news forms which are available from The Daily Herald offices, 217 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights. Deadline is 5 p.m. Tuesdays for publication the following Monday.

Special events such as election of officers, scholarship presentations, dinners, coffees, fashion shows, carnivals and other money-making projects should be reported separately.

Because of the number of organizations, we regret we cannot take notices by phone. Please mail releases to Club Editor, The Daily Herald, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill., 60006; or bring to our offices. Also, please include your name and phone number in case of questions.

Wanted: volunteers

(Interested in helping others? The following "job openings" for volunteers are listed by the Volunteer Service Bureau of Northwest Cook County, 301 W. South St., Arlington Heights, phone 398-1320.)

Big Sister, Big Brother, Boys Club and Youth Commission programs need young adults — Married or single — willing to give room and board for 6 to 12 months to a teenager not quite ready to be on his or her own. Expenses will be repaid by agency.

Tutors are needed in the Hanover Park area for a program geared to high school drop-outs wanting to get a G.E.D. Subjects are math, English, literature, social studies, U.S. Constitution and reading. Classes start this month, Monday and Thursday, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Classes will have no more than 10 pupils.

Volunteers to supervise neglected and dependent children in Elk Grove, Palatine, Schaumburg and Wheeling townships.

Drivers to transport foster children to medical, dental or therapy appointments and babysitting, allowing foster parents to keep commitments.

Tutors for foreign born students of all ages are needed at the Laubach Literacy Centers in Hanover Park, Elk Grove Village, Palatine and Des Plaines. Fifteen hours of training and a commitment of at least a year are needed.

Volunteers to work with persons released from jail in order to help them find jobs and start new lives.

Drivers for the elderly, handicapped and needy.

Workers willing to commit themselves for at least six months are needed by Hot Lines. Volunteers will get valuable training and experience.

Volunteers are needed to visit nursing homes, shop for shut-ins or deliver hot meals on wheels.

THE DAILY HERALD

CLUB CALENDAR

PICKING POSIES is easy for Sylvia Ney, Jan Kardonsky and Angela Schneider, but they'll get tips on turning them into attractive arrangements Tuesday evening at the Buffalo Grove Garden Club meeting in Raupp Memorial Building. Mrs. Charles Liebal of Wheaton will demonstrate use of fresh and dried flowers at 7:30. Guests are welcome.

Three new clubs form in suburbs

Several new clubs are starting this fall, including Suburban Single Mothers, PEP (People Enjoying People) and Women of the Word.

All women who are single mothers — through death, divorce or by choice — are invited to a meeting and rap session of Suburban Single Mothers at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 20, in Lincoln Federal Savings, Higgins Road and Gannon Dr., Hoffman Estates. Speaker will be Laleace Williams, account executive for Merrill Lynch, whose subject will be "Financial Freedom for Women."

Meetings will be held the third Tuesday of each month, and those wishing further information may call 884-1239.

PEP, A non-denominational group for windows and widowers, will be meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the club room at St. Hubert Church, Hoffman Estates. The club's goals are to provide social entertainment, emotional support and religious needs for its members.

The newly-formed Elk Grove Chapter of Women of the Word, a Christian group of all denominations, will open the season this Tuesday with a coffee at 9:15 a.m. in the multi-purpose room of the Elk Grove Baptist Church, Bisner Road, just north of Alexian Brothers Medical Center.

Teaching the series will be Gladys Dickelman of Barrington, co-director of a Barrington counseling service. Women interested in further information may call Mrs. John Hoffman, 439-7465.

New service to clubs

The Daily Herald welcomes notices of club meetings and special events. Meeting notices will be published automatically in the Monday club calendar if you will fill out the coupon on this page.

If you wish to add your meeting program to this calendar, the information should be typed or printed on club news forms which are available from The Daily Herald offices, 217 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights. Deadline is 5 p.m. Tuesdays for publication the following Monday.

Special events such as election of officers, scholarship presentations, dinners, coffees, fashion shows, carnivals and other money-making projects should be reported separately.

Because of the number of organizations, we regret we cannot take notices by phone. Please mail releases to Club Editor, The Daily Herald, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill., 60006; or bring to our offices. Also, please include your name and phone number in case of questions.

Wanted: volunteers

(Interested in helping others? The following "job openings" for volunteers are listed by the Volunteer Service Bureau of Northwest Cook County, 301 W. South St., Arlington Heights, phone 398-1320.)

Big Sister, Big Brother, Boys Club and Youth Commission programs need young adults — Married or single — willing to give room and board for 6 to 12 months to a teenager not quite ready to be on his or her own. Expenses will be repaid by agency.

Tutors are needed in the Hanover Park area for a program geared to high school drop-outs wanting to get a G.E.D. Subjects are math, English, literature, social studies, U.S. Constitution and reading. Classes start this month, Monday and Thursday, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Classes will have no more than 10 pupils.

Volunteers to supervise neglected and dependent children in Elk Grove, Palatine, Schaumburg and Wheeling townships.

Drivers to transport foster children to medical, dental or therapy appointments and babysitting, allowing foster parents to keep commitments.

Tutors for foreign born students of all ages are needed at the Laubach Literacy Centers in Hanover Park, Elk Grove Village, Palatine and Des Plaines. Fifteen hours of training and a commitment of at least a year are needed.

Volunteers to work with persons released from jail in order to help them find jobs and start new lives.

Drivers for the elderly, handicapped and needy.

Workers willing to commit themselves for at least six months are needed by Hot Lines. Volunteers will get valuable training and experience.

Volunteers are needed to visit nursing homes, shop for shut-ins or deliver hot meals on wheels.

Diane Mermigas

'Roots' actor to star in drama

LeVar Burton is breaking away from the chains of slavery he wore during his acting debut in "Roots" to star in a moving drama about growing up in the ghetto.

The 20-year-old actor says tonight's special, "Billy: Portrait of a Street Kid," will be just the beginning of a long career filled with character parts that will distinguish him from his first professional role and the one that made him an overnight success — Kunta Kinte.

"The associations the public still has between myself and the character, Kunta Kinte, are still very strong. And I'm proud of that role and that story," Burton said during a recent Chicago interview. "But as my career goes along and as I get into different roles, I think people will see how versatile I can be and they will no longer think of me as just that character."

LE VAR BURTON

THE DRAMATICS sophomore at the University of California says he has been bombarded with acting offers in television, films and stage since "Roots" made ratings history on ABC in January. But he is not in a hurry to accept every role that comes along.

"I have been very cautious. I like adventure and action stories, and I especially like stories with positive endings and positive ideals. I'm a romanticist but I feel it's important to portray life as it really is," Burton said. "I must be able to relate to a part on an emotional level before I can accept the role."

Although "Billy: Portrait of a Street Kid," which airs at 8 p.m. today on Channel 5, may be a contemporary extension of the black experience from "Roots," Burton says he was interested in the made-for-television movie because it "realistically reflects" the life of youths in the ghetto.

BILLY PEOPLES is hooked on education and animals. He works in Dr. Silver's veterinary hospital after school and attends special veterinary classes at night. He falls in love with a girl named Roseanna, played by Tina Andrews of "Sandford Arms" and "Days of Our Lives."

She gets pregnant, has a back alley abortion and dies from internal bleeding leaving Billy to blame himself for the tragedy because he did not have enough funds to pay for reliable medical help.

Certainly not all the stories out of any city's ghetto have happy endings, but this one does. After attempting suicide, distraught over his girl friend's death, Billy is aided by a psychiatrist and the veterinarian, portrayed in the firm but understanding father image by Michael Constantine. He eventually returns to veterinary work and study — "with nowhere to go but up."

IT'S NOT A PRETTY story. The barriers of poverty, lack of opportunity and low social class create a bleak view of life and put confused adolescents into a paranoia and depression that often leads to a destructive end.

"But it's a real story and I did it because of the message it has. It's about a kid trying to get his life together even though there are a lot of obstacles in his way. But, as hopeless as it may seem, he does make it," Burton said. "It's a story that everyone can relate to."

"Billy: Portrait of a Street Kid," filmed on location in Los Angeles, is based on the Robert C. S. Downs novel, "Peoples." The television drama is filled with genuine human experience, from the moment that Billy assists the doctor in an emergency surgery and helps deliver a litter of pups to Billy's troubled but affectionate talks with Roseanne over their dilemma. It is good family viewing with a decent message.

TV NOTES:

• Recent changes on NBC's "Today" show have been a real eye-opener. Host Tom Brokaw, Jane Pauley and Gene Shalit have come out from behind their anchor desks, along with John Chancellor and David Brinkley on the revamped "NBC Nightly News," to sit free style and roam about the set at will. That along with new features are geared toward giving the show a more breezy image and to firm the competition between the morning news show king and ABC's highly rated "Good Morning, America."

New features include "What's Hot," a look at current fads of the American culture; "Living," which examines how people cope with different experiences and "Washington on the Spot," in which government officials are questioned by the man-on-the-street.

Consumer reports by Betty Furness and "Critic's Corner" with Shalit have both been expanded to twice weekly on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Brokaw and Ms. Pauley will also do more features on the show, which airs weekdays from 7 to 9 a.m.

• "Lee Phillip — Mort Crim Noonbreak" starts today at noon on Channel 2. The revamping of Ms. Phillip's veteran noon talk show makes it more competitive with WMAQ's similar noon offering with Jorie Lueloff. The new show will feature opening and closing news reports by Crim, new co-anchor of WBBM's 6 p.m. news; a contemporary more news-styled set; more on-location reports and more guests per half hour addressing a broader range of topics.

This week's guests will include Chicago Mayor Michael Bilandic, CBS President Robert Wussler and Illinois Gov. James R. Thompson.

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

• "Young Dan'l Boone," the frontier adventure series of the legendary hero, starts at 7 p.m. on Channel 2.

• "Lucan," the boy raised by wolves, continues the country-wide search for his real parents in this periodic ABC series that airs at 7 p.m. on Channel 7.

• "The Betty White Show," which finds the former "Mary Tyler Moore" actress with her own television detective show, begins at 8 p.m. on Channel 2.

• The UCLA Bruins play the Cotton Bowl-winning Houston Cougars in college football at 8 p.m. on Channel 7.

No magic spell in script of 'Bell, Book and Candle'

A shake-up in the artistic management of the Country Club Comedy Theatre in Mount Prospect has produced a hit with John van Druten's tame comedy, "Bell, Book and Candle."

The play opened Friday, and continues Tuesdays through Sundays until Nov. 1.

Kent Monken has left his position as director of the Rustic Barn dinner theater in Bloomingdale to become the Country Club's managing director. The theater management, apparently discouraged by loss of revenue during Tom Ventriss' two year stint as director, decided to fire Ventriss and bring in some new blood.

BASED ON MONKEN'S first production, the move was a success.

Despite an unspectacular script, the current production of "Bell, Book and Candle" is a solid piece of drawing room comedy. It is slickly played by a cast of seasoned local actors and actresses who never stumble for a line and never lose their sense of pace.

The play is neatly enjoyable and displays none of the embarrassing amateurism you find so often in community theater.

MONKEN LOATHES to be labeled "community theater." His cast and crew may not be union members, but they are paid, and their performances are entirely professional, Monken says.

The Country Club Comedy Theatre in fact does have several features lacking in most suburban theaters: comfortable seats; a roomy thrust stage — providing unlimited staging possibilities; tasteful set design by Larry Peterson.

Gene Weygandt and Nancy Syburg star in "Bell, Book and Candle."

The Country Club theater maintains one feature, however, that is the bain of most community groups: mundane scripts.

"BELL, BOOK and Candle" is the frothy fifties comedy about witchcraft that was later turned into the television show, "Bewitched." This reviewer never saw the magic in the TV show, and the enchantment of this production can only be attributed to the tastefully understated direction of Stephen Richards.

Monken's first act as managing director was to hire Richards, an old friend he met when they were both students at Illinois State, as "production coordinator." Richards directed this first play, but will share director responsibilities with Monken in the future.

Richards and Monken admit "Bell, Book and Candle" is dated, but say they had nothing to do with its selection, or with the selection of the next play, "Barefoot in the Park," opening Nov. 2.

BELL, BOOK and Candle" is indeed dated. If Monken hopes to shed completely the label "community theater," he'll have to select some more intelligent and modern scripts.

Monken hints that he's interested in doing some serious drama in the near future, taking the "comedy" out of the Country Club Comedy Theatre. For this year, however, he's stuck to the tried and true.

Following "Barefoot in the Park," Monken has picked three more surefire comedies: "Holiday Leave," a forties musical revue; "God Help the Rabbi;" and "Auntie Mame."

Telethon to raise funds for LWV

This year for the first time, the Palatine League of Women Voters will stage a Telethon to commence its annual finance drive.

All League members will take part in the event, Sept. 19-23, calling merchants, corporations and business firms in the area urging their contributions. Letters will be sent to past contributors and any interested individuals.

The finance goal is $1,000. All money raised locally will be spent locally on citizen education and voting information. Those who wish more detailed information may call 358-4319.

LWV invites you

The League of Women Voters of Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates invites the public to attend its membership night Tuesday, Sept. 20, at 8 p.m. in the Schaumburg Township Library.

Guest speakers Raymond Kessell, Schaumburg mayor, and Virginia Hayter, Hoffman Estates mayor, will discuss "League's Community Role — Your Opinion, What We Have Done, What We Could Do."

The League is a non-partisan political organization whose purpose is to encourage citizens to participate actively in government and politics. For more information, or to arrange transportation, readers may call Susan Hooker at 893-1219, or Judy Fitzgerald, 289-8621.

Happenings

DAR workshop set

The Twenty-first Star Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) will be represented at a "DAR Day" workshop in Lombard on Friday, Sept. 16.

Chapter regent Mrs. Ronald Muck of Park Ridge will lead the group, which will include national defense director Mrs. Arthur Mazzenga of Mount Prospect; immediate past regent and American Indians and conservation director Mrs. Harold Yepsen; and honorary and past regent and second vice regent for membership, Mrs. Virgil Liptrap, both of Park Ridge.

Coffee with the Kappas

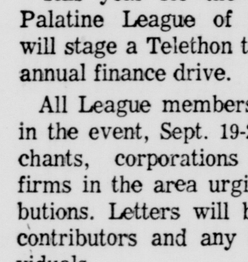
Two get-acquainted coffees for the Arlington Heights Area Alumnae Association of Kappa Kappa Gamma will be held Wednesday, Sept. 21, in the home of Jan Pohl, 417 Banbury Road, Arlington Heights. One begins at 10 a.m. and the other at 8 p.m. All new alums in the area are invited to call Ginny Quaal, 358-7143, for more information.

Who's got the deal?

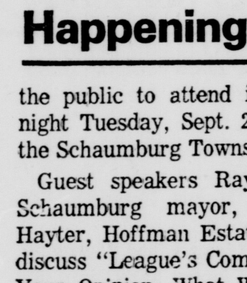
The Ladies Auxiliary Veterans of Foreign Wars Arlington Post 981, will hold a card party and penny social Wednesday, Sept. 21, beginning at 8 p.m. at the post clubhouse, 811 N. Yale, Arlington Heights.

Tickets at $1.50 may be obtained from auxiliary members or at the door the evening of the party.

Sisters engaged



Ann Ward



Rebecca Ward

Two daughters in the Joseph Ward family of Arlington Heights are engaged and both have fiances by the same given name.

Ann Ward is betrothed to Marc Basanez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Basanez of San Francisco. Rebecca, her sister, is engaged to Mark Damore, son of the M. H. Damores of Elk Grove Village.

Ann and Marc will be married in October. Both are working in Los Angeles, she for United Airlines and he for Cessi Diesel. Ann graduated from Sacred Heart of Mary High School and earned a degree last year from the University of Utah at Salt Lake City. Her fiance also graduated from the university, but in '75.

Rebecca and Mark plan an April 1978 wedding. She attended Sacred Heart of Mary High and the University of Arizona. Mark graduated from Elk Grove High School and is now with Chicago Produce.

'Horizons' courses begin

Three all-day offerings will launch the Harper College Women's Expanding Horizons workshop series this fall.

"I've Got to Get Organized!", a workshop on time, home and money management, will be offered Thursday from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. in the college Board Rooms, Building A on the Palatine campus.

Beverly DeGiulio, known professionally as "Mrs. Fixit," will lead "The Handywoman Workshop," a lecture and demonstration on the "how to's" of home repairs and decorating Tuesday, Sept. 20, from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. in Building A, Room 242ab.

"Transactional Analysis," which presents a new means of understanding human behavior, will be led by Pat Reardon of Crystal Lake Thursday, Sept. 22, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the college Board Rooms.

Tuition for each workshop is $10 and includes lunch. To enroll, telephone the college Continuing Education Admissions Office at 397-3000, exten ion 410.

Child care is available for a fee and reservations may be made by telephoning 397-3000, extension 262.

'Roots' actor to star in drama

LeVar Burton is breaking away from the chains of slavery he wore during his acting debut in "Roots" to star in a moving drama about growing up in the ghetto.

The 20-year-old actor says tonight's special, "Billy: Portrait of a Street Kid," will be just the beginning of a long career filled with character parts that will distinguish him from his first professional role and the one that made him an overnight success — Kunta Kinte.

"The associations the public still has between myself and the character, Kunta Kinte, are still very strong. And I'm proud of that role and that story," Burton said during a recent Chicago interview. "But as my career goes along and as I get into different roles, I think people will see how versatile I can be and they will no longer think of me as just that character."

THE DRAMATICS sophomore at the University of California says he has been bombarded with acting offers in television, films and stage since "Roots" made ratings history on ABC in January. But he is not in a hurry to accept every role that comes along.

"I have been very cautious. I like adventure and action stories, and I especially like stories with positive endings and positive ideals. I'm a romanticist but I feel it's important to portray life as it really is," Burton said. "I must be able to relate to a part on an emotional level before I can accept the role."

Although "Billy: Portrait of a Street Kid," which airs at 8 p.m. today on Channel 5, may be a contemporary extension of the black experience from "Roots," Burton says he was interested in the made-for-television movie because it "realistically reflects" the life of youths in the ghetto.

BILLY PEOPLES is hooked on education and animals. He works in Dr. Silver's veterinary hospital after school and attends special veterinary classes at night. He falls in love with a girl named Roseanna, played by Tina Andrews of "Sandford Arms" and "Days of Our Lives."

She gets pregnant, has a back alley abortion and dies from internal bleeding leaving Billy to blame himself for the tragedy because he did not have enough funds to pay for reliable medical help.

Certainly not all the stories out of any city's ghetto have happy endings, but this one does. After attempting suicide, distraught over his girl friend's death, Billy is aided by a psychiatrist and the veterinarian, portrayed in the firm but understanding father image by Michael Constantine. He eventually returns to veterinary work and study — "with nowhere to go but up."

IT'S NOT A PRETTY story. The barriers of poverty, lack of opportunity and low social class create a bleak view of life and put confused adolescents into a paranoia and depression that often leads to a destructive end.

"But it's a real story and I did it because of the message it has. It's about a kid trying to get his life together even though there are a lot of obstacles in his way. But, as hopeless as it may seem, he does make it," Burton said. "It's a story that everyone can relate to."

"Billy: Portrait of a Street Kid," filmed on location in Los Angeles, is based on the Robert C. S. Downs novel, "Peoples." The television drama is filled with genuine human experience, from the moment that Billy assists the doctor in an emergency surgery and helps deliver a litter of pups to Billy's troubled but affectionate talks with Roseanne over their dilemma. It is good family viewing with a decent message.

TV NOTES:

• Recent changes on NBC's "Today" show have been a real eye-opener. Host Tom Brokaw, Jane Pauley and Gene Shalit have come out from behind their anchor desks, along with John Chancellor and David Brinkley on the revamped "NBC Nightly News," to sit free style and roam about the set at will. That along with new features are geared toward giving the show a more breezy image and to firm the competition between the morning news show king and ABC's highly rated "Good Morning, America."

New features include "What's Hot," a look at current fads of the American culture; "Living," which examines how people cope with different experiences and "Washington on the Spot," in which government officials are questioned by the man-on-the-street.

Consumer reports by Betty Furness and "Critic's Corner" with Shalit have both been expanded to twice weekly on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Brokaw and Ms. Pauley will also do more features on the show, which airs weekdays from 7 to 9 a.m.

• "Lee Phillip — Mort Crim Noonbreak" starts today at noon on Channel 2. The revamping of Ms. Phillip's veteran noon talk show makes it more competitive with WMAQ's similar noon offering with Jorie Lueloff. The new show will feature opening and closing news reports by Crim, new co-anchor of WBBM's 6 p.m. news; a contemporary more news-styled set; more on-location reports and more guests per half hour addressing a broader range of topics.

This week's guests will include Chicago Mayor Michael Bilandic, CBS President Robert Wussler and Illinois Gov. James R. Thompson.

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

• "Young Dan'l Boone," the frontier adventure series of the legendary hero, starts at 7 p.m. on Channel 2.

• "Lucan," the boy raised by wolves, continues the country-wide search for his real parents in this periodic ABC series that airs at 7 p.m. on Channel 7.

• "The Betty White Show," which finds the former "Mary Tyler Moore" actress with her own television detective show, begins at 8 p.m. on Channel 2.

• The UCLA Bruins play the Cotton Bowl-winning Houston Cougars in college football at 8 p.m. on Channel 7.

Proposed Highway Project

NOTICE IS HERBY GIVEN to all interested persons that a Public Hearing will be held regarding the proposed grade separation improvement of Arlington Heights Road with the Chicago and North Western Transportation Company railroad tracks. The approximate limits of this improvement are: on Arlington Heights Road from a point 200 feet south of George Street to a point 200 feet north of Miner Street; and on Northwest Highway from Vail Avenue to approximately Belmont Avenue.

Among other alternatives to be discussed at the hearing, the improvement recommended in the completed engineering study consists of maintaining the railroad tracks at their existing elevation and depressing Arlington Heights Road to pass under the tracks with a minimum vertical clearnace of 14'-6". Northwest Highway would also be depressed below existing grade to form a depressed at-grade intersection with Arlington Heights Road. Both roadways will be widened to provide four 12-foot lanes with a 16-foot median. The Arlington Heights Road approaches at Northwest Highway will also have separate 12-foot right turn lanes. Wing Street, Evergreen Avenue and Davis Street are proposed to be cul-de-saced at their intersections with Arlington Heights Road and Northwest Highway. The intersection of Sigwalt Street with Arlington Heights Road is also proposed to be widened and channelized.

Acquisition of additional right-of-way, as well as displacement and acquisition of several businesses will be required by this improvement. The Department of

Notice of Public Hearing

Proposed Highway Project

NOTICE IS HERBY GIVEN to all interested persons that a Public Hearing will be held regarding the proposed grade separation improvement of Arlington Heights Road with the Chicago and North Western Transportation Company railroad tracks. The approximate limits of this improvement are: on Arlington Heights Road from a point 200 feet south of George Street to a point 200 feet north of Miner Street; and on Northwest Highway from Vail Avenue to approximately Belmont Avenue.

Among other alternatives to be discussed at the hearing, the improvement recommended in the completed engineering study consists of maintaining the railroad tracks at their existing elevation and depressing Arlington Heights Road to pass under the tracks with a minimum vertical clearnace of 14'-6". Northwest Highway would also be depressed below existing grade to form a depressed at-grade intersection with Arlington Heights Road. Both roadways will be widened to provide four 12-foot lanes with a 16-foot median. The Arlington Heights Road approaches at Northwest Highway will also have separate 12-foot right turn lanes. Wing Street, Evergreen Avenue and Davis Street are proposed to be cul-de-saced at their intersections with Arlington Heights Road and Northwest Highway. The intersection of Sigwalt Street with Arlington Heights Road is also proposed to be widened and channelized.

Acquisition of additional right-of-way, as well as displacement and acquisition of several businesses will be required by this improvement. The Department of Transportation's relocation adv

Jim: "We get so many letters about the Blackwood convention that we really ought to devote some more articles to slam bidding and the proper use of this fine convention."

Oswald: "Here is an example of its abuse. A Canadian reader wanted to know how he could have reached the lay down six-spade contract. His bidding is shown in the box."

Jim: "North violated the first rule for when not to use Blackwood. You just should not use Blackwood when you have a worthless doubleton in any suit not bid by your partner."

Oswald: "The scientific bidders would start with a three-diamond bid by North. South would rebid three spades, North four clubs and South six clubs. He would like his clubs and his singleton heart whereupon North would close the bidding at six spades."

Jim: "There is also a fairly simple, but elegant way to get to six. North bids five spades right away. This bid asks partner to cue bid if he can take the first heart, to bid six spades if he can take the second one and to pass if he is looking at two quick heart losers."

Ask Andy

Coins' marks tell where they were minted

Andy sends a World Book Year Book to Jimmy King, 12, of Burkeville, Va., for his question:

WHAT ARE MINT MARKS ON COINS IN MY COLLECTION?

A person who collects coins is called a numismatist, and the hobby of collecting or studying coins is called numismatics. The words come from the Greek nomisma and the Latin numisma. Both mean piece of money or coin. Coin collecting is one of the world's most popular hobbies.

Many persons collect coins as an investment. The value of coins always seems to go up as the coins get older.

There are a number of different ways of saving coins. Some persons specialize in certain types of coins, hoping to get one of every date. Others collect all types of coins from their own and other countries.

Lots of persons specialize in proof coins. These have mirrorlike surfaces and are struck at a coin-making mint especially for collectors.

Uncirculated coins are those that have been struck for general circulation but that collectors set aside before they have been used.

Collectors call some coins "extremely fine," meaning they have been in circulation but show very slight signs of wear, and others "very fine," meaning some of the original shine is still showing. A classification of "fine" means the coin has no shine, while others are rated "very good" and "good," meaning they have some wear but the entire design is still clear.

In your collection you'll find mint marks on some of your U.S. coins. If the coin has been struck in either Denver or San Francisco you'll find a small D or S stamped on one side. The coins without mint marks come from Philadelphia because all of the country's coins come from mints in one of these three cities.

Some older coins contain marks from mints no longer in operation. Carson City used "cc," an "o" appeared on coins from New Orleans and a mint in Charlotte, N.C., used "c." A mintmark of "d" was used on gold coins made from 1838 until 1861 in Dahlonega, Ga.

Before 1965, all U.S. half dollars, quarters and dimes contained 90 per cent silver. Then the government made a reduction of the silver on dimes and quarters, adding a core of nickel and copper. Half-dollars joined the reduction in 1971. All-silver coins are now rare.

Among the most difficult of the mass-circulated coins to obtain in the United States are the buffalo nickel and the Indian-head penny. You can find them in circulation occasionally, but not too often.

Andy sends the 1977 World Book Science Year Annual to Marc Webb, 8, of South Sioux City, Neb., for his question:

ARE CATTAILS USEFUL?

Those wild plants called cattails — they were given the name because they look like the tails of cats — can be found in swamps and marshes throughout the United States and the southern part of Canada. They can get to be six feet tall. On the Pacific Coast they are known as tule-reeds.

Cattails have quite a number of useful features. First of all, they make excellent decorations in homes. Florists make good use of them in special arrangements.

Roots of cattails contain a starch that is eaten by many, including Russians. The English eat them under the name of Cossak asparagus.

A silky down from cattails is used for dressing wounds, and the plant has also been used as a substitute for cotton. Some use the highly inflammable pollen as tinder.

Send your question on a post card to Ask Andy in care of The Daily Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006, making sure to include your name, age and address. Entries are open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

Coins' marks tell where they were minted

Andy sends a World Book Year Book to Jimmy King, 12, of Burkeville, Va., for his question:

WHAT ARE MINT MARKS ON COINS IN MY COLLECTION?

A person who collects coins is called a numismatist, and the hobby of collecting or studying coins is called numismatics. The words come from the Greek nomisma and the Latin numisma. Both mean piece of money or coin. Coin collecting is one of the world's most popular hobbies.

Many persons collect coins as an investment. The value of coins always seems to go up as the coins get older.

There are a number of different ways of saving coins. Some persons specialize in certain types of coins, hoping to get one of every date. Others collect all types of coins from their own and other countries.

Lots of persons specialize in proof coins. These have mirrorlike surfaces and are struck at a coin-making mint especially for collectors.

Uncirculated coins are those that have been struck for general circulation but that collectors set aside before they have been used.

Collectors call some coins "extremely fine," meaning they have been in circulation but show very slight signs of wear, and others "very fine," meaning some of the original shine is still showing. A classification of "fine" means the coin has no shine, while others are rated "very good" and "good," meaning they have some wear but the entire design is still clear.

In your collection you'll find mint marks on some of your U.S. coins. If the coin has been struck in either Denver or San Francisco you'll find a small D or S stamped on one side. The coins without mint marks come from Philadelphia because all of the country's coins come from mints in one of these three cities.

Some older coins contain marks from mints no longer in operation. Carson City used "cc," an "o" appeared on coins from New Orleans and a mint in Charlotte, N.C., used "c." A mintmark of "d" was used on gold coins made from 1838 until 1861 in Dahlonega, Ga.

Before 1965, all U.S. half dollars, quarters and dimes contained 90 per cent silver. Then the government made a reduction of the silver on dimes and quarters, adding a core of nickel and copper. Half-dollars joined the reduction in 1971. All-silver coins are now rare.

Among the most difficult of the mass-circulated coins to obtain in the United States are the buffalo nickel and the Indian-head penny. You can find them in circulation occasionally, but not too often.

Andy sends the 1977 World Book Science Year Annual to Marc Webb, 8, of South Sioux City, Neb., for his question:

ARE CATTAILS USEFUL?

Those wild plants called cattails — they were given the name because they look like the tails of cats — can be found in swamps and marshes throughout the United States and the southern part of Canada. They can get to be six feet tall. On the Pacific Coast they are known as tule-reeds.

Cattails have quite a number of useful features. First of all, they make excellent decorations in homes. Florists make good use of them in special arrangements.

Roots of cattails contain a starch that is eaten by many, including Russians. The English eat them under the name of Cossak asparagus.

A silky down from cattails is used for dressing wounds, and the plant has also been used as a substitute for cotton. Some use the highly inflammable pollen as tinder.

Send your question on a post card to Ask Andy in care of The Daily Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006, making sure to include your name, age and address. Entries are open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

White Sox split; Knapp takes opener

ANAHEIM — Notching his second consecutive win since being recalled from the minors at the beginning of the month, right-hander Chris Knapp held the California Angels hitless through 7 2/3 innings of the first game of a doubleheader here Sunday.

A two-out single to center by Rance Mulliniks ended Knapp's no-hit bid but his 13 strike-out performance sparked the Chicago White Sox to a 6-2 win.

California, pushing across two runs in the seventh and another in the eight, fought back in the second game to beat the White Sox, 5-4. Reliever Silvio Martinez took the loss as the Sox dropped to 8½ games behind the division leading Kansas City Royals.

KNAPP POSTED his 11th victory against six losses while recording the most strikeouts by a Sox pitcher in a single game this season.

After two-outs in the third inning of the first game, the Sox jumped on starter Paul Hartzel with four straight hits and two runs.

Ralph Garr and Chet Lemon started the attack with singles to center as Jorge Orta pushed across the first run of the inning with an infield hit to second. Designated hitter Richie Zisk drove across the second run with a single to center.

Orta, 4-5 in the first game, drove in four runs with two singles and a pair of doubles.

HIS FIRST double drove in three runs in the seventh inning as he drove the ball deep to right center with the bases loaded.

A pair of singles by Don Kessinger and Jim Essian put two runners aboard before Garr walked to load the bases. Following a fly out to center by Lemon, Orta came through with his first game winning hit since early July.

Orta scored the sixth run of the game for the Sox and the fourth of the inning when Jim Spencer lined a single to right.

The Angels tallied unearned runs in the eighth and ninth to spoil Knapp's shutout efforts.

PINCH HITTER Tony Solaita rested on second base in the eighth, following a two-base error by Wayne Nordhagen on a dropped fly ball to right. Jerry Remy followed with a single to center to score California's first run.

In the ninth, Nordhagen let Mulliniks' second single of the game get by him to the wall, allowing Don Baylor to score from first base. Baylor opened the inning by being hit by a pitch, his second plunking by Knapp in the game.

The White Sox jumped out early in the second game with three runs in the first on three singles and a walk.

LEMON WALKED to start the inning and Orta, connecting with his fifth hit of the game, singled him to third. A fielder choice grounder by Oscar Gamble scored the first run of the inning as the Angels elected to try for the double play.

An error by Mulliniks at short on Lamar Johnson's grounder scored another and Jack Brohammer drove home the third with a single to right.

Sox starter David Frost, making his major league debut on the mound, enjoyed a 3-0 lead through the first three innings as the tall right hander allowed but one hit.

Singles by Mulliniks and Bonds put runners at the corners in the third before Baylor sacrificed one across with a fly to center.

Garr drove Kessinger home with the Sox's fourth run of the game in the sixth on three straight singles. Brian Downing's single to center sent Kessinger to third in the inning.

Leading 4-1, the Angels pushed across a run in their half of the inning on an error by Orta and a single by Mulliniks.

Hawks rumble past Statesmen in opener

by DOUG PALM

Statistics, thankfully, count only in the classroom.

The Harper College Hawks, through outnumbered on the stat sheets, 301-201 in total yards, outscored the visiting Kennedy-King Statesmen, 20-14, Saturday to earn a season opening victory.

Turnovers and penalties, always a critical factor in the outcome of any football game and especially in the early stages of the season, plagued both teams.

IN THE END, however, it was the Hawks' ability to control the ball and the clock which enabled them to hold off the fast-finishing Statesmen.

Harper head coach John Eliasik had little time to savor his team's victory. He had to leave immediately to scout Illinois Valley, the Hawks' next opponent.

"Our tackling was not up to par today," Eliasik said. "We must improve on that, as well as the containment of the quarterback by our defensive ends."

Eliasik had to be pleased with the charge of the defensive line, however, which continually harassed Kennedy-King quarterback Larry Crowder.

FOLLOWING A first quarter Kennedy-King fumble, which Hawk Jim Heenan recovered, the Hawks moved into field goal range, but failed to connect.

Another Harper drive was short-lived, when a mishandled pitch-out was recovered by Kennedy-King.

The Hawks wasted an excellent opportunity to really demoralize the visitors at the close of the first quarter, when they failed to score from the eight yard line. This followed a recovered misplay of a long, spiraling punt by Jeff Crabtree. Mike Cusack had sped downfield to recover the loose ball.

The Hawks opened the scoring at 8:56 of the second quarter on a quarterback keeper from two years out by Jim Atkinson.

TWO 10 YARD pickups by Mark Bartolani and Ricky Williams keyed the five play, 40 yard drive.

Harper tallied again, when Mike Schell blocked a Kennedy-King punt, which defensive end Clyde Dumas recovered in the end zone with 2:07 remaining in the half.

Kennedy-King was thwarted in a late first half drive, Mike Murray dropped reserve quarterback Derald Liscomb for an 11-yard loss at the Hawk 33.

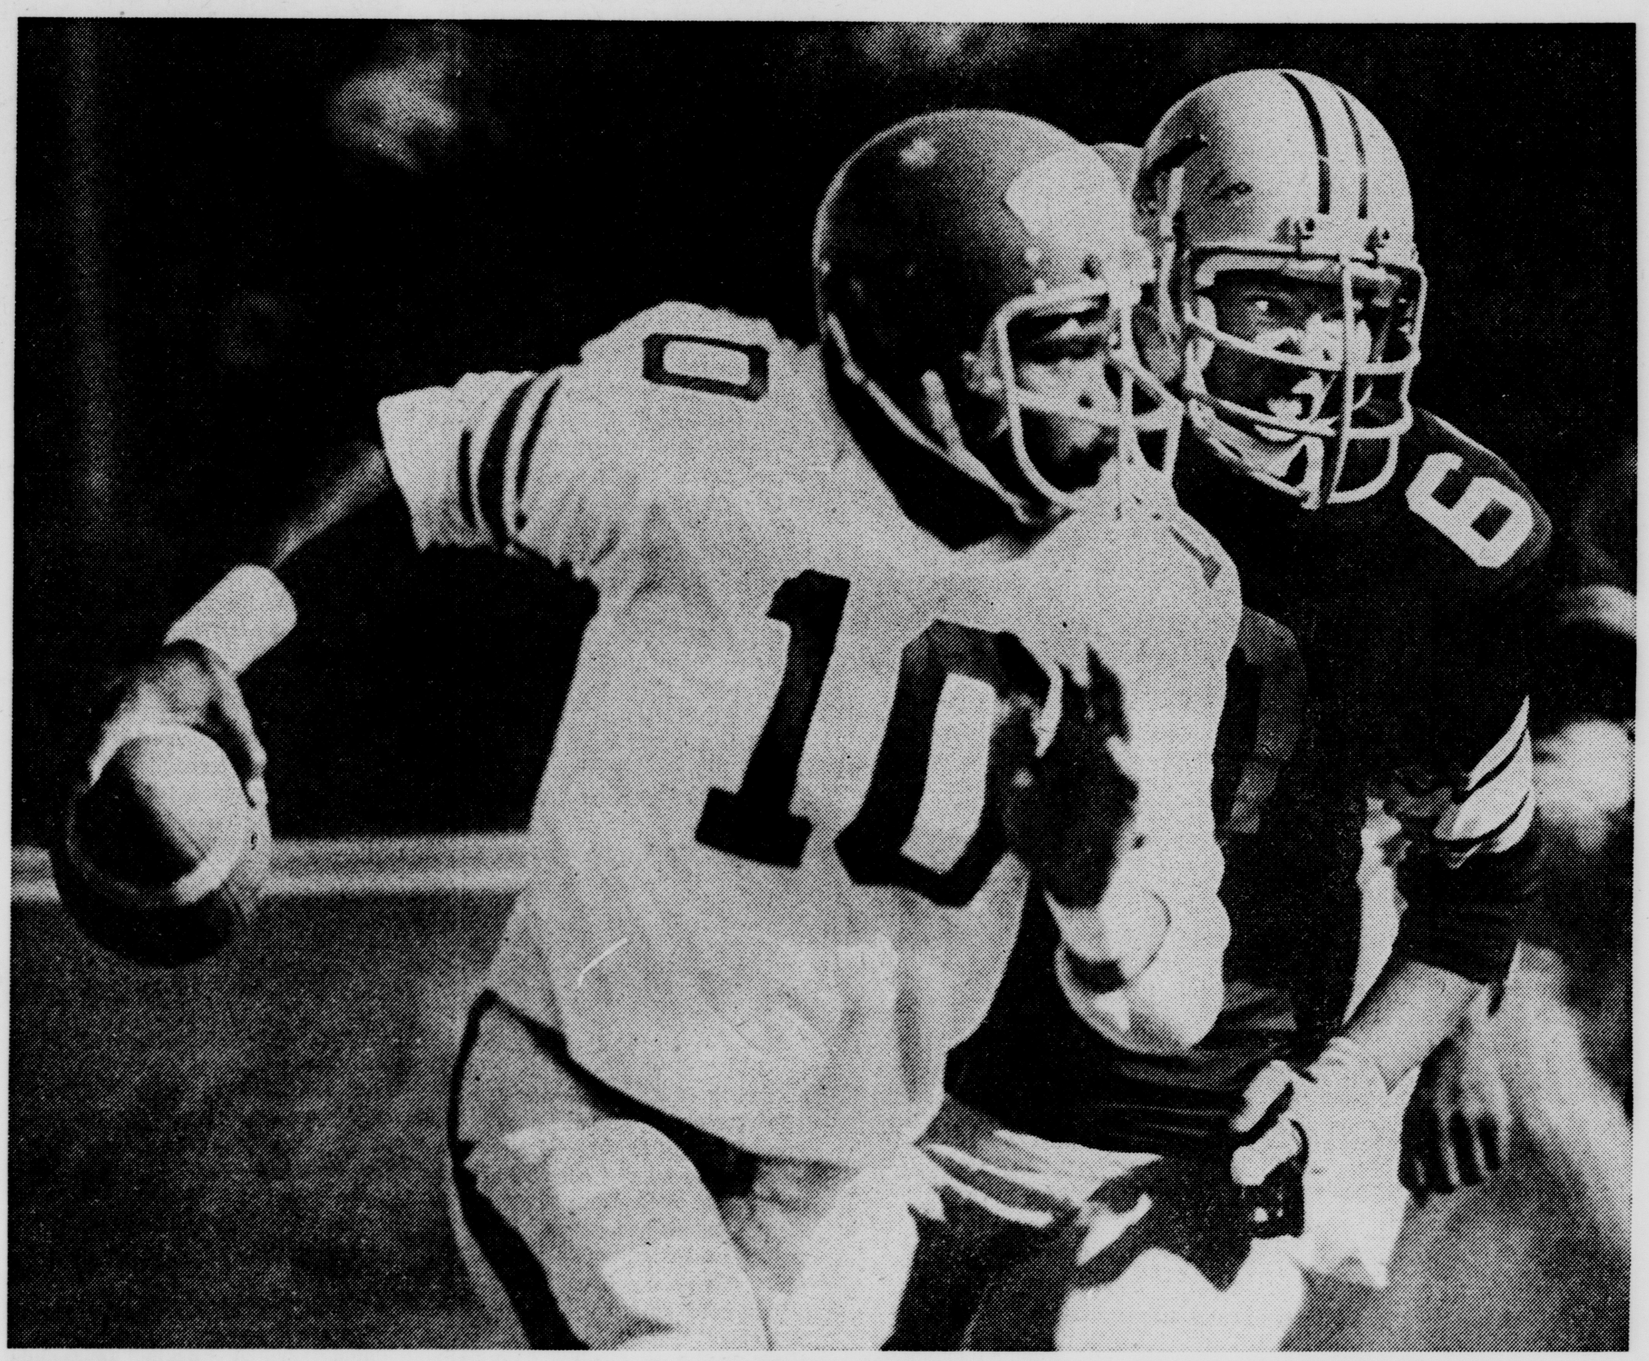
THE STATESMEN, using the middle passing lanes effectively, scored on a 13-yard pass play, which saw receiver James Williams regain possession of a ball tipped upwards by the Hawk defensive backs.

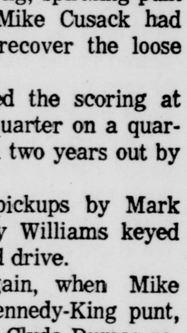


PRESSURE TIME. Harper College's Terry Freeman chases Kennedy-King quarterback Larry Crowder, 10, in action Saturday. Freeman looks out for blockers as he closes in. Harper opened with a 20-14 victory, scoring 13 points in the second period.

Bears aren't worried by losses (4) that don't count

Bob Gallas

Byline report



There are those who have watched the Bears through a 3-4 exhibition season and already have written Chicago off as a playoff contender in 1977.

Saturday's end to the preseason, a 24-6 defeat at the hands of Cincinnati, didn't do much to please 57,027 boo birds at Soldier Field either. Some made their opinion known verbally and many more left early in the fourth quarter.

Yet Bears' coach Jack Pardee, surrounded by a crowd of reporters, stood there after the game and said the Bears are a better team than the one he finished the preseason with last year. Quarterback Bob Avellini agrees, citing the low emphasis put on preseason games by the Bears this year.

"ALL WEEK WE kept talking about Detroit (who the Bears met in the regular season opener this Sunday)" Avellini said. "Then about a day before the game we started worrying about Cincinnati.

Avellini suffered through an evening that saw him complete only 11 of 25 passes for 118 yards. He threw two interceptions, but Pardee said Avellini sti l will open for the Bears at quarterback against Detroit.

Avellini explained the Bears' approach to the preaseaon.

"Now we're interested in playing well and making progress. Last year (when the Bears were 5-1 in preseason play) we were trying to win games," he said.

But the Bears offense has not shown much progress so far. Avellini spent most of Saturday evening looking for cover as he scrambled for his life. Two field goals were all the scoring the Bears could do. A scrambling Avellini threw two interceptions and both immediately were turned into Cincinnati touchdowns by Ken Anderson passes.

PASSING IS something the Bears hoped to improve on this season, but Pardee still has to content himself with looking longingly at Cincinnati's receiving corps Saturday. There isn't a Bear receiver who could make the Bengals' roster.

Wide receiver Billy Brooks hauled in two Anderson tosses for touchdowns, a 34-yarder in the first quarter and 26-yard toss in the second quarter. Wide receiver John McDaniel hauled in a 52-yard strike from Anderson in the third quarter.

"Those three plays, that's what beat us," said linebacker Don Rives. "That's the way they've been winning. They have a decent running game, but not as good as the one we've got."

Indeed, take away those three passes and the game was even. The Bears outrushed the Bengals 167 yards to 132. The Bengals were 11 for 19 and 193 yards passing and that made the difference.

"We were doing a lot of experimenting on defense and judged wrong a couple of times," Pardee said. "We faced one of the best quarterbacked and best receiving teams. I think we came out of it a better team. The mistakes we made are easy to correct."

BUT THE BEARS pass defense received a jolt Saturday when free safety Doug Plank went out with a partially torn knee ligament and will miss Sunday's opener and probably more games. Plank hasn't missed a game at free safety since he joined the Bears from Ohio State in 1975. That means Barrington High School grad Gary Fencik probably will step into a starter's role at free safety.

There were a few bright spots to Saturday's game, such as the play of defensive tackle Wally Chambers, newly acquired defensive end Bill Newsome and kickoff returner Vince Evans.

The All-Pro Chambers, nagged by injury during the preseason, played more than a half at defensive tackle. Newsome looked good at defensive end, which may allow Chambers to play inside, which he prefers, rather than at end. And Evans was dazzling on kick returns.

The Bears return to practice today with the task of trimming four from the roster in order to get down to the regular season roster of 43. Two players can be added to the taxi squad on Thursday.

Vilas closes U.S. Open with win over Connors

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., (UPI) — Argentina's Guillermo Vilas, poet Laureate of the Tennis world, ran his clay court winning streak to 46 matches and seven straight victories Sunday when he closed the U.S. Open Tennis Championships' long run at Forest Hills with a brilliant 2-6, 6-3, 7-6, 6-0 triumph over defending champion Jimmy Connors.

Connors, the only man since Bill Tilden in the 1920s to go to four straight finals, had a look of disbelief on his face when the match ended in confusion after three hours, 17 minutes.

Connors' bid to join Tilden and Fred Perry as the only men to win at least three U.S. championships was all but gone and he was fighting to save his service in the final game after falling behind love-40. Connors hit a forehand to the baseline, which Vilas returned but which was signalled out. Play continued but fans who saw the call swarmed the court and lifted the popular 25-year-old Vilas onto their shoulders.

The capacity-plus crowd exceeded the announced paid attendance of 12,644 and by the third set, realizing it might be witnessing something special, loudly cheered great shots and rallies rather than either player.

After leading 4-1 in the third set, Connors was broken in the seventh game and then at love to 5-6 as the patient Vilas kept chipping away with slices and precise placements. But Vilas, serving for the set, immediately doubled-faulted and that was also broken at love, setting up a tiebreaker that Vilas won 7-4.

VILAS' performance grew more brilliant as the match wore on and he gained more confidence against Connors, who defeated him in their two previous meetings including the semifinals here last year.

Connors was a beaten man going into the final set and Vilas stepped his attack up even more, firing three more aces in the fourth set.

Cubs had the closing day blues

by ART MUGALIAN

If you were at Wrigley Field Sunday and you closed your eyes for just a moment, you could pretend it was the last game of the season.

And why not? That's what the Cubs did.

Playing more like dancing bears than Chicago Cubs, the hometown guys lost to the New York Mets, 7-3, under a barrage of errors, balks, hit batters, and ill-timed intentional walks.

A SIZABLE CROWD of 21,404 were under the impression that three weeks remain in the 1977 season, but after Sunday's performance the fans (not to mention the Cubs) will be counting the days until October.

Still, those three weeks promise at least four more starts for Rick Reuschel, who stayed a disappointed 19-game winner with one of his poorer outings of the year Sunday. Big Rick struggled through the first four innings until the Cubs gave him a 3-0 lead and then he just plain fell apart.

Reuschel, now 19-8 (and 12-3 at Wrigley Field), somehow lasted four innings without his usual good stuff — he had not the slightest hint of his pinpoint control, constantly getting behind batters. He walked three and struck out nobody before Herman Franks yanked him with two outs and four runs across in the fifth.

Chances for a Cy Young Award are getting slimmer for Rick, who gave up singles to pinch-hitter Bobby Valentine and Lenny Randle to start the fifth before Bruce Boisclair blasted a one-out double to right-center, scoring two. Then with two outs John Milner ripped a double into the Mets' bullpen to tie the score. Joel Youngblood followed with a base hit sending New York ahead 4-3.

THE CUBS HAD tallied three times off Met junkball pitcher Jackson Todd in the fourth on a Bill Buckner double, an RBI single by Steve Ontiveros and a two-out homer by Manny Trillo, his seventh of the season.

After the fourth, however, the Cubs managed just two singles off eventual winner Bob Myrick (2-2) and reliever Skip Lockwood, who picked up his 19th save. Matters were not helped any by the absence from the lineup of Jerry Morales and Bobby Murcer, the Cubs' slumping run-producers. Neither has driven in a run since Aug. 26.

Morales pinch hit in the sixth and walked but stayed in the game, only to pop up in the eighth with the tying run on base. Murcer, out with a sore foot, batted for Steve Swisher in the ninth and ended the game by grounding out.

By that time, though, the Mets had sealed the ball game with a three-run ninth inning at the expense of Dennis Lamp and Paul Reuschel. The big hit there was a two-run double by Youngblood off rookie Lamp after Franks had ordered John Stearns walked to load the bases.

SHORTSTOP IVAN DeJesus, playing like a condemned man, booted the first two balls hit at him Sunday, but both times he got off the hook. In the first, he kicked Boisclair's grounder, but Trillo picked it up and threw to first for the out. In the second, DeJesus messed up an easy grounder off the bat of Todd, but he was fortunate to catch Stearns taking liberties rounding third.

Lamp pitched just an inning-and-a-third but hit two batters and gave up three earned runs. The highlight of the day was supplied by another Cub reliever, Willie Hernandez, who fanned the first two batters he faced before allowing a single to Milner.

Then, with Stearns at bat, Hernandez committed the most conspicuous balk of the season, lifting his leg toward first base and then wheeling to the plate.

"In 32 years, that's the first balk I've ever actually seen," cracked Jack Lang, veteran New York writer.

Twenty-one-thousand fans would sadly concur.

White Sox split; Knapp takes opener

ANAHEIM — Notching his second consecutive win since being recalled from the minors at the beginning of the month, right-hander Chris Knapp held the California Angels hitless through 7 2/3 innings of the first game of a doubleheader here Sunday.

A two-out single to center by Rance Mulliniks ended Knapp's no-hit bid but his 13 strike-out performance sparked the Chicago White Sox to a 6-2 win.

California, pushing across two runs in the seventh and another in the eight, fought back in the second game to beat the White Sox, 5-4. Reliever Silvio Martinez took the loss as the Sox dropped to 8½ games behind the division leading Kansas City Royals.

KNAPP POSTED his 11th victory against six losses while recording the most strikeouts by a Sox pitcher in a single game this season.

After two-outs in the third inning of the first game, the Sox jumped on starter Paul Hartzel with four straight hits and two runs.

Ralph Garr and Chet Lemon started the attack with singles to center as Jorge Orta pushed across the first run of the inning with an infield hit to second. Designated hitter Richie Zisk drove across the second run with a single to center.

Orta, 4-5 in the first game, drove in four runs with two singles and a pair of doubles.

HIS FIRST double drove in three runs in the seventh inning as he drove the ball deep to right center with the bases loaded.

A pair of singles by Don Kessinger and Jim Essian put two runners aboard before Garr walked to load the bases. Following a fly out to center by Lemon, Orta came through with his first game winning hit since early July.

Orta scored the sixth run of the game for the Sox and the fourth of the inning when Jim Spencer lined a single to right.

The Angels tallied unearned runs in the eighth and ninth to spoil Knapp's shutout efforts.

PINCH HITTER Tony Solaita rested on second base in the eighth, following a two-base error by Wayne Nordhagen on a dropped fly ball to right. Jerry Remy followed with a single to center to score California's first run.

In the ninth, Nordhagen let Mulliniks' second single of the game get by him to the wall, allowing Don Baylor to score from first base. Baylor opened the inning by being hit by a pitch, his second plunking by Knapp in the game.

The White Sox jumped out early in the second game with three runs in the first on three singles and a walk.

LEMON WALKED to start the inning and Orta, connecting with his fifth hit of the game, singled him to third. A fielder choice grounder by Oscar Gamble scored the first run of the inning as the Angels elected to try for the double play.

An error by Mulliniks at short on Lamar Johnson's grounder scored another and Jack Brohammer drove home the third with a single to right.

Sox starter David Frost, making his major league debut on the mound, enjoyed a 3-0 lead through the first three innings as the tall right hander allowed but one hit.

Singles by Mulliniks and Bonds put runners at the corners in the third before Baylor sacrificed one across with a fly to center.

Garr drove Kessinger home with the Sox's fourth run of the game in the sixth on three straight singles. Brian Downing's single to center sent Kessinger to third in the inning.

Leading 4-1, the Angels pushed across a run in their half of the inning on an error by Orta and a single by Mulliniks.

Hawks rumble past Statesmen in opener

by DOUG PALM

Statistics, thankfully, count only in the classroom.

The Harper College Hawks, through outnumbered on the stat sheets, 301-201 in total yards, outscored the visiting Kennedy-King Statesmen, 20-14, Saturday to earn a season opening victory.

Turnovers and penalties, always a critical factor in the outcome of any football game and especially in the early stages of the season, plagued both teams.

IN THE END, however, it was the Hawks' ability to control the ball and the clock which enabled them to hold off the fast-finishing Statesmen.

Harper head coach John Eliasik had little time to savor his team's victory. He had to leave immediately to scout Illinois Valley, the Hawks' next opponent.

"Our tackling was not up to par today," Eliasik said. "We must improve on that, as well as the containment of the quarterback by our defensive ends."

Eliasik had to be pleased with the charge of the defensive line, however, which continually harassed Kennedy-King quarterback Larry Crowder.

FOLLOWING A first quarter Kennedy-King fumble, which Hawk Jim Heenan recovered, the Hawks moved into field goal range, but failed to connect.

Another Harper drive was short-lived, when a mishandled pitch-out was recovered by Kennedy-King.

The Hawks wasted an excellent opportunity to really demoralize the visitors at the close of the first quarter, when they failed to score from the eight yard line. This followed a recovered misplay of a long, spiraling punt by Jeff Crabtree. Mike Cusack had sped downfield to recover the loose ball.

The Hawks opened the scoring at 8:56 of the second quarter on a quarterback keeper from two years out by Jim Atkinson.

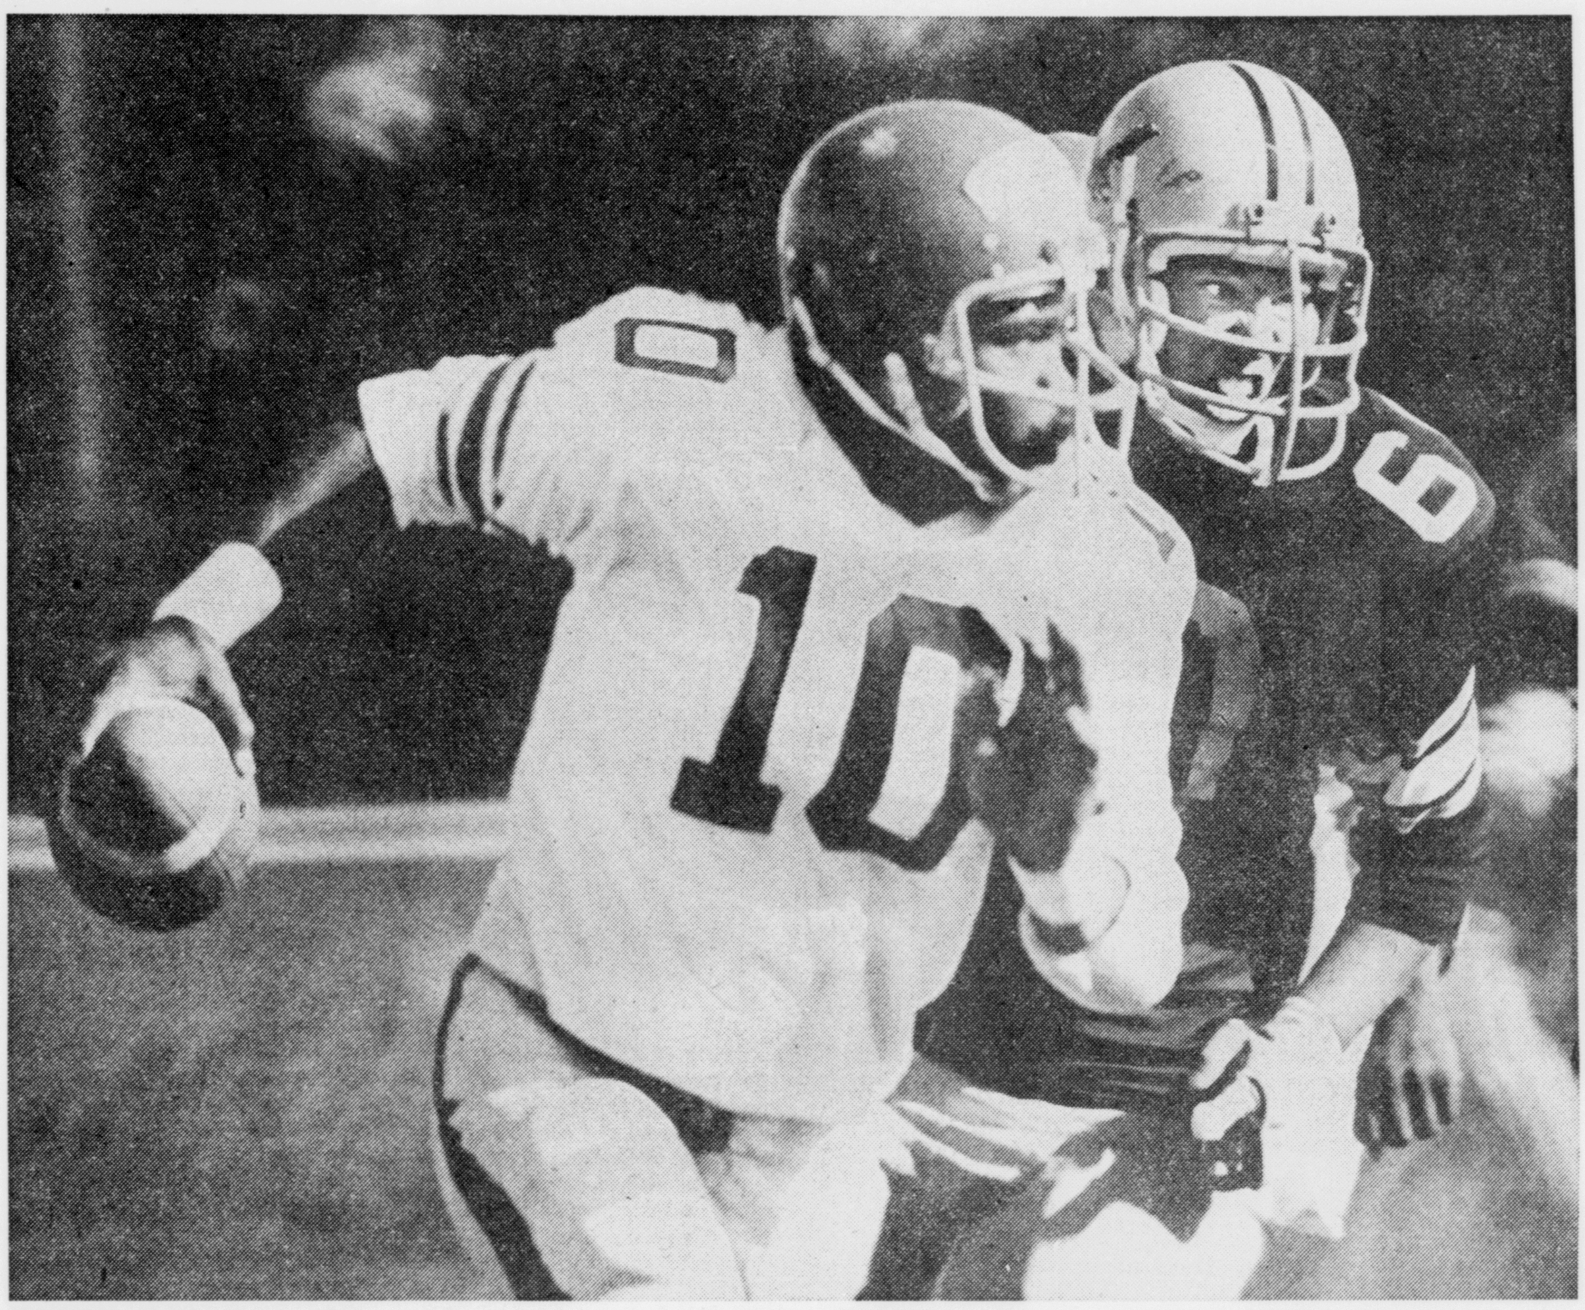
TWO 10 YARD pickups by Mark Bartolani and Ricky Williams keyed the five play, 40 yard drive.

Harper tallied again, when Mike Schell blocked a Kennedy-King punt, which defensive end Clyde Dumas recovered in the end zone with 2:07 remaining in the half.

Kennedy-King was thwarted in a late first half drive, Mike Murray dropped reserve quarterback Derald Liscomb for an 11-yard loss at the Hawk 33.

The visitors broke into the scoring column at 9:40 of the third quarter, when a high snap from center left punter Crabtree with no room to run at his own 43.

THE STATESMEN, using the middle passing lanes effectively, scored on a 13-yard pass play, which saw receiver James Williams regain possession of a ball tipped upwards by the Hawk defensive backs.



PRESSURE TIME. Harper College's Terry Freeman chases Kennedy-King quarterback Larry Crowder, 10, in action Saturday. Freeman looks out for blockers as he closes in. Harper opened with a 20-14 victory, scoring 13 points in the second period.

Bears aren't worried by losses (4) that don't count

Bob Gallas

Byline report

There are those who have watched the Bears through a 3-4 exhibition season and already have written Chicago off as a playoff contender in 1977.

Saturday's end to the preseason, a 24-6 defeat at the hands of Cincinnati, didn't do much to please 57,027 boo birds at Soldier Field either. Some made their opinion known verbally and many more left early in the fourth quarter.

Yet Bears' coach Jack Pardee, surrounded by a crowd of reporters, stood there after the game and said the Bears are a better team than the one he finished the preseason with last year. Quarterback Bob Avellini agrees, citing the low emphasis put on preseason games by the Bears this year.

"ALL WEEK WE kept talking about Detroit (who the Bears met in the regular season opener this Sunday)" Avellini said. "Then about a day before the game we started worrying about Cincinnati.

Avellini suffered through an evening that saw him complete only 11 of 25 passes for 118 yards. He threw two interceptions, but Pardee said Avellini sti l will open for the Bears at quarterback against Detroit.

Avellini explained the Bears' approach to the preaseaon.

"Now we're interested in playing well and making progress. Last year (when the Bears were 5-1 in preseason play) we were trying to win games," he said.

But the Bears offense has not shown much progress so far. Avellini spent most of Saturday evening looking for cover as he scrambled for his life. Two field goals were all the scoring the Bears could do. A scrambling Avellini threw two interceptions and both immediately were turned into Cincinnati touchdowns by Ken Anderson passes.

PASSING IS something the Bears hoped to improve on this season, but Pardee still has to content himself with looking longingly at Cincinnati's receiving corps Saturday. There isn't a Bear receiver who could make the Bengals' roster.

Wide receiver Billy Brooks hauled in two Anderson tosses for touchdowns, a 34-yarder in the first quarter and 26-yard toss in the second quarter. Wide receiver John McDaniel hauled in a 52-yard strike from Anderson in the third quarter.

"Those three plays, that's what beat us," said linebacker Don Rives. "That's the way they've been winning. They have a decent running game, but not as good as the one we've got."

Indeed, take away those three passes and the game was even. The Bears outrushed the Bengals 167 yards to 132. The Bengals were 11 for 19 and 193 yards passing and that made the difference.

"We were doing a lot of experimenting on defense and judged wrong a couple of times," Pardee said. "We faced one of the best quarterbacked and best receiving teams. I think we came out of it a better team. The mistakes we made are easy to correct."

BUT THE BEARS pass defense received a jolt Saturday when free safety Doug Plank went out with a partially torn knee ligament and will miss Sunday's opener and probably more games. Plank hasn't missed a game at free safety since he joined the Bears from Ohio State in 1975. That means Barrington High School grad Gary Fencik probably will step into a starter's role at free safety.

There were a few bright spots to Saturday's game, such as the play of defensive tackle Wally Chambers, newly acquired defensive end Bill Newsome and kickoff returner Vince Evans.

The All-Pro Chambers, nagged by injury during the preseason, played more than a half at defensive tackle. Newsome looked good at defensive end, which may allow Chambers to play inside, which he prefers, rather than at end. And Evans was dazzling on kick returns.

The Bears return to practice today with the task of trimming four from the roster in order to get down to the regular season roster of 43. Two players can be added to the taxi squad on Thursday.

Vilas closes U.S. Open with win over Connors

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., (UPI) — Argentina's Guillermo Vilas, poet Laureate of the Tennis world, ran his clay court winning streak to 46 matches and seven straight victories Sunday when he closed the U.S. Open Tennis Championships' long run at Forest Hills with a brilliant 2-6, 6-3, 7-6, 6-0 triumph over defending champion Jimmy Connors.

Connors, the only man since Bill Tilden in the 1920s to go to four straight finals, had a look of disbelief on his face when the match ended in confusion after three hours, 17 minutes.

Connors' bid to join Tilden and Fred Perry as the only men to win at least three U.S. championships was all but gone and he was fighting to save his service in the final game after falling behind love-40. Connors hit a forehand to the baseline, which Vilas returned but which was signalled out. Play continued but fans who saw the call swarmed the court and lifted the popular 25-year-old Vilas onto their shoulders.

The capacity-plus crowd exceeded the announced paid attendance of 12,644 and by the third set, realizing it might be witnessing something special, loudly cheered great shots and rallies rather than either player.

After leading 4-1 in the third set, Connors was broken in the seventh game and then at love to 5-6 as the patient Vilas kept chipping away with slices and precise placements. But Vilas, serving for the set, immediately doubled-faulted and that was also broken at love, setting up a tiebreaker that Vilas won 7-4.

VILAS' performance grew more brilliant as the match wore on and he gained more confidence against Connors, who defeated him in their two previous meetings including the semifinals here last year.

Connors was a beaten man going into the final set and Vilas stepped his attack up even more, firing three more aces in the fourth set.

Many mistakes cost them game

Cubs had the closing day blues

by ART MUGALIAN

If you were at Wrigley Field Sunday and you closed your eyes for just a moment, you could pretend it was the last game of the season.

And why not? That's what the Cubs did.

Playing more like dancing bears than Chicago Cubs, the hometown guys lost to the New York Mets, 7-3, under a barrage of errors, balks, hit batters, and ill-timed intentional walks.

A SIZABLE CROWD of 21,404 were under the impression that three weeks remain in the 1977 season, but after Sunday's performance the fans (not to mention the Cubs) will be counting the days until October.

Still, those three weeks promise at least four more starts for Rick Reuschel, who stayed a disappointed 19-game winner with one of his poorer outings of the year Sunday. Big Rick struggled through the first four innings until the Cubs gave him a 3-0 lead and then he just plain fell apart.

Reuschel, now 19-8 (and 12-3 at Wrigley Field), somehow lasted four innings without his usual good stuff — he had not the slightest hint of his pinpoint control, constantly getting behind batters. He walked three and struck out nobody before Herman Franks yanked him with two outs and four runs across in the fifth.

Chances for a Cy Young Award are getting slimmer for Rick, who gave up singles to pinch-hitter Bobby Valentine and Lenny Randle to start the fifth before Bruce Boisclair blasted a one-out double to right-center, scoring two. Then with two outs John Milner ripped a double into the Mets' bullpen to tie the score. Joel Youngblood followed with a base hit sending New York ahead 4-3.

THE CUBS HAD tallied three times off Met junkball pitcher Jackson Todd in the fourth on a Bill Buckner double, an RBI single by Steve Ontiveros and a two-out homer by Manny Trillo, his seventh of the season.

After the fourth, however, the Cubs managed just two singles off eventual winner Bob Myrick (2-2) and reliever Skip Lockwood, who picked up his 19th save. Matters were not helped any by the absence from the lineup of Jerry Morales and Bobby Murcer, the Cubs' slumping run-producers. Neither has driven in a run since Aug. 26.

Morales pinch hit in the sixth and walked but stayed in the game, only to pop up in the eighth with the tying run on base. Murcer, out with a sore foot, batted for Steve Swisher in the ninth and ended the game by grounding out.

Then, with Stearns at bat, Hernandez committed the most conspicuous balk of the season, lifting his leg toward first base and then wheeling to the plate.

"In 32 years, that's the first balk I've ever actually seen," cracked Jack Lang, veteran New York writer.

Bison shine in 21-0 season debut

by KEITH REINHARD

Neither the high-stepping marching band nor the bright autumn afternoon could outshine Buffalo Grove's football team Saturday afternoon as they made their 1977 debut by throttling visiting North Chicago, 21-0.

Unveiling a new lineup of names, Bison coach Grant Blaney had to be pleasantly surprised by the high-powered performance of his relatively inexperienced team. Not only did his offense provide more than enough fireworks to win the game, the Buffalo Grove defense completely dominated their Warhawk counterparts.

"Talk to the defensive coaches," Blaney said afterwards. "If we had any experience at all, it was in our offensive line. Coaches (Jon) Hittman, (Dennis) Riccio and (Tony) Jungblut did a tremendous job of preparing their unit for the game today."

BLANEY'S COMPLIMENT was not only borne out on the scoreboard but in the statistics as well. North Chicago rushed for only 79 yards all day and their longest single play was a 21-yard pass at the end of the third quarter.

More importantly, led by 182-pound senior Kelly Brennan, the defensive line was at its strongest when the Warhawks penetrated the deepest. Early in the second quarter when the contest still was scoreless, Bob Raymo recovered a North Chicago fumble after the guests had moved within 20 yards of paydirt.

Just before halftime the Hawks again threatened. They were inside the Buffalo Grove 10-yard stripe when Phil Williams intercepted a pass to end the rally.

AGAIN IN THE fourth quarter North Chicago was down to the Bison 29 after completing a 21-yard pass. The defensive line of the hosts promptly pushed the Hawks back nine yards on the next play and the drive sputtered out at the 20.

Two players later Buffalo Grove fumbled at their own 34 but linebacker Bill Forster regained possession for the Bison on the very next play.

The Buffalo Grove offense stayed primarily on the ground, chalking up 225 yards and tallying once in each of the final three stanzas.

Greg Bazany put the Bison on the board by cutting through a hole on the right side and scampering 62 yards downfield. Quarterback Eric Gaddis ran over the extra point for an 8-0 halftime lead.

IN PERIOD THREE Mike Williams cracked off right guard and covered 31 yards to paydirt. Williams also scored in the fourth quarter to cap a 64-yard drive highlighted by five Warhawk penalties.

"Williams was super in there today," Blaney said. "Because of the way we were sending in plays, he spent the entire afternoon shifting back and forth between two backfield positions and he never missed his stride."

And typically for the day, the game ended with the Buffalo Grove defense standing tall at their own 12-yard line.

Saxon's loss dims offense hopes

by ART MUGALIAN

Schaumburg football coach Bob Ferguson likes to think of himself as an offensive minded coach, so it was no surprise to find him in dismay after the Saxons had dropped their 1977 opener 6-0 to Naperville Central Saturday afternoon at Schaumburg.

"We need an awful lot of work offensively," said Fergusen, whose team picked up just 138 total yards, the lowest Schaumburg total in five years. It also marked the Saxons' first opening loss since 1973 when West Leyden beat them, 14-8.

SCHAUMBURG'S ATTACK was slowed by several fumbles, only two of which were recovered by Naperville. But the game's crucial moment was a fumble on the very first offensive play of the season half. It led directly to the only score of the game.

Saxon junior quarterback Scott Wright attempted an option fake to fullback Joe Nemetz, putting the ball in Nemetz's gut and pulling it out again. The ball, however, popped loose and was pounced on by a Naperville lineman at the Saxon 36.

Although the visiting Redskins moved the ball with great difficulty the rest of the day, they managed to drive for the necessary 36 yards in 11 plays, all on the ground. Eight times the ball was carried by 6-0, 202-pound fullback Tony Parese, who eventually tallied from five yards out by breaking a tackle at the three.

Fergusen was pleased with the Saxon defense, led by Brian Breck, junior George Tuzil and sophomore Tim Clausen. But it was the offense that put a frown on the coach's brow.

"DEFENSIVELY, Naperville really handled us," said Fergusen. "We didn't execute the way we are accustomed to executing. We have to have the linemen blocking."

Schaumburg will benefit from the return of junior tackle Steve Ramsey (6-3, 200) who missed the game because of an injury. But Ferguson is looking at the total picture and may make some basic changes.

"We may have to seek out a different quarterback," the coach said. "Wright is gonna have to fight for his position. We still have faith in his ability, but we have to do something."

Wright, listed at 5-8 and 145 pounds, completed six of 10 pass attempts for 80 yards, but his size prevented him from seeing his open receivers on several occasions. And he never was able to utilize his open-field speed because Naperville completely closed off the Saxon option.

"We may have to take a good hard look at the option," said Fergusen. "We just don't have the personnel for it."

Schaumburg's backup QB is Steve Martin, a 6-0, 180-pounder whose primary talent is passing. Martin has a broken finger that kept him out of action Saturday, but he should be ready to call signals in the Saxons' game at Wheeling on Friday.

The Saxons had one good scoring opportunity against the Redskins, that coming at the end of a long drive from their own 20 late in the first half. Helped along by a penalty and a key first-down burst of six yards by halfback Tim McGraw, Schaumburg advanced to midfield.

Passes from Wright to Mark Thorson and Tim Clausen and a 13-yard scramble by Wright moved the ball to the 13 when a Redskin holding call put the ball on the seven. But another penalty, this one a holding call on Schaumburg, moved the ball back to the 20. Jim Leonard's last-second field goal try of 37 yards was considerably short.

Stevenson overwhelming in football season opener

Stevenson High School piled up 334 yards in total offense and overwhelmed Jacobs Saturday afternoon, 28-0, in the football season opener.

Quarterback Ken Kriske keyed the attack that pushed across 14 points in each half.

Kriske completed six passes for 66 yards and also rushed for 50. He threw scoring passes of 10 yards and 7 yards to Todd and Mark Schmitke and tallied one touchdown himself.

Tony Baca scored the first Stevenson touchdown on an 18-yard run in the opening period. Baca's effort capped a 36-yard drive.

STEVENSON DROVE 44 yards in six plays for the second touchdown after picking up two gift points on a safety. Kriske hit Todd Schmitke for the score with a 17-yard pass to Bill Schade and 20-yard scramble by Kriske setting up the TD.

Todd Schmitke's 26-yard dash helped set up a third touchdown with Kriske hitting Mark Schmitke in the end zone.

Kriske went in from the three-yard-line in the fourth period after setting up the thrust with an interception.

Mike Stringer kicked two extra points.

Mike Howard sparked the Stevenson defense with 16 tackles, one fumble recovery and one sack. Jordan Stone had 14 tackles.

Bison shine in 21-0 season debut

by KEITH REINHARD

Neither the high-stepping marching band nor the bright autumn afternoon could outshine Buffalo Grove's football team Saturday afternoon as they made their 1977 debut by throttling visiting North Chicago, 21-0.

Unveiling a new lineup of names, Bison coach Grant Blaney had to be pleasantly surprised by the high-powered performance of his relatively inexperienced team. Not only did his offense provide more than enough fireworks to win the game, the Buffalo Grove defense completely dominated their Warhawk counterparts.

"Talk to the defensive coaches," Blaney said afterwards. "If we had any experience at all, it was in our offensive line. Coaches (Jon) Hittman, (Dennis) Riccio and (Tony) Jungblut did a tremendous job of preparing their unit for the game today."

BLANEY'S COMPLIMENT was not only borne out on the scoreboard but in the statistics as well. North Chicago rushed for only 79 yards all day and their longest single play was a 21-yard pass at the end of the third quarter.

More importantly, led by 182-pound senior Kelly Brennan, the defensive line was at its strongest when the Warhawks penetrated the deepest. Early in the second quarter when the contest still was scoreless, Bob Raymo recovered a North Chicago fumble after the guests had moved within 20 yards of paydirt.

Just before halftime the Hawks again threatened. They were inside the Buffalo Grove 10-yard stripe when Phil Williams intercepted a pass to end the rally.

AGAIN IN THE fourth quarter North Chicago was down to the Bison 29 after completing a 21-yard pass. The defensive line of the hosts promptly pushed the Hawks back nine yards on the next play and the drive sputtered out at the 20.

Two players later Buffalo Grove fumbled at their own 34 but linebacker Bill Forster regained possession for the Bison on the very next play.

The Buffalo Grove offense stayed primarily on the ground, chalking up 225 yards and tallying once in each of the final three stanzas.

Greg Bazany put the Bison on the board by cutting through a hole on the right side and scampering 62 yards downfield. Quarterback Eric Gaddis ran over the extra point for an 8-0 halftime lead.

IN PERIOD THREE Mike Williams cracked off right guard and covered 31 yards to paydirt. Williams also scored in the fourth quarter to cap a 64-yard drive highlighted by five Warhawk penalties.

"Williams was super in there today," Blaney said. "Because of the way we were sending in plays, he spent the entire afternoon shifting back and forth between two backfield positions and he never missed his stride."

After Williams scored the second time, the visitors put together one last-digit attack that carried from midfield well into Bison territory.

Todd Schmitke's 26-yard dash helped set up a third touchdown with Kriske hitting Mark Schmitke in the end zone.

Kriske went in from the three-yard-line in the fourth period after setting up the thrust with an interception.

Mike Stringer kicked two extra points.

Mike Howard sparked the Stevenson defense with 16 tackles, one fumble recovery and one sack. Jordan Stone had 14 tackles.

Illini spirit not enough to pull off upset

Don Friske

Byline report

CHAMPAIGN — An unfortunate thing happened to Gary Moeller years before he was to become the new head football coach at the University of Illinois.

Long ago, the schedule-makers decided that the Michigan Wolverines would visit the Illini on opening day of the 1977 season. When Moeller accepted the Illini post last December, he immediately faced the burden of opening against one of the toughest college outfits in the country, a team he helped to put near the top year after year.

Moeller worked under Michigan coach Bo Schembechler for the last decade, and since last winter people have been talking about the first confrontation between the two long-time companions.

USING ENTHUSIASM as his chief motivator, Moeller prepared his players for the matchup. By the time the final week of practice came around, the new coach even had many Illinois followers wrapped up in his high spirits.

Almost 65,000 people buzzed with anticipation prior to the opening kickoff here Saturday afternoon, many thinking (or at least hoping) that the Illini would pull off a major upset. If nothing else, Michigan would be in for a tough battle.

But they all soon realized that all the enthusiasm in the world can't stop a Harlan Huckleby on an end sweep. Or a Rick Leach option attack. Or a Russell Smith blasting up the middle.

Michigan surprised a lot of people when it handled the Illini like it has for so long, leaving town with a 37-9 victory.

EVEN THE WOLVERINES didn't know what to expect when they entered the game. In the first quarter, the Illini came up with two Michigan turnovers, but only could get a field goal for their efforts.

Michigan soon settled down and ran the well-executed offense it has displayed in recent seasons.

After the game, Moeller was asked about the pressures of playing against his former team in his first game ever as a head coach.

"It's a tough situation, but you come to play football," the despondent Moeller said. "The big thing we weren't able to do was execute with our offense. That was the big killer of the game."

EVERYBODY KNEW the Illini would be out-manned, but figured the renewed enthusiasm would provide a counter attack.

Sophomore Scott Scholz, who played his high school ball at Schaumburg, said Moeller had the Illini ready to beat the Wolverines, at least from a mental standpoint.

"We pushed ourselves so hard for Michigan. We were all really shooting to beat them," Scholz said.

Scholz explained that Moeller's philosophy helped him win a starting spot at outside linebacker this fall.

"IT'S BEEN MORE together this year during practice, more like a family," Scholz said. "We're trying to help each other, and I've been brought up like that. I knew what had to be done when coach Moeller came because I'd been through it before."

Last year, Scholz wasn't a member of the varsity team under coach Bob Blackman. But he did participate in all the practices, and he can tell the difference in attitude on the field.

"The coach stresses the family situation a lot more than it was last year. We all seem to be a lot closer this year," Scholz said.

But the enthusiasm and confidence proved to be no challenge for the speed and strength of the Wolverines. It was unfortunate that Moeller had to make his debut against such a formidable opponent.

The final result might have been more optimistic if the Illini had played a team of equal physical abilities. The mind games might have been more beneficial and significant.

Fremd shows Holy Cross how to triumph—basically

by JEFF NORLUND

There were two good reasons Fremd coach Joe Samojedny stayed with a conservative game plan in his Vikings' 16-0 season-opening victory at Holy Cross Saturday.

First, Fremd's steady ground attack slowly gathered momentum through the game and made risky aerials unnecessary. And second, Samojedny wanted to make his untried players believers.

"This was our first game, and I know the kids were sitting around before wondering 'Are we, or aren't we a good team?'" Samojedny said. "So, since we've been stressing the fundamentals, we thought it would be best to show the kids the fundamentals can work and make you a winner.

"THIS IS A psychological game, too, and this gave us a chance to show ourselves what we can do."

What the Vikings did was grind out 249 yards rushing to control the game's tempo completely. The time-consuming drives and the talented toe of place kicker Mike Freeman provided them with a lead, one the defense made sure they kept.

Freeman ended the first half by booting the first of three field goals, this one from the 8-yard line, to break a scoreless tie. The score was set up when senior Dave Yelovich recovered a Holy Cross fumble at the hosts' 17.

ANOTHER TURNOVER led to Freeman's second field goal of 23 yards to put Fremd ahead 6-0 midway through the third quarter. Senior Tom Riordan intercepted a Tim Roe pass at Holy Cross' 41 to initiate the drive.

Freeman sailed his third field goal over the goal posts from the 9-yard line early in the fourth quarter after Riordan recovered a Holy Cross fumble at Fremd's 38.

In the final quarter, rushing leader Kevin Weaver broke the game's longest play when the senior galloped 72-yards and took the ball from Viking territory to the Holy Cross four.

Quarterback Mike Gavigan carried the ball in for the touchdown, and Freeman added his 10th point of the contest with a successful conversion kick.

"WE'VE GOT a lot of confidence in Freeman," Samojedny said. "He's been practicing all year, and he's about 90 per cent effective in close—as his attempts were today.

"On defense we had made a lot of changes, and although we made some mistakes, we looked pretty sharp. Having all those untested players on defense, we've come to appreciate (senior linebacker Paul) Passaglia. He was everywhere out there today.

"Passaglia is an excellent ball player, and I think the others on the defense look toward him. I wouldn't trade him for anyone else in the league.

Passaglia and the other Viking defenders put the grips on Holy Cross' offense, limiting it to 153 yards, much of which came late in the second half when the game was out of reach.

All four scoring drives for Fremd began after the defense forced turnovers, including the late touchdown drive which started when Yelorich picked off a Holy Cross pass.

In all, the Fremd defense forced four turnovers and stopped another three Holy Cross drives by holding on fourth down situations.

Arlington's strengths don't show in the score

by DAVE HESS

For the Arlington Cardinals, Saturday's game at Lake Forest was one of missed opportunities, a game where the Cardinals had all of the statistics on their side but the right one, the score. Lake Forest had that, 6-0.

Arlington took the opening kickoff and immediately marched from their own 30 to the Lake Forest 14. Relying almost exclusively on the running of Greg Sabatello, the drive was highlighted by his pretty 15-yard scamper on a draw that brought the Cards to the Lake Forest 18.

Faced with fourth down and six at the 14, Chuck Klein's pass into the end zone just grazed the fingertips of Chris Birkett.

The Cardinals took over again after Lake Forest's drive stalled on their own 33 and Klein threw the first of three interceptions. Robin Miller of Lake Forest picked off the bomb on the one-yard line and his return put the Scouts on their own seven-yard line.

Two plays later a bad pitchout resulted in a fumble and Cardinal linebacker Matt Malone recovered the ball at the Lake Forest four-yard line.

With first and goal from the four, three running plays from the bench lost two yards and a fourth down pass fell harmlessly in the end zone.

Still, Lake Forest was not able to budge against the Cardinal defense. Two penalties gave the Scouts a third and 16 operating from their own one-half yard line, but they were able to punt out of trouble.

"We had the opportunities," said Arlington coach Chuck Haines. "They gave us the chances and we made enough mistakes for the whole season. So we didn't deserve to win. You have to give the credit to Lake Forest, though, they were tough when they had to be."

Again in the second quarter Arlington put together a drive as Haines effectively shuffled his running backs Sabatello, Tim Gabaldo, and sophomore Mike Antmann. A clutch pass from Chuck Klein to Dave Klein on fourth and seven put the Cardinals inside the Lake Forest 15, but an offsides penalty spoiled the bid and Klein was intercepted by Robin Miller on fourth down from the 13.

"We drive the ball up three-fourths of the field and it was the mental mistakes that did us in," said Haines. "Our defense played very well and we're encouraged by that, but it only takes one or two plays to lose and that's what happened."

With a little over three minutes remaining in the game and Lake Forest starting from their own 15, Brian Moore turned right end on a sweep and reeled off 29 yards. The Cardinals appeared shaken. Two plays later it was Moore again around the right side, this time for 44 yards before he was brought down at the one yard line. The Cards dug in and held for two plays but Moore was not to be denied and at 2:40 the Scouts had finally dented the endzone. The conversion attempt failed and Lake Forest had their 6-0 lead.

"We're not giving up," said Haines. "We're not as big as Conant, our next game, they've got a number of players over 200 pounds, but we're strong and we have some speed. We'll be right in there."

Mistakes mar Maine West opener

An excess of mistakes burned the Maine West Warriors in their season-opening 35-0 loss against the New Trier West Cowboys in Northfield Saturday.

Four of the Cowboys' five touchdowns resulted from Maine West fumbles and interceptions.

Although the nonconference contest was a nightmare debut for new Maine West football coach Dan Mortier, he said he's not discouraged.

"I'm not down," said the 27-year-old Mortier. "We made a lot of mistakes. "It was just mental breakdowns that we stressed in practice not to make."

THE MAINE WEST coach also thought his team was so emotionally charged for the game that it could not come back after New Trier took a 22-0 halftime lead.

"They kind of let down when things started to happen," he said. "You can't get down 22-0 and expect to win a ball game."

The Warriors' first offensive series seemed to be a forewarning for the entire game. Clipping penalties canceled Bob Aslan's 48-yard touchdown run and his 37-yard scamper three plays later. The Des Plaines school never came close to scoring thereafter.

LATE IN THE first period, Warrior fullback Vince Webster fumbled on Maine's 37-yard line. New Trier recovered and quickly capitalized.

On the first offensive play after the fumble, Cowboy quarterback Jay Charlesworth fired a 37-year touchdown pass to Tim Richardson. The score came just as the first period ended.

The second period started as badly as the first period ended. New Trier faked the extra-point kick and holder Graham Satherlie passed to Rob Grabemann for the two-point conversion and an 8-0 New Trier West lead.

At 5:33 of the second period, the Cowboys corralled their only touchdown without a Maine West mistake helping them. Brian Chandler went over left tackle for a 30-yard touchdown run. Randy Mayne's successful extra-point kick increased the New Trier lead to 15-0.

THE COWBOYS' third touchdown was Mike Gorrity's 40-yard interception of West quarterback Ken Quinn's pass. Mayne's kick was good again and the Cowboys led, 22-0.

The situation did not change much in the second half. New Trier scored at 6:23 of the third period when Charlesworth tallied on a four-yard, right end sweep.

The score was set up by Warrior Jim Lamberty's fumble of a New Trier West punt. The Cowboys recovered the miscue at the Maine West 10-yard line and needed only one play before Charlesworth's score. Payne converted again and New Trier West was ahead, 29-0.

Irish rally to defeat Pittsburgh

By United Press International

Notre Dame, the nation's No. 1 ranked team, rallied in the fourth period to defeat defending champion Pittsburgh, and Michigan, Oklahoma and Southern California also scored victories Saturday when the college football season started in earnest.

Dave Reeve kicked two field goals and Terry Eurick ran four yards for a touchdown in the fourth period, giving Notre Dame a 19-9 triumph after 11th-rated Pitt led 9-6 going into the final session.

Second-ranked Michigan romped over Illinois 37-9, third-ranked Oklahoma edged out Vanderbilt 25-23 and fourth-ranked Southern California beat Missouri 27-10.

Jay Jimerson ran 19 yards and lineman Bary Burget ran 64 yards with a blocked field goal attempt as Oklahoma scored two touchdowns in the fourth period for its victory over Vanderbilt.

Rob Hertel passed for two touchdowns and a total of 203 yards for Southern California, which avenged its only loss of the 1976 season.

Sixth-ranked Ohio State defeated Miami, Fla., 10-0, seventh-ranked Texas A&M scored a 28-14 win over Kansas, eighth-ranked Texas Tech beat Baylor 17-7, ninth-ranked Maryland downed Clemson 21-14 and 10th-ranked Nebraska lost to Washington State 19-10 in other games involving teams in the top 10.

SPEAR STAR. Kathy Schmidt is all smiles after posting a women's world javelin record of 69.32 meters (227-5 feet) at an invitational meet in Fuerth, Germany. The mark exceeded the previous standard owned by East German Olympic champion Ruth Fuchs by nearly eight inches.

Navratilova-Stove take Open doubles

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. — The top-seeded team of Martina Navratilova and Betty Stove captured the women's doubles championship in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships Sunday with a 6-1, 7-6 victory over Dr. Renee Richards and Bettyann Stuart.

Navratilova, who was upset in the singles semifinals by Wendy Turnbull, and Stove, who lost to singles champion Chris Evert in the semis, divided $13,125 for the victory.

Richards, the first transsexual to play in a major championship, and Stuart divided $6,550 as runners-up. Former singles champion Fred Stolle and former singles finalist Len Hoad defeated Vic Seixas, another former champion, and Bob Howe 6-3, 6-3 in the Hall of Fame doubles.

Betty Stove and Frew McMillan defeated Billie Jean King and Vitas Gerulaitis 6-2, 3-6, 6-3 in the mixed doubles. Stove and McMillan divided $6,500 while King and Gerulaitis split $3,000.

Doc Morgan tops B.C. Open field

ENDICITT, N.Y. — Dr. Gil Morgan scored the first victory of his career Sunday, shooting a final round 69 to finish at 14-under-par 270, good for a five-shot win over Lee Elder in the $200,000 B.C. Open.

Morgan, who has never used the doctorate in optometry he earned at Southern University in 1972, shot a 2-under 69 at the 6,903-yard En Joie Golf Club. He won $40,000.

Veteran Lee Elder, who started the day four strokes behind Morgan, played over par through the first nine holes to fall seven strokes behind, then rallied slightly to finish with a 70. His second place total of 275, 9 under par for 72 holes, earned him $22,800.

Skotarek to coach Hinsdale soccer

Alex Skotarek, captain of the Chicago Sting Soccer Club and co-captain of the 1976 U.S. World Cup team, has been named acting varsity coach at Hinsdale Central High School, Skotarek was appointed to fill the void created by the illness of coach Richard Ohl.

"We are very pleased that Alex has accepted this very difficult assignment," said Hinsdale Central Athletic Director Harvey Dickinson. "It is hard to take over a program that has already started and mold a team from over 100 unfamiliar anxious candidates. But after working with Alex in various youth soccer programs in the past, we are certain that he will maintain the high standards of soccer skill and youth development for the school and community which Coach Ohl has developed over the years."

Skotarek, a resident of Arlington Heights and graduate of Michigan State University, has been with the Sting since 1975, the club's first year of operation. He will be free for the 1978 pro season beginning in the spring.

Andretti wins Italian Grand Prix

MONZA, Italy — Mario Andretti of the United States flashed across the finish line almost 16 seconds ahead of Austria's Niki Lauda Sunday to win the Italian Formula 1 Grand Prix Auto race.

Alan Jones of Australia came in third, Jochen Mass of West Germany was fourth and Clay Regazzoni of Switzerland was fifth.

Andretti completed the 52-lap, 187.41 - mile course at an average speed of about 123.6 miles per hour, a new race record.

Lauda's second place finish gave him 69 points after 14 of the 17 Grand Prix races this season and clinched for the Austrian at least a share of the world's champion driving title.

The race was marred by an unusual accident when an advertising billboard collapsed on spectators killing one person and injuring 20 others.

St. Viator runs to invite crown

by ART MUGALIAN

"This is the year we've been waiting for," said St. Viator cross-country coach Joe Stehno. "We've got solid depth in distance runners. All the ingredients are there."

Stehno, in his third year as coach of the ever-improving Lion harriers, watched as his team ran off with the first-place trophy at the Notre Dame Invitational on Saturday. Senior Dave Efken successfully defended his individual title, but the big story was the team victory, Viator's first ever in a cross-country invite.

"It's a great feeling to win," said Stehno. "And now the kids are looking at next week's Rolling Meadows meet and they figure they can win that one, too."

EFKEN'S performance — running the 3.1-mile course in 15:15 — came despite the fact that the Lion harrier took a wrong turn at one point during the race.

"Dave's just getting back into shape," said Stehno, who pointed out that Efken's time wasn't as fast as last year when he won on the same course. "That wrong turn cost him quite a few seconds."

Viator's second through fifth runners were Jim Kennedy (7th place;, Steve Klimkowski (10th), Phil Bayer (12th), and Paul Kellner (22nd).

"We've got two goals this season," said Stehno. "We'd like to win our conference and we'd like to get to the sectional."

ANOTHER ELATED coach was Forest View's Bill Mohrmann, whose Falcons were second behind St. Viator in the nine-team Notre Dame meet, 52-57. "Most of our kids are new to the program," said Mohrmann. "If they finish in the first half of the conference, I'd be very pleased."

Forest View's two returning varsity runners, Mike Yaccino and Jeff Kloster, finished third and fourth, respectively, in 15:51 and 15:53. Soph Dan Barron was eighth.

At the Luther North Invite, a 12-team affair, Wheeling's harriers came back with a tie for first place, paced by veteran Ben Sanchez's individual victory. Sanchez ran three miles in 15:34 and teammate Kevin Lucas was third in 16:06. The Wildcats tied Ridgewood with 68 points.

The big winner at the Maine West Center meet was Hersey's freshmen, who stole the frosh title by taking the first three spots in the 2.2-mile race. Steve Kane, Tom Shannon and Cliff Blaine were packed 11 seconds apart at the front of the chute while teammates Craig Schachtschneider (5th) and Al Richter (9th) weren't far behind.

"I was surprised by how well we did," said Huskie coach Larry Travis, who was more amazed by the performance of his team on the Varsity A level where they were second.

GORDON TECH won the Varsity A race and Loyola took the overall crown, but nothing could take away from the effort of Hersey's Steve Johnson (10th) and Rich Rieger (15th) running Varsity A. Hersey was also fourth on the soph level.

Prospect also got strong efforts from its runners, taking first place in the JV race behind a winning performance by Ken Wetendorf in a record 15:31. Knight senior Mark Smith was third in the Varsity A race, 10 seconds behind winner John Sullivan of Thornridge who ran 14:52. Buffalo Grove's Joe Schmidt was 11th in Varsity A.

The girls varsity race was won by Rolling Meadows.

IN OTHER MEETS, Fremd finished second behind defending state champ Deerfield in the Crystal Lake Invite, 21-55, as Arlington was sixth. The individual winner was Tom Wuchte of DeKalb. And Maine East whipped Hoffman, 22-38, in a quadrangular that also featured Hoffman victories over Zion-Benton, 15-50, and Waukegan West, 17-47. Hoffman's Neal Cleghorn was second in 14:45 for the 2.8-mile course.

Streaking Red Sox win, move to within 1½ games

Major league baseball

Jim Rice extended his league-leading home run total to 38 with a seventh-inning grand slam and Carlton Fisk and Butch Hobson drove in sixth-inning runs Sunday to carry the streaking Boston Red Sox to their sixth straight victory, a 6-2 decision over the Detroit Tigers.

Bill Lee and Rob Stanley combined to pitch the 10th victory in the last 11 games for Boston, who play three games with the American League East-leading New York Yankees starting Monday. New York leads by 1½.

Otto Velez doubled home a run to cap a three-run seventh inning and reliever Jerry Johnson snuffed an eighth-inning New York rally to earn the Toronto Blue Jays a 6-4 victory and a doubleheader split with the Yankees. New York won the opener, 4-3.

FRANK WHITE, Joe Zdeb and George Brett each drove in ninth-inning runs which provided the rampaging Kansas City Royals with their 12th straight victory, a 4-1 triumph over the Minnesota Twins.

Rookie Jimmy Sexton went 4-for-4 and Kevin Pasley singled him home with the decisive run in the sixth inning to give the Seattle Mariners a 6-4 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Ken Singleton and Doug DeCinces knocked in three runs apiece as the Baltimore Orioles swept a three-game series from the Cleveland Indians with a 9-5 victory and Ross Grimsley earned his 13th win.

Tony Armas homered and doubled to drive in three runs and Vida Blue combined on a seven-hitter with Doug Bair to give the Oakland A's a 5-3 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

PHILADELPHIA's streaking Phillies won their fifth straight game Sunday, a 6-5 victory over St. Louis, to sweep a three-game series with the Cardinals and maintain their eight-game lead in the National League East.

Though the Pittsburgh Pirates clobbered the Montreal Expos 10-4, their hopes are virtually extinct since Philadelphia's magic number is now 12.

In other games, Cincinnati derailed Los Angeles 6-2, San Francisco tripped Houston 2-1, and Atlanta beat San Diego, 7-3.

Navratilova-Stove take Open doubles

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. — The top-seeded team of Martina Navratilova and Betty Stove captured the women's doubles championship in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships Sunday with a 6-1, 7-6 victory over Dr. Renee Richards and Bettyann Stuart.

Navratilova, who was upset in the singles semifinals by Wendy Turnbull, and Stove, who lost to singles champion Chris Evert in the semis, divided $13,125 for the victory.

Richards, the first transsexual to play in a major championship, and Stuart divided $6,550 as runners-up. Former singles champion Fred Stolle and former singles finalist Len Hoad defeated Vic Seixas, another former champion, and Bob Howe 6-3, 6-3 in the Hall of Fame doubles.

Betty Stove and Frew McMillan defeated Billie Jean King and Vitas Gerulaitis 6-2, 3-6, 6-3 in the mixed doubles. Stove and McMillan divided $6,500 while King and Gerulaitis split $3,000.

Doc Morgan tops B.C. Open field

ENDICITT, N.Y. — Dr. Gil Morgan scored the first victory of his career Sunday, shooting a final round 69 to finish at 14-under-par 270, good for a five-shot win over Lee Elder in the $200,000 B.C. Open.

Morgan, who has never used the doctorate in optometry he earned at Southern University in 1972, shot a 2-under 69 at the 6,903-yard En Joie Golf Club. He won $40,000.

Veteran Lee Elder, who started the day four strokes behind Morgan, played over par through the first nine holes to fall seven strokes behind, then rallied slightly to finish with a 70. His second place total of 275, 9 under par for 72 holes, earned him $22,800.

Veteran Georgia pro Mac McLendon rallied for a final round 68 to stand alone in third place at 276, one stroke better than Argentine Florentino Molina, who had a final round 69. Molina's performance saved his tour eligibility as his $9,400 payday took his earnings over the PGA minimum.

Arnold Palmer, who was making his first appearance in this five-year-old event and led after the first day, shot a final-day 74 to finish at 1-over 283 for the tournament.

Skotarek to coach Hinsdale soccer

Alex Skotarek, captain of the Chicago Sting Soccer Club and co-captain of the 1976 U.S. World Cup team, has been named acting varsity coach at Hinsdale Central High School, Skotarek was appointed to fill the void created by the illness of coach Richard Ohl.

"We are very pleased that Alex has accepted this very difficult assignment," said Hinsdale Central Athletic Director Harvey Dickinson. "It is hard to take over a program that has already started and mold a team from over 100 unfamiliar anxious candidates. But after working with Alex in various youth soccer programs in the past, we are certain that he will maintain the high standards of soccer skill and youth development for the school and community which Coach Ohl has developed over the years."

Skotarek, a resident of Arlington Heights and graduate of Michigan State University, has been with the Sting since 1975, the club's first year of operation. He will be free for the 1978 pro season beginning in the spring.

Andretti wins Italian Grand Prix

MONZA, Italy — Mario Andretti of the United States flashed across the finish line almost 16 seconds ahead of Austria's Niki Lauda Sunday to win the Italian Formula 1 Grand Prix Auto race.

Alan Jones of Australia came in third, Jochen Mass of West Germany was fourth and Clay Regazzoni of Switzerland was fifth.

Andretti completed the 52-lap, 187.41 - mile course at an average speed of about 123.6 miles per hour, a new race record.

Lauda's second place finish gave him 69 points after 14 of the 17 Grand Prix races this season and clinched for the Austrian at least a share of the world's champion driving title.

The race was marred by an unusual accident when an advertising billboard collapsed on spectators killing one person and injuring 20 others.

St. Viator runs to invite crown

by ART MUGALIAN

"This is the year we've been waiting for," said St. Viator cross-country coach Joe Stehno. "We've got solid depth in distance runners. All the ingredients are there."

Stehno, in his third year as coach of the ever-improving Lion harriers, watched as his team ran off with the first-place trophy at the Notre Dame Invitational on Saturday. Senior Dave Efken successfully defended his individual title, but the big story was the team victory, Viator's first ever in a cross-country invite.

"It's a great feeling to win," said Stehno. "And now the kids are looking at next week's Rolling Meadows meet and they figure they can win that one, too."

EFKEN'S performance — running the 3.1-mile course in 15:15 — came despite the fact that the Lion harrier took a wrong turn at one point during the race.

"Dave's just getting back into shape," said Stehno, who pointed out that Efken's time wasn't as fast as last year when he won on the same course. "That wrong turn cost him quite a few seconds."

Viator's second through fifth runners were Jim Kennedy (7th place;, Steve Klimkowski (10th), Phil Bayer (12th), and Paul Kellner (22nd).

"We've got two goals this season," said Stehno. "We'd like to win our conference and we'd like to get to the sectional."

ANOTHER ELATED coach was Forest View's Bill Mohrmann, whose Falcons were second behind St. Viator in the nine-team Notre Dame meet, 52-57. "Most of our kids are new to the program," said Mohrmann. "If they finish in the first half of the conference, I'd be very pleased."

Forest View's two returning varsity runners, Mike Yaccino and Jeff Kloster, finished third and fourth, respectively, in 15:51 and 15:53. Soph Dan Barron was eighth.

At the Luther North Invite, a 12-team affair, Wheeling's harriers came back with a tie for first place, paced by veteran Ben Sanchez's individual victory. Sanchez ran three miles in 15:34 and teammate Kevin Lucas was third in 16:06. The Wildcats tied Ridgewood with 68 points.

The big winner at the Maine West Center meet was Hersey's freshmen, who stole the frosh title by taking the first three spots in the 2.2-mile race. Steve Kane, Tom Shannon and Cliff Blaine were packed 11 seconds apart at the front of the chute while teammates Craig Schachtschneider (5th) and Al Richter (9th) weren't far behind.

"I was surprised by how well we did," said Huskie coach Larry Travis, who was more amazed by the performance of his team on the Varsity A level where they were second.

GORDON TECH won the Varsity A race and Loyola took the overall crown, but nothing could take away from the effort of Hersey's Steve Johnson (10th) and Rich Rieger (15th) running Varsity A. Hersey was also fourth on the soph level.

Prospect also got strong efforts from its runners, taking first place in the JV race behind a winning performance by Ken Wetendorf in a record 15:31. Knight senior Mark Smith was third in the Varsity A race, 10 seconds behind winner John Sullivan of Thornridge who ran 14:52. Buffalo Grove's Joe Schmidt was 11th in Varsity A.

The girls varsity race was won by Rolling Meadows.

IN OTHER MEETS, Fremd finished second behind defending state champ Deerfield in the Crystal Lake Invite, 21-55, as Arlington was sixth. The individual winner was Tom Wuchte of DeKalb. And Maine East whipped Hoffman, 22-38, in a quadrangular that also featured Hoffman victories over Zion-Benton, 15-50, and Waukegan West, 17-47. Hoffman's Neal Cleghorn was second in 14:45 for the 2.8-mile course.

Streaking Red Sox win, move to within 1½ games

Major league baseball

Jim Rice extended his league-leading home run total to 38 with a seventh-inning grand slam and Carlton Fisk and Butch Hobson drove in sixth-inning runs Sunday to carry the streaking Boston Red Sox to their sixth straight victory, a 6-2 decision over the Detroit Tigers.

Bill Lee and Rob Stanley combined to pitch the 10th victory in the last 11 games for Boston, who play three games with the American League East-leading New York Yankees starting Monday. New York leads by 1½.

Otto Velez doubled home a run to cap a three-run seventh inning and reliever Jerry Johnson snuffed an eighth-inning New York rally to earn the Toronto Blue Jays a 6-4 victory and a doubleheader split with the Yankees. New York won the opener, 4-3.

FRANK WHITE, Joe Zdeb and George Brett each drove in ninth-inning runs which provided the rampaging Kansas City Royals with their 12th straight victory, a 4-1 triumph over the Minnesota Twins.

Rookie Jimmy Sexton went 4-for-4 and Kevin Pasley singled him home with the decisive run in the sixth inning to give the Seattle Mariners a 6-4 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Ken Singleton and Doug DeCinces knocked in three runs apiece as the Baltimore Orioles swept a three-game series from the Cleveland Indians with a 9-5 victory and Ross Grimsley earned his 13th win.

Tony Armas homered and doubled to drive in three runs and Vida Blue combined on a seven-hitter with Doug Bair to give the Oakland A's a 5-3 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

PHILADELPHIA's streaking Phillies won their fifth straight game Sunday, a 6-5 victory over St. Louis, to sweep a three-game series with the Cardinals and maintain their eight-game lead in the National League East.

Though the Pittsburgh Pirates clobbered the Montreal Expos 10-4, their hopes are virtually extinct since Philadelphia's magic number is now 12.

In other games, Cincinnati derailed Los Angeles 6-2, San Francisco tripped Houston 2-1, and Atlanta beat San Diego, 7-3.
